EXPECT ACCORD TODAY IN 13 YEAR TRANSIT TANGLE

Repaving Only Point Left at Issue

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Mayor Kelly announced last night that Chicago's 13 year old transit unification dispute is substantially settled. The transit lines and the city disagree now on only one minor point, and this is expected to be ironed out today, the mayor said.

Mayor Kelly.

The mayor's announcement was made after a three hour session of representatives of the traction lines and the city. The representatives have been meeting almost daily for two weeks and intermittently for 13 years in an attempt to agree on a unified traction ordinance.

Agree on New Franchise.

The agreement reached in substance yesterday calls for a franchise for one new company—the Chicago Transit company—which will operate all street car, bus, and elevated lines and will take over the $46,000,000 city owned subway which is being built.

This settlement paves the way for overhauling and expanding Chicago's transportation system at a cost of $102,000,000 in the next eight years. The unification, modernization, and expansion have been the chief aim of the many traction plans drafted since 1926.

Many details of the unification remain to be worked out, but the remaining job largely is one of drafting the unified franchise in legal language, submitting it to the city council, the federal court, and the companies' securities holders for approval, and then presenting it to the voters of Chicago for passage in a referendum. Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the city's traction subcommittee, said work on the legal draft will be started at once with a view to a referendum by Aug. 1.

Two Points Settled.

When the two groups, representing the city and the companies, went into session yesterday afternoon, they still were in disagreement on three points that had been argued for months. When they adjourned, two points had been settled and the third was on the verge of agreement.

The companies' franchise negotiators, headed by Walter A. Shaw, traction adviser to the federal court, agreed at the meeting to the city's demand to grant universal transfer privileges as soon as the new company is formed. The lines previously had contended that transfer arrangements should remain unchanged during an experimental period to Jan. 1, 1942. The lines have agreed to maintain the present rates of fare for this period, with the right to ask for an 8 cent street car fare after Jan. 1, 1942.

The companies also agreed to waive for the first eight years the deposit of $1,000,000 a year into a sinking fund for the new company's bonds if this cash is needed to help carry out the modernization program on schedule.

City Increases Offer.

The third point, still to be ironed out, concerns the division of the cost of repaving 225 miles of street car rights of way to be torn up for bus substitutions. The city, which formerly offered to pay half the estimated cost of $16,000 a mile, yesterday proposed to pay $11,000 a mile if the company would pay the remaining $5,000.

This proposal was left for final decision until today, it was understood, because of the absence of Walter J. Cummings, one of the lines' representatives, who will return from New York this morning.

The modernization program hinges on obtaining a 25 million dollar loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It is understood the loan virtually is assured.

Senate Asked to Disarm All Aliens in U. S.

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—Senator Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] proposed today that congress forbid aliens to carry, own, buy or sell any implement of war, and Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] asked for a $50,000 senate investigation of "fifth column" threats to the national defense.

Their proposals, together with an attack by Representative J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.] on Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, followed a junction of forces between congress and government agencies to uncover and destroy subversive activities.

Bridges' bill would provide deportation and a fine of up to $10,000 for violations. Reynolds offered a resolution to set up a three man inquiry.

"Thousands" in U. S. Illegally.

Reynolds said there were "thousands upon thousands" of aliens illegally in this country and "that the officials responsible for this condition should be called on the carpet to answer why."

He then read a newspaper story saying the commerce department had started an investigation of its foreign born employés and then shouted:

"I charge that they [department officials] were derelict in their duties in employing aliens in preference to natural born and naturalized American citizens. If we find ourselves encircled by aliens, it is the fault of the officials who employed them."

Called "Coddler" of Spies.

Representative Thomas, asserting Jackson had been a "chief coddler" of foreign agents, said:

"One of the best ways and one of the quickest ways to drive the fifth column out into the open and ultimately to destroy it is to take the federal bureau of investigation away from the department of justice."

Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.] said he had reports from Mexico "which are hard for me to believe," that under German direction a number of camouflaged air bases had been built just south of the Rio Grande.

The chairman of the house committee investigating un-Americanism said he had verification of reports of a heavy influx of both communists and Nazis into Mexico—some from the United States. The purpose, he said, is to establish a propaganda base in the southern republic and to prevent United States assistance in the European war.

Visitors at Nazi Embassy.

"Many visitors from the United States are showing up at the German embassy in Mexico City," Dies declared. "Agents of another power are checking all planes from the United States to see which of their occupants are visiting the German embassy and are giving this information to the committee."

Dies declined to name the foreign power involved.

Dies said his committee planned hearings soon on the "relation to the United States" of this movement. "The committee has been supplied with a great deal of information regarding what is going on in Mexico. I know they have a Gestapo [secret police] and a Nazi party in Mexico City.

"Recently I received information that all Germans in Mexico had been assessed a certain sum to carry on propaganda activities and the general work of the Nazi party in Mexico."

BRITON URGES USE OF AMERICAN GUNS ON CHUTE TROOPS

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—American made "tommy" guns are ideal for use against German parachute troops, the Daily Mail's military correspondent asserted tonight. He urged the government to place a rush order.

"There must be a large supply of these Thompson automatic guns in America," Lieut. Col. T. A. Lowe wrote in the Daily Mail. "No time should be lost in cabling an order for a supply."

Attacking the organization of British local defense volunteers—"parashooters"—he urged that the whole plan be scrapped. "There is widespread uneasiness that once again we are trusting to ancient weapons to guard against a modern menace," he said.

British Arrest Member of U. S. Embassy Staff

LONDON, May 24 [Special].—A member of the United States embassy staff was taken into custody tonight as this country's drive against "fifth columnists" was intensified. His identity and duties with the embassy were not disclosed nor were the charges against him made public. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, reached by telephone, declined to comment. Other members of Kennedy's staff either declined to discuss the matter or said they knew nothing about it.

Norse Survivor Bares Heroism of Hegra Siege

OSLO, Norway, May 24 (AP).—The first story of the 23 day defense of Hegra fortress, in mid-Norway, by volunteers armed with guns of the Napoleonic era, was told today.

Sublieutenant Hellandsoe Skien, one of the defenders just released from imprisonment, said the resistance was so astounding that the German commander in Trondheim issued an official tribute. The German tribute, Skien reported, said:

"The men of Fortress Hegra, having defended themselves bravely for 23 days, now have hoisted the white flag.

"German soldiers, give credit for the gallant resistance, and consider the tenacious defense as proof of fine military quality.

All Communications Gone.

"Capitulation was due to food shortage. Only one day's ration was left. The waterpipes were destroyed by artillery fire 19 days before the capitulation. The lighting plant had been out 18 days. The crew had to melt snow to get water.

"The fortress had no communication with any Norwegian units during the entire siege."

Lieut. Skien said the fortress was manned by 190 men.

Ammunition, he said, was abundant. The guns were 2 of 7.5 centimeters, 4 of 10.5, 4 of 8.4, and 15 machine guns, only 5 of which were workable. There were no antiaircraft guns.

The fortress, he said, was unoccupied when the invasion started.

"None of us ever had seen it before," he declared.

Defenders Sleep in Water.

"We were quartered in a tunnel and we literally slept in water as the tunnel dripped constantly," Lieut. Skien related. "The Germans first attacked with infantry, which we repulsed. A subsequent patrol was destroyed, except for one German who was taken prisoner.

"The Germans then began artillery fire and airplane bombing. Every foot within the fortress area was covered by bomb hits. Artillery duels often were at only 1,000 or 1,500 meters [750 to 1,100 feet].

"We had two doctors but only bandages and morphine, no other medicines. Many of our men got pneumonia. During the entire period no one had his clothes off."

Hegra fortress surrendered May 4.

GERMANS HURL TWO ARMIES AGAINST ALLIES TRAPPED IN BELGIAN POCKET

Crash Thru Forts on Scheldt River on Way to Channel.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, May 25, Saturday (AP).—The German armies smashing to the English channel were reported early today to have reached the coast at some points south of Calais.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 24.—Relentlessly, the German armies are drawing tighter the noose of steel, fire, and death around the British, French, and Belgian forces which are fighting desperately in Flanders and northern France, Adolf Hitler's military authorities announced tonight.

The high command asserted German troops are "close to the French channel ports," and it was assumed that these forces had reached the outskirts of Boulogne and Calais—two gateways to England. Boulogne is 26 miles across the English channel from Folkestone, England, and Calais is just 22 miles from the chalk cliffs of Dover.

Fight in Ghent Streets.

The Germans also reported they were fighting the allies hand to hand in the streets of Ghent.

A moving line of steel, which started northward from the Somme, pushed to a depth of more than 30 miles to reach the edge of Calais. The other German advance, westward across Belgium, smashed thru the Scheldt river fortifications into Tornai and Ghent to draw tighter the net about the entrapped British, French, and Belgians.

The third week of Hitler's westward offensives began with millions of German soldiers moving toward channel ports from where Nazis said, "Germany today directly threatens the coast of England."

Claim Mastery of Air.

The Germans declared that they have complete numerical superiority in that region. Furthermore, they asserted that the reich has achieved full mastery of the air over France and Belgium and that the British and French "do not dare send the bulk of their air force to fight on the continent."

"Germany will maintain air superiority until the battle of annihilation of the French, Belgian, and English forces in Flanders and northern France is complete," Nazis said.

Fight on Two Major Fronts.

The "battle of millions" was being fought on two major fronts which press against the million men who have been trapped by the Germans.

The north-south front stretches 60 miles from the outskirts of the fortress of Ghent to Cambrai.

The east-west front cuts off northern France along a 190 mile stretch from Sedan to Boulogne and the outskirts of Calais. The two fronts meet along the line of Valenciennes, Denain, and Cambrai.

On the north-south front German divisions, after crashing thru fortifications on the Scheldt,

KING CALLS WAR ISSUE OF LIFE OR DEATH TO BRITISH

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Map on back page.)

LONDON, May 24.—King George VI. of Great Britain tonight told his subjects that the war now raging presented them with a life or death issue.

Capt. Franz von Rintelen, who was interned in London yesterday.

This solemn warning, made in an Empire day radio address, was shoved back to the inner pages of London's daily newspapers, however, by the developments in the war zone in France and Belgium.

There was considerable confusion in London concerning the real progress of the war now raging only a few miles across the channel from England. Officials would say little, and the public was told it might expect very little in news—not because the authorities wished to withhold information—but because it was unwise to indicate even approximately the places which German detachments have reached or from which they have been evicted.

German Units Isolated.

This interdict against informing the public was imposed ostensibly because in many cases German detachments were isolated and unable to communicate with their headquarters.

Adding to the confusion was the contradictory reports on the status of Boulogne, 26 miles across the channel from Folkestone, England. Early today official British sources announced it was in German hands. German reports did not confirm this, and then later in the day came the claim from Paris that French troops still held the town.

King Makes Short Speech.

King George spoke 12½ minutes into a gold microphone in Buckingham palace.

"The decisive struggle is now upon us," he declared. "Let none mistake: It is no mere territorial conquest that our enemies are seeking. It is the overthrow, complete and final, of this empire and everything for which it stands and after that the conquest of the world. It is an issue of life or death for us all."

The king, however, insisted that his confidence in the final outcome was not dimmed. Then he continued, "but confidence alone is not enough. It must be armed with courage, resolution, and self-sacrifice.

"People of the empire, I say to you, put into your task, whatever it may be, all the courage and purpose of which you are capable. Keep your hearts proud, your resolve unshaken. Let us go forward to that task as one man, with a smile on our lips, our heads held high, and with God's help we will not fail."

Arrest More Fascists.

The campaigns against possible fifth column treason continued. Twenty-one more men and four women, mostly Fascists, were reported arrested and jailed in London. Two other Fascists, said to be prominent members of Sir Oswald Mosley's British union, were rounded up in Manchester. Mosley himself was arrested yesterday.

Capt. Franz von Rintelen, head of the German naval intelligence in the United States in the world war, was interned for the duration of hostilities. Von Rintelen, an exile from Nazi Germany, was arrested in London after appearing before an aliens' tribunal for examination. He has lived in England several years, touring the country and lecturing on espionage and his activities in the last war.

The cleanup of political organizations now under way in Britain has aroused disquiet among the communists, who fear they face arrest on a wholesale basis. A communist mass meeting scheduled for Trafalgar square on Sunday was canceled today by the government.

Paris Claims It Still Holds Boulogne; Repels Attack.

BULLETINS.

LONDON, May 25, Saturday (AP).—Vibrations from tremendous explosions, the thunder of gunfire and flames shooting skyward across the English channel led to the belief early today that British warships had gone into action. The red glare of the flames cast an eerie glow on the surface of the sea. The air ministry told of repeated bombing attacks in the Boulogne area against Germans pushing northward toward Calais, but some of the vibrations were of such force as to lead to the belief they were caused by naval guns.

LONDON, May 25, Saturday (AP).—The government today announced that eight civilians were injured in a German air raid on North Yorkshire last night. Bombs also fell in rural areas in East Anglia, where there were no casualties.

PARIS, May 25, Saturday (AP).—The French army of the north today was reported to have advanced 10 miles in its drive to narrow the 30 mile corridor north of the Somme thru which Germany's mechanized troops have been hammering at channel ports.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 24.—The Germans appeared tonight to have carried their blitzkrieg a pace farther toward the threshold of England.

The French high command announced that the enemy pressure was still being increased toward the seaboard, altho a war ministry spokesman announced that French troops are holding the English channel port of Boulogne.

[In London authoritative circles said the Germans took possession of Boulogne Thursday night. In Berlin the Germans had not officially claimed Boulogne. They said their channel vanguard had passed the city, heading for Calais to the northeast.]

French Hold Somme Line.

Prior to the French war ministry's announcement that Boulogne is in French hands, it was reported that both Abbeville, located on the Somme estuary and 12 miles from open water, and Boulogne were in the hands of German motorcycle units.

Furthermore, it was reported that the French were holding the line of the Somme river and had repulsed German attacks against their positions on the Aisne river, south of Sedan.

Fail to Connect Line.

Tonight's communique of the French high command said:

"The violent combats which have been developing for several days in the north, notably in the regions of Cambrai and Arras and which have extended to the region of St. Omer and Boulogne, have not yet permitted reëstablishment up to the present of the continuity of our lines.

"South of Sedan the German attack reported this morning was conducted by important forces.

"Our counterattack was clearly successful.

"Very lively operations by our reconnaissance and bombing aviation continued to harass the enemy rear.

"Our pursuit aviation, while continuing its covering action, has attacked successfully with its guns armored and motorized enemy elements."

It was announced that British and Belgian troops on the Escaut [Scheldt] front in Belgium had withdrawn in good order.

Gen. Maxime Geygand, allied commander in chief, evidently is seeking less to defend the channel ports as a matter of strategy than to catch the German armored divisions in the 300 mile wide corridor they have cut between Peronne and Cambrai and extending southwest to Amiens.

As the battle line now shows, and if the allies have been caught in a pocket in Flanders and the Pas-de-Calais department, the Germans also have been maneuvered into a trap in the narrow corridor between Cambrai and Peronne.

An examination of the positions, altho this phase of the battle is a war of movement and not of positions, shows that the French apparently are forging lines with which to crush the German salient. One line runs from Abbeville and Amiens, south of Peronne, thru St. Quentin, La Fere, Laon, thence to Rethel and Montmedy. [Here 18 words were censored.]

[This description of the southern line of the German salient indicates that the Germans may have been pushed back from Soissons.]

Fight Desperately in Pocket.

From Arras, east to Cambrai, northeast to Valenciennes and on to Ghent in Belgium is another line. This also forms a pocket in which the French, British, and Belgians are fighting desperately. [Here four words were censored.]

The allied forces brought out their greatest weapon, heavy artillery, in an effort to cut down the long, thin German spearhead to the west by crossfire within the corridor. On both sides of that corridor they set up batteries and with the famous French 75s raked the German columns. At the same time aircraft bombed and machine gunned road and troop concentrations.

The Germans meanwhile sought with columns of tanks to clean out the last scattered resistance in the corridor itself. Flame throwers with a 70 yard range, which the Nazis had used against Meuse fortifications, were discarded for machine guns.

French Claim Successes.

The French said that various assaults have been launched and that local successes had been obtained, including the seizure of the outskirts of Amiens. All pockets which had been made on the left bank of the Somme by the Germans in the last few days have been ironed out by French counterattacks, it was announced.

French military authorities said that troops operating in the Flanders pocket are obtaining supplies by way of the sea so that even if the Germans did get a good grip on the channel, ships could keep in touch with the armies on the other side of the German corridor. [Here three lines were censored.]

The French high command said that the Flanders battle, as it is now called, is proceeding with great bitterness. The allied armies are counterattacking heavily in the region of Valenciennes, Cambrai, and Arras, that is in the quadrilateral between the rivers Scheldt and the Scarpe.

In the battle along the Scarpe between Valenciennes and Cambrai, positions are being taken and retaken, with alternative successes for each side.

Between the Somme and the Argonne—that is, the region around Sedan—German attacks have broken down, the French said.

CHUTE TROOPER GRABS BELGIUM'S SECRET ARCHIVES

Nazi Gets Files 20 Minutes After Fall of Brussels.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY, May 24 (AP).—The story of how a daring parachute corps officer rushed straight to the Belgian foreign office when Brussels fell and seized archives which "will make the world prick up its ears," was told to me today by an authentic German military source.

Among the parachute jumpers who landed near Brussels, I was told, was an officer who in peacetime served in Adolf Hitler's chancellery as a liaison man to the foreign office. He also was an assistant chief of protocol.

As soon as the Belgian capital surrendered he rushed into the city and headed for the Belgian foreign office.

Thus, 20 minutes after Brussels capitulated, the secret archives of the Belgian government were in German hands.

I was not surprised. The Polish and Norwegian campaigns showed me the Germans consider diplomatic booty quite as important as materials.

[A Berlin spokesman yesterday said it was "not impossible" that revelations of Belgian and Dutch connivance in allied war plans against the reich would be published in a manner similar to allegations made following the German drives into Poland and Norway.]

Germans Tighten Up Pocket.

Today the German armies put in one of the hardest days of the offensive, drawing narrower and narrower the pocket into which they have maneuvered the combined allied northern army.

The bulk of the German force is only 20 miles from the Belgian coast.

The German drive is relentless. Whoever we encountered today was determined to win—convinced of victory.

Today we followed one complete regiment along its entire road of approach. My escort officer suggested the tour would give an excellent general picture of the normal life of a marching army.

In this army reservists and recruits are mixed. An officer explained, "The one decisive moment in a soldier's life arrives when he receives his baptism of fire. Most young men are shaken when they meet the enemy in action for the first time." He said, however, that the German veterans in all army units had "maintained such composure when hell broke loose that the young fellows soon rallied and regained their confidence" and that now "each troop is liberally interspersed with veterans."

Often March 30 Miles a Day.

Marching 30 miles a day is nothing unusual for Hitler's army. Neither is getting along without regular sleep.

As we halted today in the little Belgian village of St. Trond a young air force infantryman rushed up to our chauffeur, an old buddy of his.

"How are things?" asked the chauffeur.

"Just fine—only we shouldn't mind a little more sleep," replied the infantryman. "We haven't had any real sleep for three days. It always has been marching, marching, marching."

Hatred Marches with the Nazis.

Hatred . . . death . . . disaster—numbed people groping their way back to a semblance of their old life. These are flashes in the picture seen on German conquered Belgian soil.

In no Belgian community thru which we have crossed this week in the tour behind the front with the German forces have I noticed more hatred in people's eyes than in Aerschot, 10 miles northeast of Louvain.

I travel every day in a first lieutenant's car. I suppose the population takes me for German. If looks could have killed I would be a corpse today in Aerschot.

This place had the ill fate of being the scene of one of the most violent tank fights.

Rhine Area Flooded

French army engineers flooded hundreds of square miles of French territory near the German border yesterday by blasting locks of Rhine-Rhone canal.

BASEL, Switzerland, May 24 (AP).—French army engineers blew up scores of locks on the Rhine-Rhone canal today, flooding hundreds of square miles of territory on the French side of the Rhine river.

The canal runs from Strasbourg to Basel, and the locks formed a vital part of the Maginot line defenses. The release of the water may affect the level of the Rhine between the Maginot line and the German Westwall forts from the beginning of the canal to Strasbourg, where that section of the waterway again empties into the Rhine.

The main locks, gates and canal entrance were left partly standing, enabling the French to control the water level to some extent.

The reason for destroying the locks was not immediately apparent. Some observers believed it was done to strengthen the Maginot defenses in this sector and enable thousands of troops to leave for action in northwestern France.

NAZIS HAVE LOST 1,500 AIRPLANES, BRITAIN ASSERTS

Bombers Reach Rhineland in Extensive Raids.

The German Claim

BERLIN, May 24 (AP).—An official announcement tonight said 2,400 allied planes had been destroyed since May 10.

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—Germany has lost more than 1,500 aircraft since Adolf Hitler's warriors invaded the Low Countries two weeks ago, the British air ministry reported today in a communique telling of fresh British aerial attacks on German forces fighting in France and Belgium.

The air ministry, reporting on an action which occurred this afternoon, said that eleven British fighting planes had shot down eleven Messerschmitts, German fighters, and seriously damaged three others without loss to themselves while on patrol over the French coast.

Six Bombers Missing.

Ten British fighter planes are missing, but some of the pilots may yet return, the ministry said. Six bombers failed to return from yesterday's widespread raids.

The ministry's communique follows:

"Intense air activity on an increased scale continued yesterday, last night and today. Repeated bombing attacks were made yesterday by the royal air force bombers on enemy columns in the neighborhood of Arras and Boulogne.

"Strong sorties were made during the night on the enemy's lines of communication in northeast France, southern Belgium and the Rhineland.

Hit Railway Junctions.

"In northeast France among the targets hit by our heavy bombers were military objectives at Baval and Hirson, where fires were started.

"At Givet on the Meuse [river] a marshaling [switching] yard and a large column of transports were severely damaged. The railway junction at Beaumont was hit and rolling stock set on fire. The junction at Gemloux was also successfully attacked and an explosion was seen among a convoy of lorries nearby.

"In the Rhineland our heavy bombers attacked enemy communications at Emmerich, Cologne, Coblenz and elsewhere. From these widespread bombing operations six of our aircraft have not returned.

"Our fighters continued to win spectacular victories against the forces of the enemy. From reports so far received they have shot down or seriously damaged at least 80 enemy aircraft since yesterday morning.

"Ten of our fighters are missing but some of the pilots may yet return. At least 500 aircraft have been lost by the enemy in France and Belgium during the last week, making a total of over 1,500 enemy aircraft lost since the invasion of the Low Countries."

Air Power? Two Versions

Britain.

WITH THE ROYAL AIR FORCE IN FRANCE, May 24 (AP).—When they ask for volunteers for special air raids by British pilots these nights, whole squadrons appear for duty and names have to be drawn out of a hat. Such is the morale of the royal air force in France.

There is no rest for German tanks and armored car units now in the shell-torn woods of France and Belgium.

Night after night the tanks are ferreted out and attacked with full force by British bombers.

Convoys, some moving, some resting, are showered with bombs and machine gun fire.

At one village a serpentine German column with armored vehicles closely grouped was the victim of many direct hits.

In another attack upon a German column an antiaircraft battery was silenced. To the southwest of this action huge fires told the royal air force its thrust the night before at an ammunition dump had reached its mark.

Trains, searchlight batteries, and supply depots are among the targets sought by the night bombers.

Germany.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 24.—German military experts say they are puzzled that "England and France have not been making full use of their air force" and they wonder whether this is inspired by a deep laid strategic plan.

The German capital learned for the first time tonight of the effect of the two British air raids on Hamburg last week-end, when 33 persons were killed, 31 seriously wounded, and 39 slightly wounded, according to the German account.

This news became known here by a report of the burial of the 33 victims at a cemetery in Harburg, a section of greater Hamburg. These casualties, it is said here, were suffered during air raids last Saturday night.

According to the German list, at least four of the victims were of the army and navy.

The German press reports only little on air raids. In connection with the Hamburg raid, the Hamburg Fremdenblatt explains its reticence, saying:

"When we observe well founded reticence in our reports, we are convinced that our readers will understand that we do not wish to give information to our enemies."

RUSSIA SHIFTS ARMY IN POLAND TO NAZI BORDER

[Copyright: 1940: By the New York Times.]

ORASENI, Rumania, May 24.—Russia has removed the bulk of its army of occupation in Poland from the frontier facing Rumania and has strengthened its forces on the German border, a trip thru this region today revealed. The troops involved in this shift are seasoned veterans, it was learned, having seen service in the Polish and Finnish campaigns.

Reasons for the shift could not be learned, but some observers put its origin in mutual German-Russian distrust, and referred to the recent sabotaging of rail traffic bound for Germany from Cernauti, Rumania. The line was reopened on Dec. 3, but up to May 1 only 28,540 tons of miscellaneous goods had been transported over it.

It is believed the Germans now plan to use the railway only for merchandise bound for Scandinavia.

NAZIS PUT DUTCH CASUALTIES AT 'LESS THAN 2,000'

BERLIN, May 24 (AP).—The official German news agency, DNB, reported tonight it had "authoritative information" that the Dutch army lost fewer than 2,000 in dead and wounded, and that only a few hundred persons lost their lives in air raids on Rotterdam.

The agency charged the Dutch government, "thru its propaganda agency operated in London," is trying to tell the world that the Netherlands lost 100,000 soldiers and 100,000 civilians in Rotterdam.

"From informed quarters DNB learns that these figures are fantastic," the agency said. "Due to the swiftness of action, the Netherlands army emerged from the war with slight losses. No conclusive figures are at hand, but it is certain the loss in dead was less than 2,000.

EACH SIDE CHARGES THE OTHER BREAKS RULES OF WARFARE

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—The French port and industrial city of Abbeville, seized by a German motorized column speeding to the English channel, was razed and its "shattered streets strewn with dead and dying women and children," Red Cross Worker Alan S. Roger said today. Roger returned to London from northern France.

He said the Germans bombed Abbeville "relentlessly and apparently without thought of military objectives." The Germans dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs, he said, as well as incendiary darts "which shoot about like jumping crackers."

Says Ambulance Unit Raided.

BERLIN, May 24 (AP).—Germany charged today that all the cars of an ambulance unit attached to an armored car formation were destroyed, four men killed and eight injured in an allied daylight air attack May 14. A broadcast official communique said the ambulance unit was resting by the roadside at Givonne, France, when the planes attacked at about 150 yards altitude.

Moslems Told to Prepare for Holy War to Aid Allies

CAIRO, Egypt, May 24 (AP).—Preachers in mosques thruout Egypt today told moslems to be prepared for a "johad," or holy war, to help the Allied cause. Egypt has a military alliance with Britain.

3 Ships Bearing Wounded from France Reach Britain

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—Three hospital ships filled with wounded soldiers from the British expeditionary force in France arrived at a south coast port today.

CUDAHY REPORTS HIS U. S. STAFF IS SAFE IN BELGIUM

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—In the first message received from him in eight days, Ambassador John Cudahy told the state department today that all members of the American and other diplomatic and consular establishments in Brussels were safe. Cudahy's telegram was forwarded thru the German foreign office.

The department is still without direct word from the American legation at The Hague. The last telegram from Minister George A. Gordon came on May 15. The German foreign office, however, assured Alexander C. Kirk, American chargé d'affaires at Berlin, today that all diplomatic and consular officers at Brussels and The Hague were safe.

A state department official said that no word has come indicating that any Americans, whether official or private citizens, suffered casualties. In the absence of such word, the official said, the department must presume that Americans have come thru the German invasion of Belgium and Holland unharmed.

TOO MANY POLISH OFFICERS; ARE TO BECOME PRIVATES

PARIS, May 24.—Several thousand Polish officers will fight as privates in the new "officers' legion" being formed "somewhere in France." It will be a highly mechanized unit with a shock motorized column consisting of men who received experience in motorized warfare in the German-Polish campaign. Many more officers escaped from Poland than are needed to command the comparatively small Polish army in France, and the Polish high command has created a separate unit in which majors and colonels will command platoons of lieutenants and captains.

Australia, Japan Assure Status of Dutch E. Indies

CANBERRA, Australia, May 24 (AP).—The Australian external affairs minister, John McEwan, announced today that Australia and Japan had exchanged assurances that the war in Europe would not affect the status quo of the Dutch East Indies.

HUNT MYSTERY GERMAN CHUTE MAN IN IRELAND

Ulster Police Seize 76 in Outlawed I. R. A.

DUBLIN, May 24 (AP).—Soldiers and police tonight started a hunt for a German "mystery man" who they believed had dropped into Dublin by parachute. An Irishman alleged to have sheltered him was held.

A guard was set to prevent arms and ammunition in Ireland falling into unlawful hands. An order was issued to compel a declaration of possession of all arms in Irish ports or territorial waters. Airdrome and costal guards were strengthened.

The search for the mystery parachutist started after police testified in Criminal court that they had found an open parachute of unusual type, a radio transmitter, and documents of military character concerning Irish defenses in a raid on the home of Stephen Held, a naturalized Irishman.

Taken Back to Jail.

The police also reported finding $20,000 in American money, a military cap, and a modern German airforce badge in the house. Held was taken back to jail under military regulation.

Despite this hunt, authorities said they were not inclined to admit the existance in Ireland of any widespread fifth column plot involving German residents. They emphasized there were only 200 Germans in Ireland and most of them have lived here for many years.

Seize 76 I. R. A. Members.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 24 (AP).—Seventy-six members of the outlawed Irish Republican army were arrested in overnight raids by police of northern counties, it was officially announced today.

Fears already have been expressed in England that the Germans, perhaps with the connivance of rebellious Irishmen, might try to utilize the island for an attack on England.

The police who made the raids were accompanied by soldiers in armored cars as they searched the six northern counties, hauling many of the suspects from bed.

Believed in Hamburg.

A man, arrested last week, was described as "an adjutant general of the rebel army" and reportedly carried documents ordering the I. R. A. to be ready for action between May 8 and 24.

Northern Ireland authorities said that Sean Russell, chief of staff of the I. R. A., and an Irish-American named Joseph P. McGarritty, both of whom are regarded as dangerous, were believed to be in Hamburg, Germany.

Military police in armored cars operating along the Limerick-Tipperary border, recently rounded up I. R. A. scouts, and later found the main body engaged in military drill. Forty armed men were captured near the main Shannon river electric power station.

WIPE OUT NAZI CHUTE SQUADRON IN FRENCH TOWN

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—A small band of British and French soldiers was reported tonight to have wiped out German parachute attackers, armed with submachine guns, dropped on a small French village behind the western front. The British were said to have been armed only with rifles.

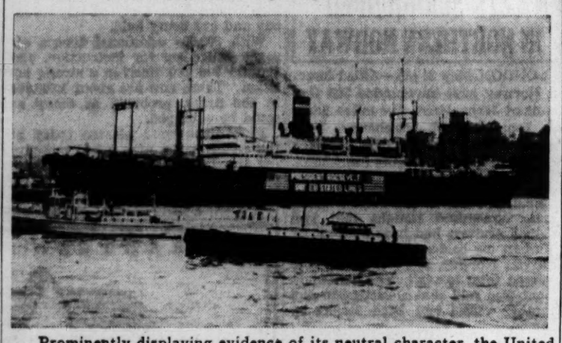
The air ministry announced that 16 members of the ground staff of a Royal Air Force squadron had stopped to rest at the village, weary from 17 hours on the road, when at dusk German bombers came roaring over the rooftops.

The bombers flew around until night fell and then dropped the parachutists.

The R. A. F. men, joined by a few French soldiers resting at a nearby village, set out in search of the Nazi machine gunners, the air ministry said, and there followed a house to house fight, during which the Germans were killed.

Sails to Bring Americans Home

(Stories in adjoining columns.)



Prominently displaying evidence of its neutral character, the United States liner President Roosevelt sailed from New York yesterday to enter the war zone and bring to this country some 700 Americans who are to be gathered at Galway, Ireland. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Ireland on Guard Against 5th Column

Principal events of yesterday in the precautions of the Irish government against German activities, aided perhaps by rebellious citizens, are shown on the map. An American liner sailed from New York yesterday to bring home some 700 Americans who are to be assembled at Galway.

MUSSOLINI CALLS CONCESSIONS BY ALLIES 'TOO LATE'

Cancels Sailings of 3 Ocean Liners.

ROME, May 24 (AP).—Sailings of three Italian liners—possibly needed for troop transport—were postponed tonight as reports circulated in Italy that allied concessions intended to keep Italy out of the war had come "too late."

Today was the 25th anniversary of Italy's entry into the world war on the side of the allies. Now she is linked to Germany by a "pact of steel," and all signs point to her entry into the war soon against the allies.

The official announcements of the postponement said it was purely a routine matter.

Mobilization Law in Effect.

Two of the liners were the Rex and the Augustus, scheduled originally to leave Genoa and Trieste on May 29 and May 27, respectively. Both are booked now for departure June 6.

The Neptunia, scheduled to leave Genoa on June 1 for South America, is listed to go June 21 instead.

The civil mobilization law which gives the government power to mobilize all citizens over the age of 14 and to requisition virtually any materials or services anywhere in the nation went into effect tonight.

Naval Reserves Called up.

The news of the delay in liner sailings coincided with announcement that naval reservists who recently completed training have been recalled to the colors.

As for the reported last minute concessions which Premier Mussolini was quoted unofficially as having termed "too late and too little," Italians said the French had offered Italy special rights in Tunis, credit facilities at Suez canal, and free port privileges at Djibuti, French Somaliland, only rail outlet from Italy's Ethiopian empire.

The British were understood to have held out the promise of exempting Italy from its naval blockade if Italy will remain nonbelligerent.

Negotiations Progress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 24.—French and British negotiations with Italy looking toward changes in enforcement of the allied blockade have been going on for several weeks, diplomatic quarters said tonight.

The negotiations, it was said, are nearing a favorable conclusion. They were aimed at simplifying and lightening the formalities required of Italian exporters and importers without decreasing the effectiveness of the allied contraband control.

A British spokesman for the allied nations now is in Rome, it was said. According to the diplomatic source, important decisions which "place Italy in a particularly favorable situation as regards the naval blockade," have been taken already.

Britain Places New Curb on Purchases of Butter

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—The food ministry announced today that only "national butter" would be sold after June 1. It did not indicate the quality or origin of the butter.

G-MEN SEARCH SHIP SAILING TO SAVE AMERICANS

U. S. Liner Will Race Thru War Zone to Ireland.

New York, May 24 (AP).—Extraordinary precautions were taken by federal agents today to safeguard the United States liner President Roosevelt as she started on a run thru northern war zone waters to Great Britain to pick up American refugees.

Before the ship sailed every member of the crew was questioned, papers were checked and rechecked, the crews' quarters were searched, and every cabin, compartment, and deck of the liner was systematically examined.

Upon orders from the state department, the vessel carried no mail, passengers, or cargo.

Bright Lights at Night.

Orders also were given prohibiting radio reports from the ship, which will run brightly lighted by night and with flags flying and the national emblem on her sides easily distinguishable by day.

Commenting on the thoroness of the examination John J. Daly, United States shipping commissioner, said, "We want to make sure that every one on board is a bona fide American seaman." There were six women, four of them stewardesses, one nurse, and one hair dresser in the crew of 255.

The 13,869 ton ship, taken off the New York-Bermuda passenger service and converted overnight into a refugee vessel, was prepared for a lone, unprotected voyage to Galway, Ireland, where refugees already are awaiting her arrival.

Cots in Swimming Pool.

Cots were placed in every available space to increase the normal passenger capacity of 443—even in the ship's swimming pool.

An augmented staff of officers and an increased crew of about 300 men were aboard, under the command of Capt. James E. Roberts.

Crew members will receive extra war risk compensation for the trip, the National Maritime union announced.

To protect the refugee ship against warships and aircraft of belligerent nations, Secretary of State Cordell Hull notified Great Britain, France, Belgium, Germany, Holland, and Norway of its peaceful mission.

700 Ready to Leave.

A United States embassy spokesman in London said that about 700 of the approximately 3,000 Americans living in Great Britain had indicated they would be ready to leave by the time the Roosevelt arrives at Galway.

The embassy spokesman said that Miss Rosemary Kennedy, 21 year old daughter of United States Ambasador Joseph P. Kennedy, would sail for home on the ship. She is the only member of the ambassador's family still in London.

RUSH TO GET VISAS.

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—Seven hundred Americans, eager to leave England and escape the dangers of German invasion, applied for visas and exit permits to Ireland in the last 24 hours, embassy officials said today.

In the face of the growing danger, embassy officials said they expected nearly half of the 5,400 American citizens in the British Isles to leave for home.

The United States liner President Roosevelt, which sailed from New York today for Galway, will have accommodations for only 600, even if all available space is taken.

There are about 2,000 Americans in London, 1,500 elsewhere in the United Kingdom, and about 1,900 in Ireland.

Officials said there was "practically no chance" of Americans on the continent to go home by way of Britain, since the channel steamer and air services have been discontinued.

FLED TO ESCAPE BEING A HOSTAGE —WILHELMINA

Queen Says She Carries On Dutch Leadership.

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—Queen Wilhelmina today said she fled from the Netherlands to maintain her "active leadership" of 65,000,000 citizens of the Dutch empire instead of becoming a prisoner of war by remaining at home.

Queen Wilhelmina. [Acme Photo.]

"I have deemed it my duty," she said.

The queen, tired but spirited, explained her position in an interview with correspondents.

She pointed out that of the Dutch empire's population the colonies embrace nearly 60,000,000. The Netherlands proper has a population of approximately 8,000,000.

Fleet "Almost Unscathed."

"The Dutch fleet, with its proud traditions, has been able to join the allied fleets almost unscathed," she said.

[The Dutch navy includes 21 submarines, four cruisers, nine minelayers, eight destroyers, five seagoing torpedo boats, a coast defense ship, and numerous auxiliary vessels.]

"This struggle is being waged by Dutchmen who have escaped from the nonoccupied territory and recruited abroad at the side of the allies. . . . It is my task to give leadership and confidence to these forces and Hollanders in overseas territories who are willing and keen to make any sacrifices for the liberation of the motherland."

"From the beginning," the 59 year old sovereign said, "the enemy has done everything in his power to capture me.

Considered Promising Hostage.

"Apparently he considered my person as a promising hostage with which to paralyze every resistance of my people in the Netherlands and overseas territories.

"In the hands of the enemy I would have been powerless. As a captive of oppression I could not have been the rallying point nor an inspiration for my unhappy people."

The queen and other members of the royal family arrived in England last week shortly before their homeland fell to German invaders. The Netherlands government is functioning temporarily in London.

Carrying On Tradition.

"'I shall maintain,' is the motto of my [House of Orange] dynasty," she said. "That tradition, which I could not worthily nor effectively carry on as a captive of the enemy, I shall forever cherish and hold high."

Prior to her revelations of how the Germans tried to capture and hold her hostage, the queen appealed by radio to her subjects in the Dutch East Indies to "set all differences aside" and rally around their "constitutional authority and aid him in his heavy task." The executive authority of the East Indies is Governor General A. W. L. Tjarda Van Starkenborgh Stachouwer.

She called on the East Indies to remember that the "existence and salvation of the kingdom is at stake."

GEN. FORD TELLS ADVANTAGES OF A JOB IN ARMY

The advantages of army service were cited yesterday by Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding the 6th Corps area and 2d army, in a statement describing what requirements men must meet to enlist.

The general said enlistment means not only a new recruit for the army, but a job with good pay and opportunity for the recruit himself. Pay for enlisted men ranges from $21 to $157.50 per month, with clothing, medical care, food and quarters furnished by the government.

Applicants must be native Americans or have second naturalization papers. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, able bodied, strong, active, and free from disease. Also, they must be unmarried, have no dependents, and be able to speak, read, and write the English language.

LIST 2 DAMAGED CAPITAL SHIPS IN BRITISH LOSSES

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—British war losses since April 9 were two capital ships slightly damaged, one cruiser which struck an uncharted rock, and seven destroyers, and four submarines sunk, naval sources said today.

[The capital ships apparently were the battleship Rodney, 33,000 tons, reported damaged by a bomb, and the battle cruiser Renown, 32,000 tons, hit by shellfire off Norway. The 9,550 ton cruiser Effingham was reported lost after running onto a rock off the Norwegian coast last Monday.]

Germany claims that 15 capital ships, three aircraft carriers, 46 cruisers, 44 destroyers, and 29 submarines were sunk or damaged were scoffed at as "fantastic."

War Cloud Rises Over Antwerp

The German caption that accompanied this picture described it as showing a huge smoke cloud over Antwerp, Belgium, "before its capture by Germans after bombardment." The city fell May 18. The following day, a German report said, it appeared deserted by its inhabitants, its streets cluttered with burning, shell splattered automobiles, debris, and fallen wires. [Associated Press Wirephoto: Sent yesterday from Berlin by radio.]

TELLS HOW NAZI CHUTE TROOPERS SEIZED BRIDGES

Moved Far in Holland Ahead of Columns.

UTRECHT, the Netherlands, May 24 (AP).—A tour of Dutch battlefields by correspondents today revealed more about the operation of German parachute troops who provided an aerial spearhead for the Nazi drive into the Low Countries.

Many parachute troops were landed far ahead of the advancing columns to keep the Dutch defenders from blowing up strategic bridges, such as those at Dordrecht, Rotterdam, and the two tremendous structures more than a mile long at Moerdijk.

The Dutch did blow up hundreds of bridges, but the Germans expected this and were prepared with pontoon bridges to cross streams where the spans were destroyed. But the parachute troops held the vital bridges intact for the advancing German legions.

Inadequate Defense Revealed.

The correspondents' tour also revealed how inadequately Holland was prepared to cope with the German motorized war machines which overran the country in five days.

In the Peel line fortifications of southern Holland, flooding, miles of barbed wire and lines of small concrete bunkers were the obstructions with which the Dutch hoped to halt the German advance.

Men in the little villages blew up bridges, then counted on troops in small trenches at the outskirts of their towns to hold up the advance.

Trees were dynamited to block roads, but the Germans said this was not expertly done. Heavy German artillery is moving over the roads now in endless procession toward the west.

Used Cannon Made in 1896.

The Germans said the Dutch were using German cannon made in 1896 and discarded as obsolete by the German army years ago.

The defenses on the Grebbe line, between Amersfoort and Rhenen, were less obsolete but inadequate to hold a modern army for long without extensive help. And, the Germans said, the French sent to Holland got no further north than Tilburg, only a few miles north of the Belgian border.

A German officer said that at one place the Dutch bunkers were placed along a canal at intervals of precisely 100 meters. Thus, he remarked, it was possible to train artillery on one, then with the use of mathematics pick them off right down the line.

Canal Roads Help Invader.

The third line fortifications known in Holland as the "new" or "main" water line, extended from east of Amsterdam south over Utrecht and included Rotterdam.

Rotterdam, invaded by soldiers from the air, reinforced by those who crossed the Hollandsche Diep, fell when Utrecht did.

The fine roads along the Dutch canals also were of tremendous benefit to the motorized German army.

Britain Considering Trade Mission to Moscow, Report

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—Britain was reliably reported today to be considering the dispatch of a trade mission to Moscow. This would be in line with Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government policy of seeking improved relations with soviet Russia.

GERMAN ARMIES TIGHTEN NOOSE AROUND ALLIES

marched westward to the River Lys—the last natural barrier in Belgium on the way to the North sea, which is about 40 miles from the Lys.

In announcing the seizure of the fortified city of Tournai, the high command said that the French fortress at Maubeuge, lying behind the German front, "is in German hands after the capture of the last fortified works."

Now that the Germans have crashed thru the Scheldt lines the northern wings were expected to launch an energetic drive toward the coast.

Gen. Georg von Kuechler, who had his headquarters at Antwerp, was expected to head for Ostend and Bruges. The army of Gen. Walther von Reichenau, located at about the middle of the northern wing, probably will attempt to pierce French positions in the general direction of Calais and Dunkirk.

Aim to Crush Enemy.

The Germans hope to break up the allied forces into small groups. It was believed the Germans will try to crush these groups between their armies, pressing westward in spearlike formations while similar wedges are driving northward from the German army holding the east-west front from Sedan to the channel.

The Germans, it was anticipated, will try to surround Belgian and French fortresses and gradually seek to starve, bomb, or shell them into capitulation.

The Germans said that the position of the allies is rendered more difficult by the desperate plight of the population in the beleaguered provinces with refugees scattered in all directions vainly trying to break thru the lines to safety.

Northwest of Arras the Germans captured Loretto Heights, while strong German motorized forces were heading for Boulogne and Calais.

Sink Six Transports.

The French forces again tried to break thru to the rescue of their countrymen trapped in the German salient to the sea by attacking Amiens, but the Germans described the attempt as "weak" and announced that it had failed.

The German air force continued its systematic raids in the French interior and at sea. Near Boulogne it was announced that bombers scored hits on a cruiser and three destroyers and six transports and their crews were sunk.

British flyers continued to attack cities in Germany. The Nazis described the raids as of no "special military significance." That these attacks were on a larger scale than heretofore admitted was disclosed by the fact that in Hamburg 33 victims of air raids were buried simultaneously.

Germans meanwhile expressed a conviction that by next week, at the latest, Hitler's air force and navy will start their attack against England.

HELD TO JURY FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

A coroner's jury yesterday recommended that James Wire, 24 years old, 736 South Oakley boulevard, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death last Saturday of Eugene Molemby, 37, of 5501 Cornell avenue, a stereotyper. Molemby died after being struck by Wire during a quarrel.

RUMANIANS WAR ON 5TH COLUMN; QUARTERS RAIDED

Guard Against Traitors Jeopardizing Defenses.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 24.—Police raided a number of buildings here today as the beginning of a city-wide checkup on possible fifth column agents. Gen. Roderig Modreanu, police prefect of Bucharest, warned that everybody must carry an official identity card or passport and show it whenever police or other authorities ask for it. The order was followed by a series of raids. Police lines surrounded buildings, while officers checked the identity of all persons inside.

The Rumanians feel safer now than they did a few days ago and they intend to take no chance on anybody who might undermine the nation's defense system.

Foreigners Must Leave.

By a week from today every foreigner who has entered Rumania since the war started must leave the country, unless he has obtained a permit to work here, or go to a concentration camp. That will get rid of all "tourists" who have outstayed their welcome and all others who cannot show good reasons for being here.

So far it has been impossible to learn what effect this decree will have on the status of such personages as Col. Josef Beck, former Polish foreign minister, who now is in Bucharest for dental treatment. He had been living in Brasov, unable to get a visa for France.

Rumania has shown in the past that she can deal violently with those who use violence, but official sources deny rumors that leaders among the former semi-Nazi Iron Guardists have been shot.

Two Are Arrested.

A responsible personage said to me, "When we shoot people, we are not afraid to say so. When we shot plotters last fall, we announced it. If anybody had been shot recently, you would have been told."

It was officially stated that two former leaders of the now suppressed Iron Guard were arrested last Saturday and are being held.

With 300,000 additional troops already called up for instruction, the country has put itself in a strong position. There now are about 1,300,000 in the army, probably as many as could be equipped.

Rumanians were pleased today at the endorsement of a safety measure for the Danube river by the European Danube commission which, by treaty, has jurisdiction over the lower part of the great river from Braila, Rumania, to the Black sea.

The commission, which met at Gala, includes British, German and French members as well as Italian and Rumanian. It announced it had approved the ban on navigation of the Danube by any armed vessel of any sort, unless the vessel belongs to one of the countries on the river and is within its own waters. The commission also approved a ban on the export of arms and explosives on the river.

The restrictions are intended to prevent any possible expeditions to block the river or seize important points on it.

ALLIES CLAIM 300 NAZIS SURROUNDED IN NORTHERN NORWAY

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—Allied forces in Norway have surrounded 300 Germans at Jernvattnet, five miles north of Rombaksfjord, Exchange Telegraph, British news agency, reported tonight in a dispatch from Stockholm.

Claim Cruisers Bombed.

BERLIN, May 24 (AP).—The German radio announced tonight that two British cruisers had been bombed by German air raiders in the region of Narvik, Norway, and "must be considered total losses." The announcement also said that a battleship and another vessel had been struck by bombs.

Talk of Neutralization.

STOCKHOLM, May 25, Saturday [Special].—Rumors that private interests are busy on a proposal to "neutralize" Narvik under Swedish auspices were supplemented today with a report Germany has agreed to consider such a proposition. Under the rumored scheme, it is said, Germany would be able to "save the face" of its hard pressed troops in Narvik. Norwegian circles are understood to regard such a scheme as wholly unacceptable.

NO IMMEDIATE INVASION FEAR, EXPERTS AGREE

But Hope U. S. Defenses Will Be Bolstered.

(The Tribune continues a survey of the actual and potential strengths of the United States military establishments.)

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—Army and navy military experts agree there is no immediate fear of invasion of either North or South America. They are pleased that the national attention has been focused on defense needs and are striving to get all they can to bolster defenses while the public is in a rearming mood, but confess it would be better if such interest could be sustained over a regular, orderly defense program rather than blow hot or cold with world events.

At present the army has plans to place some 600,000 men into the field on mobilization day, the day it would be recognized that a foreign power was threatening America's shores. Under the expansion program before congress this initial protective force would be stepped up to 750,000 and 250,000 replacements.

The backbone of the force which could be called to the colors tomorrow would be the 228,000 men in the regular army, the 235,000 in the National Guard and the 145,000 in the reserves. The regulars would be used as a first line to take the front in any threatened area.

Guard Strategic Areas.

Regulars might be sent into Canada, Mexico, or Caribbean Islands where an invader might attempt to establish a base of operations against continental United States. If no United States territory was threatened they would be put to guarding strategic areas and training recruits.

The National Guard, too, would be sent to the front as rapidly as it could be organized if danger threatened. They would be given the same assignments as regulars.

The reserve officers would be put in charge of volunteer regiments, which could be whipped into service condition early because of previous training, if such regiments should be needed at once.

The army has plans to enlist at least 500,000 men in the first 60 days of war. It is hoped that 300,000 men could be added in the first month of war and perhaps as many as 500,000 at the end of the second. In the world war only about 80,000 men were recruited in the first two months after hostilities began.

Reserve Training Corps.

It is hoped that volunteers will come from graduates of the reserve officers training corps, citizens military training camps, the Civilian Conservation corps and those who have received Civil Aeronautics authority flying training.

Such volunteers could be readily transformed into troops which could go against an invader should it be necessary. They could also aid in the training of men without any military training.

These troops would be receiving training while the universal draft would be getting under way. On present plans the army would call all men between the ages of 21 and 35 in the first call and extend the ages to 18 to 45 in the second.

During the world war calls were taken in smaller age groups. By starting operations on a larger scale, the army believes it would organize more efficiently and rapidly.

Will Fight Parachutists.

In the ranks of home guardsmen, while younger men are in training, the army hopes to muster all over age or rejected rifle, revolver, and shotgun sportsmen. They could be expected to render valuable service in guarding against parachute troops.

These men would be valuable because of their excellent marksmanship and given patrol work of other descriptions. It is not believed that it would be necessary to train these men extensively in military organization.

The army also has extensive plans to mobilize civilians where needed for specific work, such as truck drivers, bus drivers and even automobile owners and their vehicles to transport troops and supplies.

Build Defensive Works.

In the civilian line of defense laborers might be called upon at any time to build defensive works. Housewives might even be called upon to cook or nurse wounded.

In the event of war the army has plans under which it will seek to mobilize every citizen in the country if necessary for any period of time at any task, considered vital, for as long as is necessary. Under the plan which embraces soldier civilian and even children, the army is confident it can resist any invader by land.

[Another story on America's land, sea, and air strength will appear tomorrow.]

Defenders on Land

(Story in adjoining column.)

Comparison of mobilization day strength of American armed forces as now provided with initial army proposed in expansion program before congress.

Classifications of initial armed forces now organized.

The war department counts on enlistments of at least 500,000 during the first two months of war and hopes the number may reach 800,000, while the number enrolled within two months after hostilities started in 1917 was only 80,000.

ARMY AIR CORPS EXPANSION BILL PASSES, 391 TO 1

House Removes Limit on Number of Planes.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—By a 391 to 1 vote the house late today gave the army unlimited authority to purchase airplanes, to enlarge the training force of flying cadets to 8,500 men, and to remove other restrictions on the rapid expansion of the nation's military forces.

Rear Admiral John H. Towers
[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Only the voice of Representative Vito Marcantonio, American Labor party member from New York City who was elected with communist party support, was raised in dissent to the army expansion measure.

Naval Expansion Approved.

At the same time the senate naval affairs committee unanimously reported a bill authorizing an increase in the statutory limit on naval planes from 3,000 to 10,000; the establishment of training facilities for 16,000 naval aviators, and the establishment or completion of 20 naval air bases in the United States and its outlying possessions.

The ultimate cost of such a program was estimated at 2 billion 200 million dollars. The bill authorizes $124,132,000 for the air bases.

The house also moved swiftly to register its indorsement of the 3 billion 300 million dollar appropriations for the national defense program which swept thru the senate without a dissenting voice on Wednesday and Thursday.

Other Defense Developments.

Other developments on the Washington front included:

1. Announcement by President Roosevelt of plans to train 50,000 civilian pilots during the new fiscal year starting July 1. Individuals receiving this primary training under the supervision of the Civil Aeronautics administration will not be of finished military value, it was emphasized, but they will furnish first class material for advanced training courses in the army, navy, and marine corps air service.

2. The house appropriations committee prepared to hold brief hearings on the two senate bills appropriating $3,297,009,452 for the army and navy. It was considered possible that the house might accept the senate bills without sending them to conference, a procedure which might send the measures to the White House early next week.

Reveal Naval Plane Figures.

3. Members of the senate naval affairs committee expressed amazement when Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, testified that the navy will have only 1,902 fighting planes by July 1, 1941. The navy now has only 1,367 combat planes, of which only 909 are less than three years old, Admiral Towers testified.

4. Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] introduced a resolution calling for a special senate investigation of fifth column activities and other subversive influences affecting the aramaments procurement program. Reynolds said the Dies house committee on un-American activities had performed a great public service, and that a senate investigation concerned solely with the national defense program would not interfere with that committee's work.

Communist Employés Barred.

The bill passed by the house authorized President Roosevelt to spend 132 million dollars in his discretion upon projects affecting the nation's military defenses. A rider was added, however, stipulating that no part of this fund might be used to pay the salaries of any communist, Nazi, or Fascist. This amendment, sponsored by Representative Ed Gossett [D., Tex.], was indorsed by a voice vote.

The Democratic majority appeared to be unaware of the implications carried in this proviso. The leaders later confessed chagrin when reminded that the amendment indicated congressional fear that the President's special fund might be used to pay the agents of Stalin, Hitler, or Mussolini.

Another amendment added to the measure by house action gives the President authority to bar the export of any materials, including military equipment, tools, strategic, and critical materials if he finds that they are necessary to the national defense.

G. O. P. Plan Defeated.

Republicans led an attempt to create a national defense authority of five industrial executives who would assist the President in mobilizing industrial resources and making plans for production of national defense materials. When the Democratic majority succeeded in defeating this proposal, 149 to 128, Representative D. Lane Powers [R., N. J.], author of the amendment, said it was an evidence that the Democrats had no desire to entrust the defense program to others than "professional soldiers and politicians."

The only restriction placed upon the administration in its army expansion program was a provision that the secretary of war must consider civil service requirements in employing personnel. This limitation was approved by a vote of 197 to 102.

Tax Question Raised.

The house debate on the army air corps expansion bill found both parties agreed on the necessity for building up a great air force. Republicans inquired, however, if taxes should not immediately be drafted to pay for the staggering cost of the projected defense program in view of the proximity of the national debt to the statutory 45 billion dollar limit.

Congress was also urged to stay in session to keep in touch with developments and there was criticism of President Roosevelt's request for a blank-check fund. The bill before the house authorized the appropriation of 132 million dollars which might be spent by the President for war department needs. An additional fund of similar size is asked for the President to spend, in his discretion, on the navy.

Urges "Deficit Taxes."

"We should have taxes to pay for the additional cost of this program," declared Representative Walter G. Andrews [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the military affairs committee, "and they should be known not as 'defense taxes' but as deficit taxes.'

"We have spent four and a half billion dollars on the war department alone in the last 10 years, yet we have not a modern fighting force. Of the 242,000 men in the army at present only 104,000 are available in the United States as front line troops."

"The country is in a woeful state of unpreparedness," chimed in Representative Dewey Short [R., Mo.]. "Where have the billions gone?"

In explaining his 50,000 pilot training program, President Roosevelt said that it represents an expansion of the CAA training program which is giving primary training to 10,000 civilians in the current year.

Men from Three Sources.

The broadened program, Mr. Roosevelt said, will draw men from three main sources:

1. The schools and colleges at which the 10,000 civilians were trained this year.

2. A large group of citizens who have private flying licenses of various sorts.

3. Men of 18 to 25 who are not enrolled in any school or college but are willing to undertake such training.

Funds for this primary training, the President said, will be entirely supplemental to the defense appropriations now being rushed thru congress. He would not estimate the total of extra appropriations which will be asked for. He recalled that the CAA began its program last year with an initial $4,000,000 appropriation.

Sweden Asks 31 Millions More for Defense Purposes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 24 (AP).—The Swedish government today asked parliament for a special appropriation of $31,000,000 to augment defense preparations. A military spokesman estimated Sweden's defense measures now are costing the government about $50,000,000 monthly.

FRENCH WOMEN PLAY VITAL ROLE IN WAGING WAR

Handle Key Jobs, Even on the Railways.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 24.—Every day brings additional evidence that France is mobilizing her woman power and making it an integral part of the French war machine. This is in compliance with the Boncour law, adopted a dozen year ago, which requires every French citizen, "regardless of sex or age," to serve in time of war.

French women have rallied to the call of the nation, rendering service as nurses, telegraphers, ambulance drivers, and map makers. They are also employed on railways. Furthermore, in the very near future, French women will blossom out as "soldierettes," in the literal sense of the term, with uniforms, rank, and military discipline.

In addition, thousands of French women, altho retaining their civilian status, now are subject to military authority. The ministry of labor has announced the peacetime right of resigning a job has been abolished, with particular reference to feminine employés of the government.

Curb on Private Companies.

This action has been taken to prevent feminine employés from abandoning their governmental jobs in order to work in munitions plants or to move to more desirable districts.

Private firms also are forbidden to give employment to persons who have forsaken work for the French state.

In order to provide competent railroad women, the French national railroads have created a training center near Paris. It already boasts 35 graduates who have been put to work on jobs formerly held by men. These railroad women serve as switchwomen, turntable operators, and inspectors. Several crews of women for oiling and cleaning locomotives also have been organized. [Here 47 words were censored.]

A Radical Innovation.

However, the most radical innovation for bringing women into war work is the recruiting office just opened in Paris for the enlistment of "feminine auxiliaries of military formations." Applicants have the choice of joining for a year or for the duration of the war. Once accepted, they will serve as auxiliaries of the army and not as workers in offices or factories.

Altho these "soldierettes" will be given various ranks, they will not be billeted in barracks. They will not be lodged or fed by the government except when serving in the advanced army zone, which is announced as an eventuality. However, they will be better paid than male soldiers.

Receive a Uniform.

So far the women who have applied for enlistment are youthful. The age limit is from 21 to 55. A khaki uniform, consisting of a skirt, shirt, tie, blouse and a cap will be given each member.

French feminists consider the enlistment of women in the army as a distinct victory. They hope it will aid them after the war in winning the right of suffrage. For the moment woman suffrage propaganda has been silenced by the feminists themselves, but once the fighting is over, it may be expected to break forth again, with the war service of French women as a vital argument.

AIR BLITZKRIEG RIPS DEFENSE IN U. S. MANEUVERS

Camp Beauregard, La., May 24 (AP).—The greatest gap in American air defenses—lack of "stuka" or dive bombing warplanes — was revealed today when an "enemy" red army defeated a numerically superior defense force in the nation's first experiment with a blitzkrieg.

In this test pursuit planes had to do the work of nonexistent stukas and brought to an end three weeks of war maneuvers, largest in United States peacetime history.

Military observers indicated tonight the demonstration would reopen the question of the value of attack aviation and bring pressure to reëstablish an attack bomber wing in the air corps, abandoned last year in favor of light bombing.

Hitler has demonstrated, it was pointed out, that "lightning war" cannot be repulsed without attack aviation—small planes, easy to handle, carrying small bombs and big machine guns, and having a cruising range of 2,000 miles.

The pursuit planes used in today's simulated conflict have but a 500 mile flying radius, and in warfare would never have regained their bases.

British 'Henry Ford' Tells Labor to Work and Pray

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—Lord Nuffield, the "Henry Ford of England," advised munitions workers and others on the seven day work week today to work and pray. "Every good living person devotes the proper time to prayer," he said, "but when fighting the ungodly, no one will feel that he is despoiling the sabbath by working for a just cause."

INDICTED OPTICAL FIRMS AGREE TO SUPPLY EMPIRES

U. S. Will Drop Charge of Illegal Monopoly.

New York, May 24 (AP).—An alleged Germany-controled monopoly in the manufacture and sale of precision optical instruments essential to implements of war was broken today under an arrangement by the government and manufacturers of such apparatus.

As the result of the agreement, Britain and France and their allies will be able to purchase such equipment—including range finders, gun sights, bomb sights, and periscopes—in this country.

Charges to Be Dropped.

Also, an authoritative source said, the government will drop its criminal antitrust action against the major manufacturers and distributors of such instruments—the Bausch & Lomb Optical company of Rochester, N. Y., the Carl Zeiss company of Germany and New York, and individual officers of these companies.

Instead, this source said, a consent decree, or injunction, will be filed in Federal court on Monday under which the companies will agree to cease the alleged antitrust violations.

When the firms were indicted on March 26, the government charged that for 19 years Bausch & Lomb and Zeiss had had a working agreement dividing the world market for their instruments. Under this plan, it was alleged, Bausch & Lomb refused to sell to foreign countries and Zeiss refused to sell to the United States unless the other consented, and then only when both agreed to the price.

Refusal to Finland Charged.

Because of this agreement, the complaint said, Bausch & Lomb and other companies refused in August, 1939, to fill an order for 10 antiaircraft height and range finders and 22 marine range finders for Finland and in 1938 failed to answer an inquiry about height finders.

Government attorneys charged also that the Rochester company had charged unreasonably high prices to purchasers, including the United States government.

At that time, M. Herbert Eisenhart, Bausch & Lomb president, explained that he had held exclusive license since 1921 for the use of all Zeiss patents issued in the United States and added that the company had "deemed it for the best interests of all concerned to confine its production of military instruments to the sole use of the United States government."

Subsequently the companies and individuals named in the indictment pleaded innocent.

Rockefeller Family Gives $100,000 to Red Cross

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—A $100,000 contribution from Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. and their five sons brought to $2,128,176 today the amount contributed toward the $10,000,000 Red Cross war relief drive begun May 10. The Rockefeller gift, together with other large and small contributions, made the day's total more than $500,000. "Because the need is widespread and so appalling, a goal of twice $10,000,000 would seem all too little in the face of this most ghastly tragedy of modern times," Rockefeller wrote.

ALIEN BAR RIDER MAY KILL LABOR PRACTICES BILL

Radicals Fear Defeat of La Follette Measure.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—An amendment by Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], provoked such a controversy in the senate today as to threaten defeat for the La Follette labor practices bill, despite its support by the Roosevelt administration.

The La Follette bill is intended, according to its proponents, to prevent industrial espionage and the use of industrial munitions by employers. Its opponents call it a measure to wreck American industry by extending government protection to "fifth column" and other subversive activities.

Senator Reynolds offered an amendment requiring that 90 per cent of all employés of industrial firms and other establishments affected by the bill be American citizens. As to the other 10 per cent, the Reynolds amendment would give employment preference to aliens who had made application for citizenship.

Recess Without Action.

Indicating apprehension that the senate would adopt the Reynolds amendment, Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky and other supporters of the bill sought to modify and weaken the amendment. The senate finally recessed without voting on anything.

Reynolds declared that thousands of aliens have been coming into this country illegally each year and remaining here illegally.

"There is no real, imminent danger of an attack upon this country from without," Reynolds said. "The great danger is right here within the United States."

Senator Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.], supporting the Reynolds amendment, declared that un-American, alien-minded persons are undermining the American form of government. Apparently referring to Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin and other New Dealers, Smith continued:

"And we have in this body men who either do not understand our form of government or despise it. Take this bill that we are considering today and read it in the light of real Americanism!

"We stand here day after day and week after week and debate laws or propositions that every one of us in our hearts knows is a disgrace to a democratic form of government! Every one of you took the same oath that I did to uphold the constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and come right down here and join the enemy.

"I do not say you did it consciously; but our constitution got so terrifically in the way of those who did not believe in it that we were requested to give them a new set of judges who would interpret it according to their viewpoint."

White House Uses Pressure.

As opponents of the La Follette bill expressed confidence for the first time of being able to recommit it, the word was passed around thru the senate cloakrooms that the White House had ordered the war and navy departments to cease their opposition to the measure.

Foremost proponents of the bill are the communist party, John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, and other New Deal radicals.

Fresno, Cal., May 24 (AP).—A bull charged Charles C. Cole today as the 59 year old rancher stepped from his car stalled in a field. He was gored and trampled to death.

INVADED NORWAY STRIVES TO KEEP INDUSTRIES ALIVE

OSLO, Norway, May 24 (AP).—Struggling to safeguard its economic future, German occupied southern Norway is seeking home substitutes for the usually imported supplies and raw materials needed to keep its industries going. The allied naval blockade has cut off not only the incoming supply of raw material but has blocked exports.

Johan Vogt, noted economist, estimated today the loss—largely from curtailment of shipping and such important exports as whale oil—had cut the national income 15 per cent.

STATE RIFLEMEN MAP ENTRY IN DEFENSE PATROL

Move for Civilian Reserve Gains New Impetus.

BY BOB BECKER.

Members of the Illinois Rifle association, keenly interested in the possibilities of the sportsmen's defense reserve, are preparing to consider active participation in the movement.

Lloyd Howell.

"A meeting of the board of direction has been called," Lloyd Howell, 7605 Yates avenue, president, said last night. "We have more than 300 expert riflemen in our state group and, altho we have not taken official action, our members are enthusiastic about this patriotic move."

In addition to the Illinois Rifle association, requests for information are pouring in from other rifle organizations, with a combined membership of more than 1,000 experienced shootmarksmen.

Marksmen Ready to Join.

Marksmen from seven states have asked how to join the defense reserve, a voluntary civilian organization of skeet and trapshooters, riflemen, and other sportsmen, whose organization plans first were announced in THE TRIBUNE last Saturday.

Walter C. Peacock, Chicago merchant who is head of the organizing committee of the new group, said that 16 Chicagoland rifle clubs were represented at the first informal meeting of the defense group, including officers of the Illinois Rifle association and the Chicago Rifle club.

Definite plans for the new movement will be made at a meeting of the organization committee Monday noon in the Chicago Athletic club. The committee is composed of representatives of skeet and trap clubs, rifle clubs, sportsmen's clubs, and country clubs which have shooting facilities.

Sportsmen Back Program.

Following are comments of leading riflemen who have indorsed the sportsmen's corps:

John R. Walker, 907 North Hayes avenue, Oak Park, president of the Westric Rifle club, which is composed of employés of the Western Electric company—All of the members of our club are heartily in favor of the sportsmen's defense reserve.

Ken N. Smith, 3037 Carroll avenue, president of the Chicago Rifle club—We have more than 35 active members, most of whom are expert in the use of military rifles. Our group favors the sportsmen's defense reserve.

E. T. Wood, 5131 Michigan avenue, executive officer of the Federal Employés' Rifle and Pistol club—All the officers of our group of 125 shooters are heartily in favor of the sportsmen's defense reserve and want to do everything possible to aid this patriotic movement.

Dr. A. H. Grindy, 4000 North avenue, president of the Sylvan Rifle club and life member of the National Rifle association—In my opinion the sportsmen's defense reserve is a wonderful idea which should promote the use of rifles. As an ex-service man interested in national defense, I think all riflemen are in favor of any such movement designed to aid our country.

Russell Petit, 6229 South Artesian avenue, member of the Morgan Park Junior College Alumni Rifle club—Our group is in full favor of the sportsmen's defense reserve and stands ready to coöperate in any possible way.

Victor H. Rylander, 464 Taft street, Gary, president of the Gary Rifle club—We have 45 active riflemen who are familiar with both .22 and .30 caliber rifles, and our members are in favor of the sportsmen's defense reserve. We shoot rifles for a hobby, but in case of an emergency our hobby could be utilized in the defense of our homes.

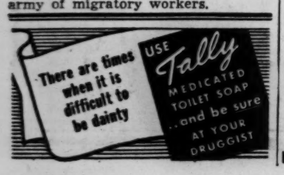
Walter G. LaVahn, 7114 West 34th street, Berwyn, in charge of the Electro Motive Corporation Employés' Gun club, La Grange—We have the most active industrial shooting club in the country, with 275 members who use shotguns, rifles, and pistols. More than 150 of these members shoot rifles, and a number of our men are big game hunters who can handle high powered guns. The sportsmen's defense reserve headed by Mr. Peacock has spurred interest in shooting among the 3,000 employés in our company."

REMINDS NATION IT HAS RELIEF NEEDS AT HOME

Helen Gahagan, former stage actress, the wife of Melvyn Douglas, screen actor, and now a member of the California commission on rural labor, said last night the nation is neglecting its own dependents while sending funds overseas for relief. She addressed the national council of state public assistance and welfare directors in the Shoreland hotel.

"We can always seem to get money for Poland or France," she said, "but none for our next door neighbor."

She asserted the dust bowl had been caused by abuse of the soil by tenant farmers, and that increasing mechanization of farms had added to the army of migratory workers.



2 CHURCH PAPERS JOIN IN WARNING: KEEP COOL HEADS

Catholic, Protestant War Views Aired.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Two leading church journals yesterday demanded cool headedness in the United States as jingoists begin beating war drums. A Catholic journal—the New World, official organ of the archdiocese of Chicago—took its stand against panic mongers and insisted on strict American neutrality.

The Christian Century, influential Protestant journal, asked for some guarantee that the country will get more military protection from new defense appropriations than it did from the 8 billion dollars for that purpose "which have evaporated since President Roosevelt took office."

Waste of Money Charged.

"Three years ago Gen. Hagood charged that the money appropriated to the army for national defense was being wasted if national defense was the end sought," the Christian Century declared. "Now the charges such as those recently made by Gen. Drum and Gen. Haskell all add up to the general indictment that the army and navy staffs have been pouring money down the drain.

"Except in the mood of panic the American people would have demanded that congress examine with care such proposals as Mr. Roosevelt made in his message. They may be wise, but the striking thing has been the eagerness of congress to rush thru the $1,182,000,000 additional appropriation without knowing, except in vague generalities, how the money is to be spent."

New World Tells Stand.

The New World, admitting in the first line of its editorial that it is "on the spot," related why it is against this war, and against "the rising panic among Americans that we must throw our manhood into the struggle to save Christianity."

"Even tho the smoke of battle may clear," said the New World, "we feel that the festering sores of hatred never will.

"The moral issue is more obscure right now than the clouds which darken the horizon of war. Our participation in the long scale war might defeat Hitlerism—certainly no one desires the world to be dominated by its frightful ideology—still a victory will not definitely remove destructive philosophy and subversive forces, any more than 1918 erased infamy from Europe or helped, even a little, to save democracy for the world.

"In God's name, keep clear distinctions before your minds! We are not being invaded—our hurried preparation does not mean war: it means avoidance of war—hysteria has no place in these days which demand solid thought and action—we have no fifth column except those whose greed and purblind panic would send a million mothers' sons to death."

20 GUNMEN RAID TROTSKY HOME, BUT HE ESCAPES

Exile, Hurt Only Slightly, Blames Stalin.

MEXICO CITY, D. F., May 24 (AP).—Leon Trotsky was injured slightly and a secretary bodyguard was kidnaped in an attack on Trotsky's home early today by 20 machine gunners, incendiarists, and riflemen. The exiled Russian charged they were sent by Soviet Dictator Josef Stalin.

Leon Trotsky.

Sheldon Harte, 25 years old, of New York, who was on duty when the band of assassins attacked the suburban villa, was abducted and his fate is not known.

Trotsky's 15 year old grandson suffered a cut on one foot, apparently from a glancing bullet.

Trotsky, crouching with his wife in a corner of their bedroom behind thick stone walls to escape the machine gun blasts thru a window and bedroom door, was only cut about the face by flying splinters and glass.

Bullets Pepper Walls.

Bullets peppered the walls, pierced two doors, and ripped into the beds where the Trotskys had lain only a few minutes before.

One of Trotsky's secretaries, speaking for the 60 year old revolutionary and refugee from the soviet Russia he helped create, declared "the attack was personally directed by Joseph Stalin." Trotsky, one-time war commissar and a lieutenant of Lenin in the bolshevist revolution of 1917, has been a sharp critic of the Stalin régime.

The assailants, disguised as Mexico City policemen, hurled incendiary bombs into the yard to light the scene and then opened fire.

Police Guards Tied Up.

The attackers gained entry into the patio by tying up four Mexico City policemen in a guardhouse.

The door to Trotsky's office was broken open and from that room one group machine gunned the door to Trotsky's bedroom. Another gunner fired thru a window.

Police of the suburban village of Coyoacan heard the gunfire, but when they arrived the attackers had fled.

JOAN CRAWFORD ADOPTS BLONDE BABY DAUGHTER

New York, May 24 (AP).—Joan Crawford became a foster-mother today.

The screen star adopted a blue eyed, flaxen haired 2 month old girl and named her Christina.

Miss Crawford's business representatives said she obtained the baby from an eastern institution and had just completed legal details.

She recently obtained a divorce from Franchot Tone, screen and stage actor now appearing on Broadway.

Killed by Monoxide Fumes When Fixing Ambulance

Leon Marion, a mechanic, was accidentally killed by carbon monoxide fumes last night when repairing an ambulance in a garage at 43 West 18th street, where he was employed. He lived at 10 West 18th street.

ROOSEVELT DENIES HE IS CONSIDERING COALITION CABINET

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt stamped as cockeyed today any idea of a coalition cabinet. He told his press conference that all speculation about Republicans going into his cabinet for the purpose of having a nonpartisan defense administration was a case of barking up the wrong tree.

Such conjecture among politicians had been indulged in since conferences Roosevelt recently held with Republican leaders.

Talk of a coalition cabinet, the President told reporters, was made out of the whole cloth. He said this continues to be discussed and written about with nothing to substantiate the idea.

CHINESE RAKE FOE WITH CONCEALED GUNS ON RIVER

HONGKONG, May 24 (AP).—Chinese dispatches said today that large numbers of Japanese troops had been killed by camouflaged Chinese batteries while crossing tributaries of the Han river northwest of Tsaoyang, in northern Hupeh province in Central China.

The dispatches indicated that fighting in Hupeh was developing into possibly one of the major battles of the Chinese-Japanese war, with both sides suffering heavy casualties.

The Chinese said they were offering stiff resistance to the Japanese drive thru the province, but indirectly acknowledged that the Japanese were making headway by reporting the crossing of the Han tributaries.

RULE BY BUREAUS PERILS FREEDOM, STASSEN WARNS

Nation Must Guard Citizen Rights, Says Governor.

Gov. Stassen.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, youngest state executive in the United States and the man who will make the keynote address at the Republican national convention which opens June 24 in Philadelphia, Pa., addressed the Economic club of Chicago in the Palmer House last night on the basic problems of this democracy.

Stassen, who is 33 years old, said these problems have been greatly accelerated by the European war and consist largely in the challenge to make democracy more effective without surrendering the principles of the individual sovereign citizen.

He said the nation's problems are not to be met by a coalition cabinet or by government fomenting of class hatred. Public opinion is the great power in this country, he said, and it must be educated more and more in the direction of the basic concepts of this government, away from the trend toward greater centralization of power.

Minnesota Action Described.

Gov. Stassen said he had been chosen Republican keynoter after he had accepted the invitation to address the Economic club and therefore had to keep away from specific national issues. He discussed measures taken in Minnesota toward improving labor relations and in balancing the state budget and said these actions might be projected into the national picture.

"If democracy is to meet the challenge before it," he said, "it must find a way to become more effective. The challenge is to a form of government resting on free economic enterprise making itself more effective without surrendering the things it seeks to preserve.

"When we consider the trends today we see some that definitely are contrary to our basic concept. Power is gathered more and more into state and national capitals. We become centralized more and more. This is fundamentally unsound. The answer to any new problem is not to shrug the shoulders and let the government do it. We have learned by experience that royal economists can be just as mistaken as economic royalists.

Personal Perils Cited.

"The approach of government to any problem must be whether it can be solved by private enterprise and initiative. If not, then how little power is it necessary for the government to take. Government basically must be an aid to private enterprise, not a substitute. Power should reside in local government as far as it is feasible to do so. We cannot build the foundations of an effective democracy if we place in the same hands the power of judge, jury, and investigator.

"There must be an attitude of seeking to build unity, tolerance, and respect between economic groups. It is not an answer for government to stir the flames of class hatred. This forms the foundation for a fifth column."

Gov. Stassen said Minnesota has followed a simple and businesslike procedure to make government more effective. He told of the labor relations law in which the state insists that both sides to a controversy cool off for ten days before taking action. In the meantime the government summons both sides to seek a peaceful agreement. He said there have been no strikes or lockouts for a year. By coördinating government branches and by other means the state has a balanced budget, he said.

Gov. Stassen was presented by George W. Rossiter, president of the club.

GOVERNORS WILL AID ARMS PLAN, ROOSEVELT SAYS

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today that governors of the 48 states would meet in Duluth, Minn., about June 2 and that he understood their intention was to support and pledge coöperation to the defense program. It will be the regular annual meeting of the governors.

Mr. Roosevelt discussed the meeting yesterday with Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri. Asked whether Stark had indicated what line of cooperation the governors might follow, Mr. Roosevelt replied in the negative.

The chief executive discussed the governors' meeting at a press conference.

N. Y. REPUBLICANS AFFIRM DEWEY, BUT HAIL WILLKIE

Club Has a 'Feeling' for Latter.

New York, May 24 (AP).—Without reversing its indorsement of Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican presidential nomination, the New York Young Republican club tonight expressed "positive feelings" for Wendell L. Willkie, potential G. O. P. candidate.

The resolution declared that Willkie "has been strikingly effective in focusing the attention of the American people on the defects of the New Deal administration," and that "he therefore deserves the wholehearted commendation of the Republican party for his efforts."

Two Earlier Actions.

This action followed two special meetings of the club's board of governors, the first of which on May 8 resolved by a vote of 10 to 8 to switch their support to Willkie, the second last Wednesday rescinding this resolution while awaiting tonight's meeting of the full membership.

The club, which last March indorsed Dewey for the presidential nomination and later reaffirmed the indorsement, was the one in which Dewey first was active politically.

He is a former chairman of its board of governors.

Anti-Dewey sentiment in the club is linked to the differences between National Committeeman Kenneth F. Simpson, who is cool toward the Dewey candidacy, and State Chairman Edwin F. Jaeckle, a Dewey supporter. The division of sentiment came into the open during a convention of Young Republican clubs at Utica, where there was considerable activity in Willkie's behalf.

Willkie's Backer Explains.

Oren Root Jr., board member and self-proclaimed "one man Willkie movement," introduced tonight's resolution after a speech praising both candidates. He contended that a reversal by the club of its indorsement of Dewey would be construed as "a negative action and not a positive one."

Earlier today Dewey breakfasted with Alfred M. Landon, presidential candidate in 1936. What they discussed was not disclosed.

Afterwards, at a press conference, Landon said that President Roosevelt would have to take "a lot of men out of the doghouse" before the United States could have mass production necessary for national defense.

He referred to neither Republicans nor Democrats in particular, he said, but to "those men who are familiar with and are experienced experts in the line of mass production." Many such men had been "in the doghouse," he said, for the last seven years.

"The American people have had many shocks," he said at another point, "and are headed for a great many more."

Captain and 32 Go Down with British Minelayer

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—The admiralty disclosed tonight that four officers, including Capt. J. B. E. Hall, and 32 crewmen are missing and "presumed to be dead" in the sinking of the minelayer Princess Victoria, announced Tuesday. Seven officers and three of the crew were wounded.

U. S. WILL SEND ARMED CUTTER TO GREENLAND

New York, May 24 [Special].—The coast guard cutter George W. Campbell, one of the largest in the service, and mounting war guns, will leave its Staten Island base tomorrow for Godthaab, Greenland, with 1,000 pounds of American Red Cross supplies requested by James K. Penfield, first United States consul to Greenland. He sailed there on the cutter Comanche on May 10, the day the Germans invaded Holland and Belgium.

The Campbell is carrying a scouting airplane and also is said to have antiaircraft guns. It was said that she would be officially detailed to a six-months' tour of iceberg patrol duty. Many observers, however, believed her stay in Greenland would be indefinite and saw in it an increasing sign of United States preparedness in that zone. Greenland is nominally a Danish colony, but Denmark now is under German jurisdiction.

The Campbell is 327 feet long, has a 45-foot beam and makes 18 knots. She carries 10 officers and 150 men, and is expected to arrive at Godthaab within eight days.

Australia Puts Ban on 9 Communist Newspapers

CANBERRA, Australia, May 24 (AP).—The Australian government today announced the banning of nine communist newspapers.

BRITISH ACTORS IN U. S. RESENT RAP AT LOYALTY

New York, May 24 (AP).—British actors on Broadway vigorously resented a London actor-producer's intimation today that they were afraid to fight for their country.

"Our government has told us to stay where we are until called and any charge that we are deliberately avoiding returning home until the war is over is absurd," said Laurence Olivier, starring with Vivien Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet."

This was his and others' reply to Sir Seymour Hicks, who criticized Britons "gallantly facing the footlights" in New York.

TAFT HITS THIRD TERM; INDORSES LANDON'S STAND

New York, May 24 [Special].—United States Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio asserted here today that President Roosevelt has no intention of pursuing a course of real coöperation with Republicans in building a national defense program. Speaking to the Brooklyn Women's Republican club, he said the President is only making a show of coöperation.

Taking a stand with former Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential candidate in 1936, Senator Taft said nothing would contribute more to a unified, effective defense program than a declaration by the President that he would not accept a third term. The 1940 presidential aspirant called it "selfishly partisan" to use foreign affairs as an argument for a third term. No administration which subordinates preparedness to domestic policies, he added, is entitled to ask a third term.

Senator Taft also charged the administration with incompetence in both preparedness and financial matters, and said it "still permits its prejudice against business to hamper the development of defense."

Blast Damages Communist Meeting Hall in Scotch Town

LONDON, May 24 (AP).—An explosion of uncertain origin tonight damaged a hall at Bellshill, Lanarkshire county, Scotland, used as a meeting place by members of the local communist party. There were no casualties.

We are Willing to Pay $52 per Week to Union Milk Truck Drivers

Two weeks' vacation at full pay every year { We will pay our men for present strike time off—if accepted at once

AN OPEN LETTER to Mayor Edw. J. Kelly: The City Council: The Corporation Counsel of the City of Chicago: from SAM E. DEAN

Gentlemen:

We can solve Chicago's milk famine.

We are ready to supply the people of Chicago with finest Grade A milk, with all the cream left in, at 8½c per quart through retail stores.

We will pay $52 per week to Union milk truck drivers for wholesale delivery to retail stores.

Also, we will give each driver two weeks' vacation every year at full pay. Further than that, we will pay our drivers for time off because of this strike if offer is accepted at once.

We will deliver all milk in the revolutionary new paper bottle that was approved by the Chicago Board of Health on October 16, 1939. The same bottle that was approved by the United States Public Health Service long before that.

It is the same paper bottle, gentlemen, that is approved by all Chicago suburbs, and in which they have been receiving Dean's Milk and Cream since November, 1938. It is the same paper bottle that is used in over 500 cities throughout the United States including Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Miami, Tampa, Buffalo, Detroit, Indianapolis, Dayton, Louisville, Chattanooga, Phoenix, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, Seattle, Oakland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, the Nation's Capital and 46 Chicago suburbs.

We show you here a picture of this sterilized, guaranteed sanitary, lightweight bottle. It weighs 1½ pounds less than the old fashioned glass bottle.

I believe you are fully aware of the needs of your people, and that you want every family to have the benefits of our remarkable value—8½c per quart. And we believe you will consider our offer of $52 per week to drivers more than fair.

Will you please let us have your official permit to start delivery at once of our Grade A Pasteurized Milk in the paper bottle the Chicago Board of Health has approved?

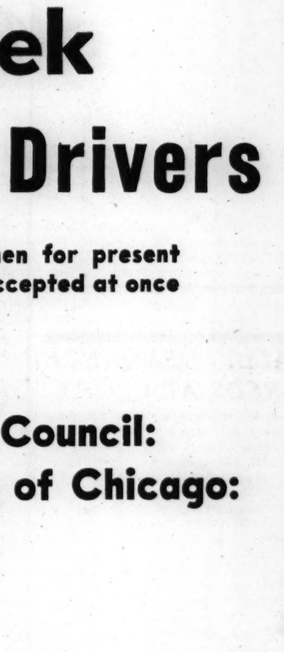
Let us stop this milk famine and the tragic dumping of milk from Illinois farms.

Yours for the best interests of the people of Chicago and Illinois.

Sincerely,

Sam E Dean

President, Dean Milk Co.



NOTE TO THE PUBLIC—

Get busy. Phone or write your alderman that you want milk this modern, economical way. Tell him that you want to put men back to work and help Illinois farmers. SAM E. DEAN

PUZZLE OF FRIDAY, MAY 24, SOLVED

IT'S WILLIS AND HILLIS FOR G. O. P. RACE IN INDIANA

U. S. Senate, Governor Entries Nominated.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 24 [Special].—Glen R. Hillis of Kokomo, lawyer, industrialist and Legionnaire, was nominated for governor by acclamation in the middle of the second roll call today by the Republican state convention. Raymond E. Willis, Angola publisher, earlier had been nominated without opposition for United States senator. He was party nominee two years ago and was defeated by Senator Frederick Van Nuys. The Hoosier Republican delegates, 1,937 strong, with uproarious shouts, adopted a platform declaring against any adjournment of party politics on account of the war situation and against any party coalition, as suggested at Washington. The two party system, it said, is a safeguard against dictatorship. It criticized the New Deal for America's present unpreparedness.

Glen R. Hillis [top], R. E. Willis.

Delegates Uninstructed.

Indiana's 28 delegates to the Republican national convention at Philadelphia, June 24, are uninstructed according to State Chairman Arch N. Bobbitt. The four delegates at large were elected today; the 24 district delegates were elected at district meetings of the delegates last night. Scouts for Dewey, Taft, Vandenberg, Willkie are on the ground. Both the Dewey and the Taft supporters claim their man is favored by a majority of the individual delegates.

James Eli Watson, former United States senator, was elected one of the Big Four—he was a floor leader for President Taft in the 1912 convention at Chicago. He says this will be the 15th national convention he has attended. National committeeman William G. Irwin, another delegate at large, is favoring Willkie. The other two delegates at large are Bobbitt and William L. Hutcheson, president of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Hillis went over for governor in a bandwagon rush. It was in the midst of the second roll call. There was a field of seven. The first vote gave the following results:

Hillis, 840; William E. Jenner, 509; James A. Emmert, 315; David I. Hogg, 93; Clarence Benadum, 99; George R. Jeffrey, 79; Lem Trotter, 1.

Manufactures and Farms.

On the second ballot Marion county [Indianapolis] which had split its vote swung to Hillis. Then Senator Jenner withdrew his name and moved to make Hillis' nomination unanimous as did Jeffrey, former United States attorney.

Hillis is 48, and, altho an industrialist, loves to call himself "only a country boy"—he farms extensive acres.

He married Bernice Haynes, daughter of the late Elwood Haynes, who built one of the first automobiles—now in the Smithsonian institution. He was a metallurgist. Mrs. Hillis, also a metallurgist and a chemist of wide repute, helped her father in the development of stainless steel and stellite, hardest tool cutting material.

They have four children. Hillis, since the death of Haynes, has managed the estate; is interested in concerns that employ thousands of workers.

Other State Nominees.

Charles M. Dawson of Indianapolis was nominated for lieutenant governor on the second roll call.

Others nominated by acclamation for state or judicial office were:

State auditor—Richard T. James of Portland.

Secretary of state, James M. Tucker, Paoli.

Alternates to the national convention elected were: Walter R. Beardsley, Elkhart; Mark C. Honeywell, Wabash; Grace Evans, Terre Haute; Mrs. Leora Teetor, Hagerstown.

Presidential electors at large named were: George A. Ball, Muncie; M. Bert Thurman, Indianapolis. Contingent electors: N. C. Wright, Anderson; Mrs. Betty Neal Owen, Noblesville.

Keep Out of War Is Demand.

In the state platform the delegates demanded that America be kept out of Europe's war and that the strongest national defense be established.

In a separate resolution the convention asked Indiana's congressmen to oppose adjournment of congress "lest our form of government suffer from such adjournment."

The platform assailed present centralization of power in the federal government and in the president, warning that in "our participation in a major war under such leadership would produce a dictatorship."

Another plank called for "the strongest defense to make our shores secure against attack." "Waste of defense funds" in the last seven years of Roosevelt and the President's own confession of the nation's woefully inadequate preparedness were deplored.

Bars Politics in Defense.

Expenditure for armaments by a nonpartisan board of the best military and technical talent was demanded and that there be no politics or personal fortunes involved in disbursement of funds.

The 2 per cent Democratic slush fund club was denounced by the platform. Another plank demanded decentralization of liquor control and favored local authorities to grant liquor licenses.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio in his keynote speech to the convention also spoke against any party coalition.

Asks New 'Horse'

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Eileen O'Daniel, addressing Woman's National Republican club yesterday, assailed third term argument.

URGES CHANGING HORSES TO GET OUT OF STREAM!

We're Stuck, G. O. P. Women Are Told.

Miss Eileen O'Daniel, regional representative for the women's division of the Republican national committee, yesterday replied to those "New Dealers and some of our less thoughtful Republicans" who argue against changing horses in the middle of a stream.

"I think," she told the Woman's National Republican Club of Chicago, meeting in the Hamilton hotel, "that since we have been stuck in the middle of the stream for almost eight years, first struggling a few steps upstream, then drifting downstream, next trying to get to the right bank, then dashing headlong to the left bank, that the sooner we change horses the better.'

Recalls Wartime Decision.

"Don't forget," the speaker continued, "that we were faced with the necessity of carrying on our domestic affairs 'as usual' in the world war years from 1917 to 1918.

"No person can forteil what repercussions the events abroad may have upon our country. No person can foretell what qualities of leadership and administration will be needed in the next four years.

"Yet we all know the kind of leadership Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal have given us. The record of broken promises, class hatred, financial juggling, business hamstringing, and continuous unemployment is written plain for all to see."

Mrs. Baur Thinks Quickly.

Mrs. Bertha Baur, president of the club and national committeewoman, who presided, showed quick presence of mind shortly after she had introduced Miss O'Daniel. As she resumed her seat at the speakers' table, with several other women, the chairs of all suddenly tilted backward into a division in the platform.

A number of the 500 women present began screaming, but Mrs. Baur quickly regained her feet, helped those beside her to theirs, then quieted the audience. "Nobody's hurt," she called, then added, with a smile, "We're on our way," which was part of the chorus of a G. O. P. song the women had just heard.

Most of the state and county candidates spoke briefly, with the most enthusiastic greetings going to Wayland Brooks, nominee for United States senator, and Dwight H. Green, nominee for governor.

Brooks Rallies Women.

Brooks told the women their biggest job in 1940 was to fight for "our kind of government," and reminded them that America was one of the few countries left in the world in which the citizens had a choice in government.

Green discussed state issues, telling his feminine listeners that the sales tax should be removed from food and savings from 15 to 25 per cent effected in operating costs of the government.

Others making brief speeches included Speaker Hugh Cross of the Illinois house of representatives, nominee for lieutenant governor; Justus L. Johnson, for secretary of state; Arthur C. Lueder, for auditor; Stephan A. Day, for congressman at large; Charles S. Dewey, for congressman in the 9th district, and Warren Wright, for state treasurer.

Mrs. Dwight H. Green was introduced and remained for tea at the conclusion of the speaking program.

DO NOT ADJOURN CONGRESS, URGES GOVERNOR JAMES

Harrisburg, Pa., May 25 (AP).—Gov. Arthur H. James sent letters to Pennsylvania's United States senators and 34 representatives today asking them to oppose any move to adjourn congress during the international crisis.

The letters went out shortly after James returned from St. Paul, Minn., where he spoke on Wednesday night before the Minnesota Republican state committee and urged that congress remain in session as a "brake" on Presidential powers.

The governor called on Pennsylvania's congressional delegation "not to yield to hints or pressure to adjourn before the United States is adequately defended both from aggressors from without and fifth columns from within."

SOUND INDUSTRY VITAL U.S. NEED, WILLKIE WARNS

Calls on Republicans to Repair Damage.

Kansas City, Mo., May 24 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie said tonight "the Republican party would become America's first 'fifth column' if it failed to undertake its vital task of restoring sound government and sound industry in our land."

"We are facing a period of danger," the utility executive who has been mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate said in an address at a dinner of the National Republican club of Kansas City.

"In ten years of continuing unemployment, of enormous government deficits, of stagnant industry and frightened investment, we have become weak and dispirited at home.

Points to World Aflame.

"Meanwhile, the world abroad has burst into flames. Steadily the menace of war draws closer to our borders. Never has this 'sweet land of liberty' been in greater jeopardy.

"Two weeks ago the President... asked for more than a billion dollars for a vast defense program. Americans thruout the land understood and approved his words. The nation was of one heart and one mind in its desire for adequate national defense.

"In the excitement of the moment, there were a few who advanced a strange interpretation of this unanimity of feeling. They said that there was only one man capable of handling the defense program, namely the President, and that the Republicans should abandon all opposition.

Decries New Deal Spending.

"This theory can mean only one thing: That we the people should permit the New Deal to spend the billions of dollars for national defense just as it has spent the 60 billion dollars that have passed thru its hands in the past 7½ years.

"And I say to you that another four years of New Deal spending in this critical period will be ruinous to this country."

Asserting "we are today pitifully unprepared for even the most rudimentary defense," Willkie added: "The basic factor in national defense is a sound economic system.

"The first step in our defense system is to free American business from unnecessary restrictions . . . and to encourage the flow of capital into industry. This would create the best kind of army which any nation can have—an army of 10,000,000 working men."

DILLINGS DISRUPT RALLY, DENOUNCE REDS AT U. OF C.

The appearance of Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of Kenilworth, author of "The Red Network," and her husband, Albert W. Dilling, yesterday disrupted a so-called peace rally staged by the University of Chicago branch of the American Student union in Hutchinson court. The union has been labeled a communist front organization by the Dies committee.

The Dillings protested when a member of the Student Patriotic committee was prevented by police guards and Lyman Flook, superintendent of buildings and grounds, from distributing handbills. A shower of the papers then descended upon the 300 assembled students. They had been thrown aloft by Mr. Dilling and read, "Why be guinea pigs for Stalin's A. S. U.?"

"Arrest these people," called out Flook. Mrs. Dilling shouted back: "That's the best thing you can do." William Randall, dean of students, who was present, suggested instead that Mrs. Dilling be put off the campus to avoid further trouble. However, no move was made to eject her.

Later, when allowed to speak, Mrs. Dilling called President Robert M. Hutchins a communist and said this country did not need any "German-American bund or communist-American A. S. U. to tell us what to do for peace." Other speakers spoke in opposition to the armament program on the ground that armaments lead to war.

VERMONT G. O. P. HITS NEW DEAL; PICKS DELEGATES

Montpelier, Vt., May 24 (AP).—Vermont Republicans elected a nine member, unpledged delegation to their party's national convention today after charging the New Deal with blundering and urging that the task of building up the nation's defense be placed in G. O. P. hands.

The delegation, chosen at the party's state convention, will include both Senator Austin and Gov. Aiken.

The convention earlier had adopted a resolution demanding "coördination of all the nation's industrial resources for mass production of planes, ships, and all other instrumentalities of war necessary for the protection of the country."

Nevada Delegates Chosen.

Reno, Nev., May 24 (AP).—The state Republican convention named six uninstructed delegates to the national convention today. The delegation will be composed of Noble H. Getchell, national committeeman; Stuart Williams, state chairman; Morley Griswold, Frank McNamee Jr., Lloyd Smith, and C. R. Pugh.

STATE PRINTING RECORDS CALLED BEFORE INQUIRY

Springfield, Ill., May 24 [Special].—A subpena was served today upon the Illinois Printing company of Danville, Ill., and its president, J. E. McDermott, to produce Monday night records of state contracts and state payments before a house of representatives committee investigating extravagances and scandals of Gov. Henry Horner's sick bed regency.

It was also made known today that a subpena has been issued for John J. Donoghue, director of state printing to appear before the committee at the same time with his records of state printing, especially such records "as would indicate whether such contracts were let on a competitive basis." The quotation is from the subpena itself.

The subpenas indicated this phase of the committee's inquiry will cover a period from Jan. 1, 1938, to the present time. This period includes the campaigns of United States Senator Scott Lucas, who was backed by the state house machine. The Illinois Printing company is said to have produced campaign literature as well as state printing.

2 DIES AGENTS, POLICE OFFICER, ARE VINDICATED

Philadelphia, Pa., May 24 (AP).—Two agents of the Dies congressional committee investigating un-American activities and a Philadelphia police lieutenant were freed today of charges that they conspired to violate the civil liberties act.

United States Commissioner J. H. Malloy, in a 23 page brief, dismissed accusations brought by Carl Rieve, educational director of the communist party in eastern Pennsylvania, against Agents Chester Howe, George F. Hurley, and Lieut. Albert A. Granitz. They were arrested after a raid on communist party headquarters here April 2.

The commissioner said that in obtaining the raid warrant from Magistrate Jacob Dogole the committee agents did all they could to make certain it was legal.

"If there was any deficiency" in the warrant, he added, "it may be said to be attributed to the judicial officer who drew both the affidavit and the warrant."

Dodge Quits Honeymoon of Week for Hospital

Baltimore, May 24 (AP).—Horace E. Dodge Jr., Detroit automobile manufacturer, has entered Union Memorial hospital for a physical checkup. Dr. Walter L. Denny said Dodge entered the hospital late yesterday. He added no diagnosis of Dodge's condition could be given now. Dodge, 40 year old millionaire, was married here last week to Miss Martha Devine, former Vanities' girl from Dorchester, Mass.

BALLINGER AND ICKES.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes now believes that a great injustice was done to Richard Ballinger, who was secretary of the interior under President Taft. Mr. Ballinger was the victim of a smear campaign, says Mr. Ickes, a campaign calculated to create the impression that Mr. Ballinger was a crook who was selling out the public domain in utter disregard of the trust reposed in him. In his article in the Saturday Evening Post, Mr. Ickes says he has gone carefully into the record, including the secret files of his office, and has come to the conclusion that Mr. Ballinger was a thoroly honorable man and an able public servant whose conduct in and out of office was unexceptionable.

Mr. Ickes rightly calls attention to the fact that the enemies of Ballinger never drew up a bill of particulars. Their charges were stated in the vaguest terms. No specific allegations of wrongdoing were presented to be proved or disproved, and no misdeeds were ever found. Mr. Ickes concludes that Mr. Ballinger was driven to resignation not by disclosures of misconduct but by baseless innuendoes.

It was handsome of Mr. Ickes to make this defense of his predecessor, particularly as Mr. Ickes himself had belonged to the faction which had organized the smear. In view of his act of restitution it is to be regretted perhaps that Mr Ickes himself cannot be similarly befriended when his official conduct comes to be scrutinized, as one day it surely will be.

So far as Mr. Ickes' public career is concerned there will be no lack of a bill of particulars. It will be alleged and proved that he approved the squandering of stupendous sums of public money for ill conceived hydro-electric projects, of which Grand Coulee is the most conspicuous example. It will be alleged and proved also that Mr. Ickes was not merely the victim of poor judgment in these matters. The government's own engineers had examined the proposals and had rejected them as unsound.

It will be shown that the administration yielded to political pressure in shameless disregard of trust. It may be presumed that a man as honorable as Mr. Ickes believes Mr. Ballinger to have been would have resigned rather than permit himself to be used in this fashion, but Mr. Ickes neither resigned nor even objected. He went along humbly. The American people were being gypped and he had every reason to know it, but there wasn't a peep from him at the time and there hasn't been a peep since.

In 1927 congress authorized an inquiry into the development of the Columbia river. The government's engineers reported on July 31, 1931. This report was available, certainly, in 1933 when the authorization for Grand Coulee was made. As Prof. Henry E. Riggs, former head of the department of civil engineering at the University of Michigan, said in a carefully prepared paper, "this report disclosed strong adverse recommendations" as far as Grand Coulee is concerned. The project was not approved then or in a subsequent report, also available before the authorization. Nevertheless Mr. Ickes' bureau of reclamation is squandering some 400 million dollars on Grand Coulee and its appurtenances.

There is no market for the power to be produced there and unless the power is sold at a profit, as the government's engineers had said, the reclamation aspects of the project must show a tremendous loss.

The comment of Daniel W. Mead, professor emeritus of the University of Wisconsin, is in point. Prof. Mead said:

"The Grand Coulee project, as an immediate objective, was utterly condemned by official reports of the army engineers, the reclamation service [a bureau in Mr. Ickes' department], and the agriculture department before it was undertaken under executive order. . . ."

The charge which Mr. Ickes will face will be specific. He will be accused of betraying the trust reposed in him by squandering hundreds of millions of dollars of public money on hydro-electric projects which he had reason to know were unsound and had been condemned as such by his own engineering staff.

LONGER HOURS IN PLANE FACTORIES.

Today and tomorrow are work days in the armament factories of France and Great Britain. The 30 hour week which was put into effect by a former French premier has been abolished. And in Britain the argument that there was no necessity for modifying the short work day and the short work week so long as 1¼ million persons were unemployed is not now sufficiently persuasive.

For there is a superfluity of certain kinds of labor, there has been a shortage of the particular kinds of skilled hands the munitions factories can use, with the result that the armament industries have not been supplying allied soldiers with a sufficient quantity of planes, tanks, guns, and ammunition. Unfortunately, the enemy didn't hesitate in pursuing its objective, to make the hours of labor long.

In the United States hours of labor are even shorter than they are in England. This is proving a great handicap in the aviation industry. The aircraft makers appealed to Washington to relax the hourly restrictions of the wages and hours law, because there is an acute shortage of the particular kinds of skilled laborers they need to step up their output of planes. The government has refused to do anything about it because millions of men are out of work. And so we go on making the same mistake which the two European nations, perhaps too late, have now corrected.

LINDBERGH VS. BYRNES.

On Sunday evening Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, America's most proficient and best informed airman, sought in a speech to quiet the growing hysteria in this country, particularly in the seaboard states. Even if the Germans win, he intimated, there is small reason to fear bombing attacks or an armed invasion of this country. If it be assumed that the Germans have the will to conquer us they still lack the means. In particular, their airplanes are not adapted to such an operation. He called for an understanding with the Latin American nations which would place their bases at our disposal for the defense of the western hemisphere and he recommended a carefully planned land, sea, and air force which would discourage any attack upon us. He pointed to the need for long range bombers to intercept a hostile fleet far off our shores. Without such a fleet, he argued, no armed force could effect a landing in America. The immediate danger of war, he said, springs not from foreign designs against America but from excited Americans who are determined to involve this country in the European quarrel. Our task is to take a careful inventory of our problem and to plan our armament accordingly.

On Wednesday evening Senator Byrnes of South Carolina undertook to reply to Col. Lindbergh. The senator, it may safely be presumed, was speaking for the administration in Washington. He derided Col. Lindbergh as a man who had accepted a medal from Hitler and accused him of talking presumptuously about foreign policy instead of airplanes. The senator called Lindbergh a fellow traveler of the fifth column. England and France had been lulled to inaction with similar assurances of safety only to discover they had been betrayed when the danger was upon them. Senator Byrnes offered some excellent reasons for disliking and distrusting Hitler and intimated that Col. Lindbergh may not share them.

It may be, as Senator Byrnes intimated, that Col. Lindbergh takes an extreme view of the international situation, but it is not as extreme as that of the persons who would make a subject nation, a colony, of America; and certainly Col. Lindbergh's attitude is far more sober and far more self-respecting. In any event, Col. Lindbergh's address was not an essay on foreign relations, as Senator Byrnes pretended. It is impossible to consider questions of national defense without making certain assumptions regarding foreign policy. Col. Lindbergh could not have discussed the technical question of design and procurement without announcing his conception of what purposes our armament is supposed to serve.

Col. Lindbergh's right to address the American people at this moment cannot be questioned. In addition to his unexampled record as a pilot he has to his credit the exploration of more air routes all over the world than any other living man can claim. He pioneered the first passenger route across the country and the Pan-American airways which now connect us with Europe, South America, the Philippines, and New Zealand. He can take a great deal of abuse from politicians without suffering from it and the public will continue to look to him for technical advice on aviation subjects.

Senator Byrnes was particularly unfair in his reference to Col. Lindbergh's acceptance of a Nazi decoration. As the guest of the German air command, Col. Lindbergh had been received in friendly fashion in Germany. He had been allowed to inspect German planes and the factories in which they were being built. It would have been a gross discourtesy to have refused the medal. To denounce him now as a fellow traveler of the fifth column is to overlook the fact that Col. Lindbergh, as a result of that visit, brought to England as well as to America the first clear information which had come out of Germany of the extent and power of the German air force. He personally brought this information home and impressed it upon our authorities who were sound asleep.

The success of the German onslaught may be attributed to the failure of the British and French to heed the warning Col. Lindbergh gave them. If he is a fellow traveler of the fifth column, so is Winston Churchill, who also sought, without success, to shake his country out of its lethargy. This country will be well advised to continue to look to Col. Lindbergh and such others as Capt. Rickenbacker for leadership on questions of air preparation.

DON'T LET THE WAR GET YOU DOWN.

The war is in Europe, not here. But since the start of the blitzkrieg New York stocks have fallen 23 per cent on the average. London stocks meanwhile have dropped only 10 per cent.

Diving planes and tanks are said to threaten the destruction of France. But French bonds are selling in New York at a premium of $50 per $1,000 above par.

Department store sales in Chicago last week, the Federal Reserve bank reports, made one of the best gains of the year—11.2 per cent.

In the first 20 days of this month 7,880 new automobiles were sold in Cook county—more than in any comparable period since 1937.

Maybe we are all more dejected than the facts justify.

WPA LOSES A CHAMPION.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

It is significant that Clifton A. Woodrum has resigned as house pilot of relief bills. The Virginia Democrat has guided $8,000,000,000 worth of such bills to passage, but now he is thru. The new WPA bill, involving $1,111,000,000, is in other hands.

Representative Woodrum is thru because he is against continuation of WPA in its present form. He no longer can stomach the waste and the politics in it. He fears that, unless a break is presently made, the system will become permanent, saddling future generations with debts they cannot pay and reducing present normal work opportunities still more. He feels he cannot continue to support a relief system which, despite its huge cost, is not really shaped to help the worthy unemployed.

It was not easy for Representative Woodrum thus to step down, and he deserves the thanks of every thinking American for doing so. It is time that attention is focused on WPA from every possible angle. When an administration leader cries "enough," a new emphasis is given—an emphasis we need if the whole relief picture is to be reëxamined, as it should be.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS BROODS A BIT.

25th May—Now this last week has been sad and grim in Europe, and has spread shadows over the entire world, and many people are running about saying the Powers of Darkness have broken out of their den and are seeking whom they may devour. Every news sheet I pick up is full of it, and people will talk of nothing else, and as for the mail from my merrymakers, well, I might cast it into the waste basket unread, for it contains nothing jocund. Yet I do believe these shadows will pass, and there will still be cakes and ale.

It was like this in Napoleon's time, and small nations were trampled on in the great struggle; yet it ended, and there was a long and happy peace. But I shall say no more about it, and seek out companions of good cheer and calm spirit, tho they are hard to find in such times.

Today, if the weather is fair and mild, I shall bask in the sunshine at Dyche stadium in the town of Evanston, and watch the young men of the universities at their running and jumping games, and pretend that these are the Olympian games in Greece of the golden age. Tonight I shall debauch my mind by reading some old detective stories about Lord Peter Wimsey, who was a most amusing fellow before he got married and became mushy. Then, too, I shall begin to plan a vacation, perhaps in the heart of an uninhabited forest where there is a lake with fish that jump into the boat. Or in that strange, quiet place in the Irish poem:

I will arise and go now, and go to Innisfree,
And a small cabin build there, of clay and wattles made.

A BISHOP GOES TO BATTLE.

(Lines to supplement recent remarks by a bishop in New York.)

Speaking with the utmost unction
The bishop vows: "It is our function
To hurl our manpower over sea
And die defending democracy."

So, blowing his pontifical nose,
He cries: "Lord, slay all thy foes;
Take our men and use their guns"—
The bishop has no soldier sons!

On bended knee he giveth thanks:
"Soon we'll have sufficient tanks";
Yea, while upon a bended knee
He supplicates: "Now God, hear me."

(Is it not written in the Book,
The prayer of one when nations shook,
Rapt Isaiah on bended knee:
"Here am I, O Lord, send me.")

But the bishop, with eyes so wet,
Now blesses banner and bayonet;
With hands aloft, with holy nod,
He certainly tells Almighty God.

How About Presidential Bees?

While the United States government has been spending millions, maybe billions, of dollars, to relieve farmers of their numerous and chronic troubles, an obscure philanthropist and farmer saver down at Pontiac, Ill., offers to do some solving free of charge. Is any farmer annoyed by bees? This fellow will come to the rescue in a hurry. Read his propaganda:

"During your many years of farming you, no doubt, have had experiences of having wild swarms of bees settle on fence posts, cornstalks, limbs of trees, and etc., on your farm, becoming a nuisance before you got rid of them. This year we will help you get rid of such swarms by removing them free of charge, taking the bees as our pay. We have had years of experience in this work, and guarantee to remove swarms without property damage.

"If swarms are in the walls of houses, or some other inaccessable place, we destroy them, making a small charge for the necessary chemicals and etc. We reserve the right to reject any and all swarms."

Before the Era of Campus Queens.

In 1902 a group of students at the University of Illinois invited the Dramatic club of the University of Chicago to come down to Urbana and give them a show. President William Rainey Harper vetoed the idea, saying in a letter:

"We do not think it wise to permit public exhibition on the part of women before audiences that are not strictly made up of our own university people."

FOR THE VALIANT.

A slender khaki line, they stand between
The vandal and their own beloved land,
That England "very small and very green"
For which they fight today. On their right hand
Stand Right and Justice, and the holy thing
Their country is—her cities and her towers,
The woodlands where the English thrushes sing,
The lanes so tender with bright blossoming flowers
All these are dear; and dearest still, of all,
The immortal love of freedom that they hold.
Too fine to die; but yet, if they shall fall,
Above their death shall flame the words of old:
"Stranger! Tell Lacedaemon—here we lie!
Hers was the word and ours the will to die!"

A Window in the Past.

The servant was moving softly about the dim, silent room, touching into dancing points of flame the tall candles in the old candelabra, placed tastefully upon polished surfaces, against gleaming panels. The room was becoming slowly and steadily brighter, softening with detail the silhouetted figure of the old woman by a tall window.

Sitting there, watching the lights wink on in the darkening street outside, she was thinking of the past, as she often did in the long twilights before evening, when the house was still. But with the lighting of the candles the window was beginning to reflect the room darkly. The dancing flames and a dim suggestion of old furniture were like a film over the usual view of the street. The two scenes mingled, so that huge chairs and tables seemed to stand in the road outside.

The old woman saw the window as the past and the present. The street was actual, while the reflection of the room on the surface of the window was the past, thru which the present is seen. And when all the candles had been lighted, the old woman saw that the reflection of the room had become so perfect that it almost obscured the view of the street outside. Kin Kajou.

SIDESTEPPING MASTOID DISEASE.

MASTOID disease—one of our most dreaded afflictions—never comes out of a clear sky. It always follows an infection—such as a cold; or some contagious malady—such as measles or scarlet fever. Coughing may force virulent bacteria up the Eustachian tubes, which lead from the throat to the middle ear spaces. In such a favorable environment they may grow luxuriantly because the patient lacks enough resistance to fight them. Sometimes they travel via the circulation.

Nature usually sounds a sirenlike warning of impending danger. This is the common earache indicating that pus is gathering inside the drum—in the room where the delicate bones of hearing are housed. With every attack of this sort the first rule in the prevention of further difficulty is to provide drainage—an outlet for the confined pus. As long as this area is bulging outward, severe throbbing will be complained of. Perhaps rupture will occur, altho the physician may slit the membrane which serves as a dam holding "corruption" within.

Now the fact that an abscess lurks in this vicinity does not mean that mastoid cells will become affected, but to avoid trouble in this direction great care must be exercised. As soon as free exit to the outside is established, the canal must be kept clean and free from crusts and scabs—and irrigations may be of value. Heat is helpful and pain may be eased by a drop or two of laudanum placed on a pledget of sterile cotton and introduced gently along the conduit.

But should microbes spread to the honeycomblike cells within the mastoid bone [which lies directly behind the ear] we must be alert to the possibility that an abscess may be forming in a location which is fairly close to the brain and to one of the large blood channels. We may be obliged then to utilize far more heroic measures. Experience has shown that the employment of sulfanilamide may change the picture entirely. In one group of 621 individuals with discharging ears, only three per cent exhibited mastoid infection after its use. In another series of 607 cases treated in routine manner, 138 required operation.

The present plan of management includes giving this drug as soon as earache is complained of. In many instances relief is so prompt that the hearing machinery is preserved intact. The drum fails to rupture; neither is incision needed. Every effort is made to sustain the patient's strength and he receives a normal diet. If nausea occurs, the menu may be curtailed drastically and generous amounts of sodium bicarbonate are allowed. But such episodes are shortlived. Authorities report that signs of blueness around the lips or of the finger tips are disregarded, altho the quantity of the drug is reduced if gastric irritation is excessive.

We all agree that it is highly desirable to spare every person the hazard of surgery—particularly in this vicinity. The use of sulfanilamide seems to be the answer. Of several hundred victims treated in one large hospital, only 15 suffered recurrences. Of these, 11 had badly diseased tonsils and all symptoms vanished on the removal of the offending glands. In the remaining four, infection developed in the opposite ear, which, in turn, cleared up under a second course of the chemical.

Unfortunately, the remedy is of little or no benefit in those chronic running ears—of which there are so many. Here the bacteria are probably not susceptible to the destroying action of the compound and should the bony portion become involved after years of intermittent oozing [usually with some deafness]—it may be necessary to resort to skilled surgery.

It would appear then that sulfanilamide reduces the risk of mastoid complications. Furthermore, the period of invalidism is cut short and there is but little tendency to the return of the infection.

NOISY ENVIRONMENT.

M. G. writes: How can a person relax enough to fall asleep in the presence of noise?

REPLY.

After a time we become so accustomed to the rattley-bang that consciousness is lost despite the din. City dwellers are obliged to ignore raucous sounds. These same individuals may have great difficulty with slumber for the first night or two in the country. They lie awake waiting for the familiar boiler factory thunder. Note how many will sleep in a crowded, jerking street car.

CURED OF CLAUSTROPHOBIA.

E. C. writes: In my case, claustrophobia was traced to congestion within the air passages. Treatment of this region relieved my symptoms entirely.

REPLY.

If one is not obtaining sufficient air out of doors, a sense of constriction [tightness] will be increased when within four walls. Removing the obstruction to free breathing will relieve this sensation. On the other hand, fear of closed spaces is usually a matter of retraining or—what the old schoolmaster believed in: "Rig-gid dis-sip-lin."

TERMS EXPLAINED.

B. A. writes: What is meant by "inflammation" and "congestion"?

REPLY.

"Inflammation" is the effect produced by some irritant—for example, bacteria. It is characterized by redness [congestion], heat, pain, and swelling. Congestion comes whenever the blood vessels are engorged and overfilled. Any interference with the return flow of blood may bring this on.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 25, 1803

Ralph Waldo Emerson, poet, essayist and philosopher, born in Boston. His father and six other forebears were New England ministers, and Emerson himself began his career as a minister after a short term as teacher in a girls' school. He retired from active ministry after a few years, however, due to his disagreement with established views on the Lord's Supper. Most of Emerson's essays were condensations of the lectures he delivered.

IS THE PEN STILL MIGHTIER?

Chicago, May 24.—After reading of the total destruction of the Louvain library in Europe, I wonder if there is now any truth in the classic statement that "the pen is mightier than the sword." It seems to me that a substitute would be that a page of history is worth volumes of logic. In short, economic, social, and political security means absolutely nothing without the protection of modern weapons in the hands of men with courage.

RAYMOND WATKINS.

A LAUNDRY DRIVER'S ADVICE.

Chicago, May 23.—Four years ago the laundry drivers were faced with a situation somewhat similar to the one the milk drivers are facing today. The laundry owners told us they could not pay the then prevailing wage scale of $40.50 a week, and proposed $30 a week and commissions. A special meeting of the drivers was called and the facts presented to them as to whether they would accept or reject said offer. Peaceful meetings were held with results as follows:

The laundry drivers agreed to accept the $30 per week, with concessions, as follows: The abolition of the then 20 per cent discount to cash and carry customers; two weeks' vacation instead of one.

The abolition of the 20 per cent permitted the drivers to pick up volumes of new business. Is this not identical to the situation now facing the milk drivers today? Do not the dairies propose the same setup, whereby milk going to the stores would be sold at the same price as that sold by the drivers; the result being that instead of going to the store for their milk the people would let the driver deliver it because the price would be the same. Result: The dairies would again permit the drivers to deliver to the stores they previously served, instead of the present method whereby one truck serves 20 or 30. This would provide work for unemployed drivers as was the case in the laundry industry.

Our arrangement entirely discouraged the public from carrying their bundles to the laundry; there was no inducement to do so, and the laundries have been able to cut the price of laundry to the point where it is no longer economical to wash at home. Ask any laundry driver. The laundry owners got a new start and today the industry is better off than it has ever been before, plus a better satisfied group of men. The average weekly income increase has more than compensated for the cut in salary. Again ask the laundry driver.

Let me add that I am 100 per cent union and a stanch advocate of a man getting all he reasonably can get, but not at the expense of public reaction and possibly the loss of his job. Think it over, boys.

DIES FOR PRESIDENT.

La Salle, Ill., May 17.—Your editorial of May 14 regarding fifth column tactics raises the question, "Why not propose Martin Dies for President?"

Mr. Dies is a "natural." His activity in ferreting out subversive tactics has struck a popular response, and his work has been particularly timely in view of the developments abroad. He is in much the same position as Coolidge at the time of the Boston police strike, when people felt helpless and discouraged and got behind a candidate pledged to wipe out the destructive elements and restore law and order.

Dies has courage, is an effective speaker, and is well known.

AN INVITATION TO SPORTSMEN.

Chicago, May 23.—I have followed with much interest Bob Becker's accounts of the formation of the Sportsmen's Defense Reserve. It is a laudable enterprise and thoroly in keeping with the "militia" tradition of American defense.

If the sportsmen who are so active in organizing this reserve will drop in at the 202d coast artillery [antiaircraft] armory at 5917 Broadway, any Friday evening between 8:30 and 10:10, I'll be glad to show them any type of material used for modern antiaircraft defense and the kind of training necessary to operate it effectively.

We are going to fire this summer for a full week preceding the second army maneuvers—not at clay pigeons, but at towed targets—not with .22s or shotguns, but with service rifles and .30 and .50 caliber machine guns. Perhaps some of the sports enthusiasts of the reserve would like to try their hands at this type of shooting. If so, here's their chance! Believe me, I'd welcome some expert skeet, trap, and duck shots in my battery!

JITTERY; HAS A THOUGHT.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 23.—The writer has just got to unburden his soul. Have read the war reports this evening and have gone decidedly jittery, and am sure if any one should mention appeasement and umbrellas to me during the rest of my lifetime I will throw a fit.

Made a trip thru the south a year ago and noticed all the monuments erected to the Democratic party, mammoth schools in sparsely populated districts, etc., and have been wondering: If we could recall all these unwise expenditures and transform them into airplanes and warships, wouldn't our place be more definitely in the sun; wouldn't our words of advice fall on more attentive ears?

Chicago, May 23.—I have just written to Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, saying:

"Your unjust harangue over the air has just been completed. To defame an honest man like Col. Lindbergh can only be the work of a low grade, unpatriotic politician. Your war mongering speech does not fool the American people.

If Lindbergh would accept the appointment, he should be placed in charge of aviation defense work in this country.

MARY QUINCY MOREHOUSE.

A HERO TO HER BOYS.

Chicago, May 23.—I listened Sunday night to Col. Lindbergh and felt his talk was sane and reasonable. Last night I listened again to Senator Byrnes' answer and felt that a "smear Lindbergh" campaign has started.

I don't write letters to newspapers, but having two sons who are much better men for having had a hero like Lindbergh—honest, modest, decent, and fearless—to them he was the ideal American. I resent a campaign to smear him.

Evanston, Ill., May 23.—As I was about to send money home for the observance of Memorial day with flowers, this thought came to me.

How much greater honor would we pay to those loved ones if we were to send that money to the Red Cross to relieve at least a little suffering!

A GRATEFUL READER.

ADD TO THE UNEMPLOYED.

HEALING CHEER OF LILACS BUOYS 16,000 SHUTINS

Fragrance Spread Thru 96 Hospitals.

BY MARCIA WINN.

(Pictures on back page.)

The sight of flowers momentarily stayed the news of war and the pangs of disease for 16,000 patients in 96 Chicago hospitals yesterday.

Lilacs, their dewy blossoms rich in the delicacy, fragrance, and hope of spring reborn, came to Chicago from the countryside on 62 lilac trains for the first day of the 12th annual Share Your Lilacs campaign conducted by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE. A second lilac day will be held Tuesday.

The blooms came in great massed bouquets of purple, lavender, white, pale blue, and Persian red. They came with accompanying clusters of tulips —scarlet, yellow, white, and pink; of apple blossoms, still furled in fat pink buds; of lilies of the valley, fashioned into delicate bedside corsages; of pansies, violets, and sprays of flowering almond. They came in orange crates, in suit boxes, in soap cartons, in iron tubs, and in cardboard boxes six feet square.

Wheaton Sends 48,539 Bouquets.

Some came, for the second year, from as far away as Hammond, Crown Point, and Gary, Ind. The village of Wheaton alone — the Boy Scouts counted—sent 48,539 bouquets. Many women from the La Grange Garden club made exquisite little individual bouquets, some of them marked "For the children's wards."

Altogether, according to the sponsors of the event, Chicago's great annual gesture of friendliness toward its sick and bedridden, the lilac collection was the largest in the history of lilac day.

The weather was ideal. A cool and almost sunless morning kept the lilacs fresh. Most of them, cut the night before, came packed in wet newspapers. Most of them were tied in bunches and easily handled.

Trucks Meet Trains.

The lilac trains, arriving on nine railroad lines, were met by Tribune trucks, which conveyed them to the loading platform of The Tribune Tower. Here a half truck load was arranged on the ground to spell the letters "W-G-N—Lilac Day." Then the lilacs were repacked in their moist wrappings and taken quickly to 90 hospitals on the south side and six on the north side.

Invalids, cripples, shut-ins, and elderly men and women—no one was overlooked by the lilac bearers.

Guild members and TRIBUNE reporters assisted in the distribution.

BLOOMS THRILL CHILDREN

BY JUANITA DALY.

Gasps of "O, look! Flowers!" came from the young patients at the Children's Memorial hospital, 707 Fullerton avenue, as nurses, their arms loaded with fragrant lilacs, walked into each ward. Two boys in wheel chairs rolled out into the hall to ask for blooms.

"They smell good," said one shyly, as the other held out his hand for a spray.

In the girls' ward the children stopped eating lunch to look at the flowers. None of them had lilacs at home, but one little girl said, "There are seven bushes in front of my grandmother's house." Another volunteered, "My aunt has some in her garden."

A chubby blond boy, 4 years old, started helping the nurses arrange the flowers in bowls. He was in the hospital on Lilac day last year and remembers them, too.

"They love to see and touch the flowers," said Miss Mabel Binner, superintendent. "It's grand to have enough to put in all the wards."

Approximately 160 children, from babies up to 13 year olds, are in the hospital.

MEMORIES OF FORMER DAYS

BY SUZETTE FARMER.

Nine women occupying a ward in Passavant hospital were about to start luncheon when the lilacs were brought to them. The trays, laden with tempting food, were pushed aside to make room for the blossoms, and the conversation turned to reminiscences of former days. One woman from Wisconsin recalled that she used to stop on the way home from school to gather huge bunches of lilacs along the wayside.

Another, whose eyes filled with tears when she thought of her girlhood in the Poland she has not seen for more than 35 years, accepted the flowers as tho they were bringing back to her some of the life which she never again will know.

Each patient seemed to inspire the other with confidence. They lost their shyness and soon the air was filled with: "Lilacs are my favorite flowers." "I'm so thankful for them." "It's wonderful of you to bring them."

But no one was more touched than one woman, who has been in the hospital for two years. Her home originally was in New York, and her life is a lonely one. Knowing that yesterday was Lilac day she had asked that a vase be placed in her room—just in case. She spent the morning torn between impatience and fear she might be overlooked. Immeasurable relief was in her whispered "O, thank you!" as she reached out a trembling hand.

SPRING COMES TO HOSPITAL

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

The medicinal smell of hospitals fled as spring swept thru the wards of St. Luke's with the arrival of lilacs. The blooms had the magic effect of brave banners on parade. A smile illuminated every white face against its white pillow.

The first armloads of lilacs were shot straight up to Florence ward, where the children are. The children's exclamations swelled into a happy chorus. Little Renee with the dark shadowed eyes cradled a bouquet in her arms as if it were her doll. Danny of the tip tilted nose and the unruly red mop dropped his puzzle and came scooting [60 miles an hour, he bet] in his wheel chair. He rolled back to his ward like a potentate,

LUNCH? IT'S LILAC DAY!

BY JOHN McCUTCHEON JR.

Preparations for lunch were forgotten when two overflowing boxes of lilacs were deposited in the middle of one of the wards in the Women's and Children's hospital. When the turmoil subsided, Jennie Leone, 14 years old, was beaming with an armful of fragrant blossoms.

"My goodness!" exclaimed Mrs. Edna Nelson, superintendent of the hospital, as she tried to maneuver Jennie back under the covers. "How do you think you're going to get well that way?"

"Lilacs! Smell 'em! Jennie shouted.

Other bunches of lilacs were distributed to pretty Anne, 11 years old, who injured her ankle last week "because my head ran faster than my feet," and to nine year old Ruthanne across the aisle, who could only express her appreciation by hugging a blossom and making room for it on her pillow.

LILACS FOR THE BLIND

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

The Chicago Lighthouse, where employment is provided for blind men, was our destination. There the blind can learn a trade and work at it. These men work quickly and precisely, their clever fingers their only guides. They are particularly skilled at basket making—baskets that range in size from great large clothes hampers to dainty trays. We watched them make sturdy rubber door mats and operate little stamping machines. By the sale of these articles these men help to support themselves.

Their blindness in no way lessens their appreciation for flowers. They love them. They smiled to be remembered still another year and were eager to take the purple bouquets home to their families.

TOYS GO IN BACKGROUND

BY FLORENCE PRATT.

Wide eyed pleasure shown in the faces of the youngsters in the children's ward of county hospital as they gazed on the bunches and baskets of fragrant lilacs.

The children pushed their toys into the background. Their blocks and other playthings were replaced by baskets of lacy lilacs. The children's eyes were practically at the popping stage as they watched the nurses distribute the bouquets to the bedsides. They reached out with eager hands and shouted and laughed as they buried their noses in the feathery blooms.

Some of these children were too small to know just what this was all about, but they liked it.

Never had they seen lilacs in such abundance. It was a day to be long remembered.

A HEADDRESS OF LILACS

BY YVONNE CROWLEY.

Mrs. Clarissa Smith, superintendent of the Home for Dependent Colored Children at 5627 Michigan avenue, and her co-workers received the array of flowers and several of the children scampered up the steps from school and stood by excitedly while the boxes were opened.

One girl deftly arranged the blossoms in her kinky black braids. Her wide-eyed companions waiting in turn were beaming as they carried the lilacs to their rooms.

HOPES BRIGHTEN FOR EARLY END OF MILK STRIKE

Union to Get Compromise Proposal Today.

Hopes grew brighter early today for a speedy end to the Milk Wagon Drivers' union strike that has tied up most of the milk supply of Chicago and the Cook county suburbs since last Sunday.

Among the developments were:

1. Union leaders called a general meeting of the membership for 7 o'clock this evening in the Coliseum.

2. The leaders hoped to have ready a compromise agreement that could be voted on by the men. This compromise was to be considered by the employing dealers at 1 p. m. today. It was formulated in general terms by the union's executive committee, meeting in the headquarters at 220 South Ashland avenue.

Plan Involves Arbitration.

Provisions of the proposed compromise were not fully disclosed; they were not, in fact, fully decided. It was reported that the men would be expected to return to work temporarily at their old basic wage of $48 a week. It was said that the dealers would be asked to agree on upper and lower figures to be used as the basis for arbitration of a new scale for a permanent contract. Heretofore the men have been firm for the old scale and have shied away from arbitration.

Other details of the proposal including the vexing matter of a commission system and the date for arbitration to begin, were not outlined.

While many ifs and ands were left to be straightened out, it was held that the attitude of the two parties was more conciliatory than it had been since the strike was called. It was of course possible that the dealers or the whole union could overturn all the propositions.

Keenan Leads Peace Move.

Joseph D. Keenan, vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, took the lead in the new attempt at peace. He said that he hoped "to get milk rolling into Chicago at once."

During the afternoon Mayor Kelly announced that he and State's Attorney Courtney were disappointed because the dealers and union had not been able to agree on strike settlement terms in a seven hour conference that ended at 4 a. m.

He added that he wanted it understood that if there was a long strike, no violence would be tolerated and that the police would enforce law and order and protect property.

Keenan came into the picture with N. J. Cladakis, federal milk market administrator, who appealed to both sides to open up the market to farmers and let the almost forgotten consumer have milk. It is estimated that farmers, dealers, workers, and milk stores have already lost $500,000 income thru the tieup.

Dealers Ask $12 Cut.

The strike, which the union claims was technically a lockout, began when the dealers posted a new and lower wage scale. Instead of the old $48 base they proposed a base of $30 and commissions which they said would make weekly income $40. Admittedly this would cut driver income $12 a week; the unionists said $15 to $17. Dealers said the cut was needed to meet competition and keep drivers at work.

There was little dumping of milk yesterday and few instances of vandalism. The windows of about 100 stores selling milk for nonunion dairies were smashed. Meadowmoor Dairies, the biggest independent, continued to receive milk under police convoy, eight trucks arriving last night.

Many store owners in the Chicago area said they expect a great increase in sales after the strike is ended. This tendency has been noted in recent years. More than 50 per cent of retail sales are now thru stores and the owners said they believed many housewives whose home deliveries were shut off would turn permanently to the stores for supplies.

STANLEY YOUNG IS FINED $100 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Stanley De Korwen Young, 27 years old, heir to the $50,000,000 fortune of his merchant grandfather, Otto Young, was fined $100 yesterday for driving while intoxicated. Judge William V. Daly of the Municipal Jury court imposed the sentence and suspended Young's driving privilege for 60 days. The court said that the offense, in Young's case, was not aggravated. Policemen testified they detected the odor of liquor on Young after he disregarded a traffic light while making a left turn at Van Buren street and Michigan avenue.

POLICE ENFORCE MUFFLER LAW TO CURB NOISE

Capt. David Flynn, in command of the police trafic division, said yesterday his squads are being instructed to enforce muffler ordinances vigorously, now that warmer weather has opened windows to noises from the streets. Since April 20, he said, tickets have been issued to 267 violators, consisting of 18 motorcycles, 104 passenger cars, and 148 trucks. Each ticket calls for a $2 fine in the "cafeteria" court.

The agents said they sought to learn if there was any evidence of violation of the Mann [white slave] act. The raid was made to bolster a nuisance abatement suit pending against the hotel.

SCALISE LEAVES JAIL; SENT BACK ON NEW CHARGE

Accused of Stealing Union's $60,000.

New York, May 24 (AP).—George Scalise, former president of the Building Service Employés' International union, was arrested on a grand larceny charge today immediately after his release from Tombs prison under new bail put up in connection with his indictment for extortion.

Detectives of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office made the arrest. The complaint, signed by Dewey himself, charged the theft of $60,000 which Scalise allegedly had obtained from the union thru false claims for expenses.

General Sessions Judge James G. Wallace, after reading an affidavit stating that the grand jury had heard testimony against Scalise concerning the alleged unlawful diversion of union funds, remanded Scalise back to the Tombs in default of $35,000 bail. John Kadell, counsel for Scalise, demanded an immediate hearing but Judge Wallace adjourned the case until Monday.

In the hearing which preceded Scalise's rearrest, Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente approved a $75,000 real estate bond to supplant the $40,000 cash bail withdrawn by the surety company. This case involves charges that Scalise, who was forced out of the presidency of the union following his indictment, extorted nearly $100,000 from New York hotels and other firms thru threats of calling strikes.

Teas, Parties, Concert Make Busy Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.

A BUSY week-end is in store for for those who "do things and go places." Horse racing enthusiasts will be found this afternoon at the opening of the Lincoln Fields track in Crete. The season will continue thru June 22, and two days later, on the 24th, Arlington Park will open. Stuyvesant Peabody, president of Lincoln Fields, and Mrs. Peabody are giving a luncheon at the clubhouse today.

Tomorrow brings Barrington's "A Day in the Country," a reception for Leopold Stokowski given by the Woman's Symphony Orchestral association, two concerts, and two teas in private homes. Dr. and Mrs. Francis P. Horan of Sheridan road, Evanston, are entertaining from 4 until 7 o'clock for their nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hoover, who also are residing in Evanston. In Oak Park, Mrs. Louis Eugene Yager and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Oliver Givens Jr., will be at home from 5 until 8 o'clock for Miss Lillian Gish, star of "Life with Father."

Reception and Tea for Stokowski Tomorrow.

Leopold Stokowski's name was one of the first to be written in the guest book of the Arts club when the new rooms were opened in 1936. The reception and tea for him tomorrow will be at the club. Stokowski and John Bitter of New York and Jacksonville, Fla., are arriving by plane tomorrow from Hollywood and will go on to New York tomorrow night. Stokowski has come to Chicago to conduct the final auditions of 40 young men and women who are trying out for places in an All-American Youth orchestra which Stokowski will take on a good will tour of Central and South America this summer.

Tomorrow night the Philip B. Mahers are giving a small dinner at the Racquet club for Stokowski and Mr. and Mrs. Bitter. Mrs. Bitter, who is Mrs. Maher's sister, is spending 10 days with the Mahers at their home in Lake Bluff.

Mrs. Hermon D. Smith of Lake Forest is head of a committee that is sponsoring a benefit concert that will close the 50th anniversary celebration of the founding of Hull House. The concert will be given by the Hull House Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Herbert Butler, at 3 o'oclock tomorrow, at the Joseph T. Bowen Country club, the settlement's summer camp at Waukegan.

Concert to Be Given in Natural Amphitheater.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, who gave the camp to the settlement in memory of her husband, will be assisted at the tea tables by Miss Charlotte Carr, the settlement's director; Mrs. Smith, and other members of her committee, Mrs. Ralph A. Bard and Mrs. Morris K. Wilson. The concert will be held out of doors in a natural amphitheater that the settlement children have christened bird park.

Walter R. Kirk, president of the Chicago Opera company; John Alden Carpenter, one of the advisory board; Mrs. Kirk, and Mrs. Carpenter were among the most appreciative of those who heard Alec Templeton give a brief program yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the opera box committee. Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Kirk, and Mrs. Howard W. Fenton are co-chairmen of the committee. The meeting was held at Mrs. Charles H. Swift's home at 209 Lake Shore drive. The next meeting of the committee will be at Mrs. Richard T. Crane's next Friday.

There should be heavy traffic toward Barrington tomorrow when the general public will have the opportunity to visit 77 different farms and estates in that vicinity. The properties are being opened to raise funds for the Barrington Country Day school. Tickets for the tour of estates, and maps showing their location, may be obtained at the school from 10:30 o'clock on.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cox Observing Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cox are giving a dinner-dance at the Saddle and Cycle club tonight to celebrate their 10th anniversary. The only one of the attendants at the marriage of the former Helen Nicholas and Mr. Cox in Cincinnati who is expected at the party is the best man, Joseph Kahrs Jr. of Orange, N. J.

A new exhibit of wedding gowns, dating from 1840 to the present, will be opened to the public today at the Chicago Historical society. The exhibit includes 13 gowns all worn by Chicago women. The oldest is a petite tan taffeta worn by Miss Georgia Barton when she became the bride of Samuel Warren in 1843, and the newest is the gown worn by Miss Eleanor Wetten when she became Mrs. James Sutton Pennington Jr. recently.

The late Mrs. William J. Chalmers' [Joan Pinkerton] wedding gown is of the vintage of 1878; Mrs. William D. Preston's is of the 1883 period, and Mrs. Robert Archibald MacArthur's of 1896 style. Today's bride who wants a wedding gown that later can be worn for evening can copy Mrs. William Blair's gown, which was made in 1854. It is of lovely white brocade. An extra bodice transformed it into a beautiful evening gown of that period.

Exhibit Will Remain Open Until July.

Burton Holmes' mother, Virginia Burton, wore a heavy white satin when she was married to Ira Holmes in 1866. The dress is in the exhibit, and so is Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson's gown, worn in 1907 when Edith Kennett was married to Fred Rawson. Others who have lent gowns for the exhibit, which will remain in the museum until July, are Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. Stanley Zaring, Mrs. Edward Byron Smith, and Mrs. Robert F. Carr Jr. They represent, respectively, the fashions of 1917, 1926, 1929, 1934, and 1938.

Making Debut in Washington

[Hessler Photo.]

Miss Courtney Louise Stillwell has lived in Washington for some years but she was born in Chicago and lived here as a little girl, so her debut is of interest to many Chicagoans. She is the daughter of Mme. Felipe Espil (wife of the Argentine ambassador) and Wellesley Hill Stillwell of New York and Queenstown, Md., and the granddaughter of Mrs. Frank C. Letts of Washington, formerly of Chicago, and Mrs. Homer A. Stillwell of the Drake. Miss Stillwell will be presented formally to society at a garden party at the Argentine embassy on June 8. Mrs. Letts is giving a dinner at her home for her granddaughter tonight; the ambassador and Mme. Espil will give a dinner for Miss Stillwell next Wednesday, and Mrs. Sumner Welles will give a garden party for the bud on June 15.

Good Morning!

All the world DOESN'T love a lover and there are some folks to whom children and dogs are a pain in the neck. But the average person responds sympathetically and with a twinkle to the exigencies and eccentricities of the three, and it is this Mr. and Mrs. Average Person I urge to see "The Biscuit Eater," even tho it must be the only movie experience of the month.

The principal characters of the film tale—adapted from James Street's good story that ran in a weekly periodical—are two little boys, one white and one colored, and a hunting dog. . . . The scenes are laid in and about a huge dog raising plantation in Georgia.

Lonnie McNeil is son of the plantation manager and trainer, wild about the beautiful creatures under his father's care. Text—"I'se a Bible boy" [his father's name is Sermon!] is offspring of Trainer McNeil's assistant and little Lonnie's shadow the Man Friday. . . . Both are the anxious guardians and devoted slaves of the runt Promise, saved from an early demise by the passionate pleas of Lonnie, whose dad hadn't the heart to drown the unwanted pup in the face of his small son's importunities.

In the service of Promise, who should rightly have been named Disappointment, the two youngsters grow careworn and haggard. They yearn to make a good dog of him, but his inclinations just naturally aren't what they ought to be. He sucks eggs. He hunts—for his food—which makes him a "biscuit eater"—most awful opprobrium in the hunting dog world! . . . He flushes rattlesnakes and skunks, and, one dreadful night, he scales a fence and visits a valuable lady dog known as—Swanee Lily, I think—Swanee something or other—just escaping detection by Sermon who shoots at what he believes to be a cur dog. . . .

But Lonnie and Text KNOW—and they also know that the Swanee's puppies just naturally CAN'T have a no 'count father. . . . PROMISE has just GOT to turn out good! This realization furnishes the impetus which starts the youngsters on their career of making Promise a hunter of which any mother might be proud to have the old man of her litter. . .

Following events are drama—rich with humor and suspense—and mellowed by sadness. . . . The finale gets you where you live. The whole picture, in fact, does that.

The acting of those two little kids is simply immense. You can't believe for one minute that they ARE acting. How you love little Lonnie. How you worry with him—AND weep with him. And that Text is a card!

Grownups are excellent. The dogs working in the film are magnificent animals and the way they have been cannily caught in action is marvelous. Backgrounds are splendid—and only a man who understands and loves kids and dogs could have made "The Biscuit Eater" the beautiful and engrossing film that it is.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Where Is Thy Sting?

Hollywood, Cal., May 25.—According to the reports from the European battlefields, death is much more horrible than you'd ever guess it to be from the movie scripts of Hollywood. . . . What scenarist, for instance, would have written a scene in which the commander of the Dutch armies ordered 300,000 of his men to lay down their arms? He gave the order because 100,000 of his men already had been killed. . . . Not so in the movies: He would have kept on fighting until all of them had been wiped out. . . . Because the movies, adult in many things, never have been quite adult or realistic in their approach to death, which has been glorified and idealized so completely that the sting has been removed from it.

In the movies, for instance, death always is an excuse for some actor or actress to make a bid for the next academy award. . . . It is truly amazing how a dying actor or actress, in the movies, can summon up enough strength to read 20 or 30 sides of dialogue. . . . Hedy LaMarr, in "Lady of the Tropics," was a case in point. . . . Thomas Mitchell, in "Only Angels Have Wings," supplied another instance of an actor's refusal to die until he had wrung the last full syllable out of his part. . . . Will Fyffe, in "Rulers of the Sea," engaged in a philosophical discussion that argued a hardihood not commonly found in cases of this kind.

Gangsters, in real life, were done to death quite dirtily. . . . Not so in the movies, which insist that gangsters unburden themselves of farewell speeches almost as long as a keynoter's address at a political convention. . . . To the credit of Director Mervyn Le Roy let it be said that he resisted the temptation to train the camera on Vivien Leigh when she died in "Waterloo Bridge." . . . Le Roy's forebearance should earn him some sort of an award. . . . In "The Rains Came" Myrna Loy's death was as huge a production as an old time Fanchon and Marco number. . . . Robert Donat's death in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" was the only minor league note in a big league picture. . . . Garbo died in "Camille"; Luise Rainer died in "The Good Earth"; Margaret Sullavan died in "Three Comrades."

In "Algiers" Charles Boyer died on the docks, watching his beloved go out to sea. . . . George Raft, Jimmy Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, and Basil Rathbone have met a thousand deaths. . . . In "Lillian Russell" the script called for the fourth real demise of Don Ameche, and here again there was forbearance on the part of Director Irving Cummings, who refused to turn it into a maudlin spree. . . . Norma Shearer has died over and over again. . . . In "Test Pilot" Spencer Tracy died fairly quickly because Clark Gable warned him that if he didn't he, Gable, would throw a blanket over him.

It is dramatic license that the actor or actress always shall be in command of death. . . . In other words, the performer never dies until he or she feels like it. . . . On the battlefields men haven't that same happy faculty of ordering things. . . . According to the papers, death strikes them down without asking for permission, or without inquiring if the scene has been completed. . . . This is contrary to all of the Hollywood rules.

So before all of us get all steamed up to the point of dispatching a million young men to Europe, on transports, let us remember that death is fairly horrible, regardless of the movies' version. . . . Some of those who are wounded are even worse off. . . . I remember when the A. E. F. casualties started to return to this country. . . . Port Chester, N. Y., a small town, had a great turnout for some of the wounded veterans. . . . There was cheering and yelling and deep emotion, and then they lifted one boy up for all of us to see. . . . Both of his arms had been shot off and both of his legs had been amputated. . . . The cheering and the yelling stopped abruptly and the faces of people in the crowd turned white. . . . This was the sheepskin that war awards to its graduating class.

It is not within the province of this column to editorialize, but it seems to this reporter that the sensible thing to do [if sense remains in this world] is for this country to arm to the teeth. . . . Let us fill the air with fleets of bombing and pursuit planes. . . . Let us fill the oceans with ships of war. . . . It seems to have been fairly well established that might has been substituted for right, and that the bullies of the world acknowledge only the force of arms. . . . If we are to continue to exist as a nation, we must survive these troubled times, and to survive we must overawe those who are more familiar with the caliber of guns than the caliber of decency. . . Thus prepared, we can make our stand on our own soil.

Perhaps now the moment approaches when the United States of America is to fulfill its destiny. . . . Here on this soil may be erected the last ramparts of liberty, may be voiced the last authoritative protest against the degradation of human beings. . . . Here can be interred the monstrous creatures who have succeeded Attila the Hun. . . . If the attack is to come, let us be ready for it and let us be prepared to hurl it back so emphatically that a thousand years will pass before another maniac will arise to put the world to the sword. . . . Failing in that, death, I think, would be preferable to slavery.

Beach Outfits in Gay Colors Lure Shoppers

BY REA SEEGER.

Faced with a holiday or hours off for fun and fashions, crowds are now snapping up the smartest and most different clothes for country or active sports. The first swim suits are getting a tremendous ovation. This year the gleaming satin lastex beauties not only come in brilliant colors but in snappy dotted and floral designs against colored or white backgrounds. The reds are the brightest reds ever flashed before the eye, the red dotted affairs against cool, sleek white the most decorative designs.

Mother and daughter swim suits are the newest contribution for this coming summer. You'll see them in seersuckers and checked ginghams with the midriffs made of stretchable lastex woven right in the materials. Ensembles are better than ever . . . swim suit and companion coat of terry cloth, with the lining of the terry cloth topper the same material as the suit.

Striped swim suits are eye catchers of colorful splendor, green and white, red and white and blue and white, with a few less startling numbers in brown and white. There are all kinds of green beach and water outfits. The best are the terry cloth robes with and without hoods. Cool green tints run the gay sunny yellows a good race for the money involved.

Snowy white sharkskin suits are particularly high fashion with the shoppers who plan for a dramatic sun tanned contrast. The beltless princess line suits are only for the perfect figures.

Suits you'll see on every beach are the classics of clinging jersey. Combinations of black with white, deep marine blue with white, red with white are shown with the solid colored models. They are made with gathered ballerina skirts and expertly draped tops that expose sufficient areas for sun tanning. Supplies of these flattering swim and beach outfits are going fast.

Time Confusion.

Noel Coward, en route to Chicago from the coast Thursday, wired Clifton Webb in Chicago, Am arriving in Chicago on the Chief at 1:25 nobody's time. . . .

* * *

Mr. Webb, Mr. Coward, and Grace Moore and her husband, Valentin Parera, chatted at the Blackstone until Coward left for New York. He expects to fly to England on the Clipper June 8. "If it can land then," said Mr. Coward, grimly. He is on a six weeks' holiday from his activities with the British intelligence service in Paris.

When Mr. Coward was in Chicago on his way to the coast he went to see Mr. Webb (and Gerald Savory's interpretation of his Noel Coward part) in The Man Who Came to Dinner; sat long after the theater in Mr. Webb's apartment, talking, with Katharine Hepburn and Tallulah Bankhead present; went to see both their plays, and was driven to his plane in a blinding rain by all three of them. Mr. Webb finally found some umbrellas marked WPA for Miss Hepburn and Miss Bankhead. The glamor ladies of the theater stood in the rain, hair and clothes dripping dankly, waving to Coward's departing plane. "Like a pair of Sadie Thompsons," said Mr. Webb.

On cherry boughs, she sighed with gloom.

She thought she saw new fallen snow.

Hull House Circus.

One of the events of the week that has left a bright memory with spectators was the children's circus at Hull House, held in connection with the Hull House fiftieth anniversary celebration this week. The children themselves were the animals and they themselves had made the animal heads they wore (papier mâché on hat blocks). They had been left free to work out their own ideas, and the results were brilliant. A pink rhinoceros with blue eyes, the head of a lion with a crown on it, and Gargantua, the ape, were some of the spectacular pieces. A giant had been made from boxes glued together and the little boy inside carried the added height on his shoulders, peering through a slit in the navel of the giant to see his way. Modernistic horses were made out of square boxes. One little lad made a black and white striped zebra.

"What kind of a mane will you put on it?" he was asked by a visiting elder.

"White," he said.

"Why don't you put a bright colored one on," it was suggested.

He listened politely and came back with a white mane on the zebra, but he had added beautiful chartreuse green eyes. It was a fine creation.

Nestling Grand Ducky.

From a downstate newspaper, under "Other War Fronts":

Other reports on the shifting fates of war included:

The announcement by British military circles that Arlon, in South Luxemburg, was in allied hands. This was one of the first concrete indications that Germany had not gobbled up all of the little grand ducky, nestled in a corner of the Maginot and Siegfried lines. . . .

Marry My Daughter

By Alice Duer Miller

(Copyright: 1940; By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

Millicent Dunham's mother is killed saving Dick Shard from being hit by a truck and on her deathbed she makes Dick promise to marry Millicent. Altho Dick is in love with Constance Stewart, whose husband, Aleck, is an invalid, he feels obligated to keep his promise. Dick lives in New York and is rich and distinguished and is head of the Shard firm for which both Mr. and Mrs. Dunham worked in the Kansas branch before their deaths. Millicent, who has been left penniless and untrained, knows she doesn't love Dick, but thinks he loves her and upon the advice of Dr. Ogden, a family friend, marries him. On their way to New York after the wedding Dick tells her of his promise to Mrs. Dunham. Millicent is humiliated, but agrees to live with him for six months and then get a divorce. Dick tells her she will be free to do as she pleases during that time. Dick neglects his bride for Constance, who suggests that he hire a personal maid for Millicent to advise her on her clothes so that Dick will not be ashamed of her when he takes her out. Constance gives a party for the bride and groom and is astonished and furious when Millicent appears so exquisitely dressed and so beautiful that she takes the spotlight away from her hostess. In taking Dick's advice about leading her own life Millicent makes a friend of Michael Curley, whom she has met at the Metropolitan museum, and with Donald Eaves, a suave worldling whom Constance has introduced to her. Curley falls in love with Millicent and confesses his love for her to Dick and begs him to help protect his wife against Eaves. Millicent, knowing that Dick is in love with Constance, will not heed his advice about Eaves, but is forced to telephone him to come to her rescue one afternoon when she is locked in Eaves' bedroom, and Dick is having tea in his own apartment with Constance. Dick goes to the rescue and Millicent realizes she loves him, but upon their return home Constance telephones Dick that Aleck is ill and needs him. While he is gone Dr. Ogden arrives for a visit and Millicent tells him of her unhappy marriage. When Dick returns they tell him that Millicent wants a divorce. Dick agrees and reluctantly Millicent goes to Reno, but not before she tells him how selfish Constance is and how she has been using Dick as a slave. Dick tells her Aleck has just died. Millicent loses all her money at roulette and wires for more. Then she loses her engagement ring to an adventurer who blackmails her, and she wires for help a second time. The message arrives while Constance and Dick are quarreling and Dick tells her he is going to fly to Millicent's aid. Constance realizes that Dick is no longer in love with her, but is in love with his wife. She leaves in a huff and Dick flies to Reno.

INSTALMENT XXX.

BRAINS VERSUS BRAWN.

Millicent yielded with rather a bad grace. "It's such a long story—and so stupid. After I lost all that money there was a great deal of talk—the rumor went about that I was rich—fabulously rich—that you were endowing me with millions. I had met a man called Pelson—you know you meet lots of people here and I've never been stiff with strangers the way you easterners are—I always talk to them. . . ."

"As you did to Curley."

"Ah, this man wasn't like Michael—tho he seemed very kind. He suggested that I had better get out of town for a little while. It seems the police are always on the point of raiding these gambling clubs—he thought I might be questioned, and that rather frightened me. He said he knew a lady who had a ranch in the mountains where she took paying guests . . . only it wasn't a ranch, and she wasn't a lady, but a notorious old woman—and he and I were the only paying guests. . . . O, no, nothing happened—nothing at least except that when I insisted on leaving the next day I couldn't find my ring—my darling ring that you gave me, and it seems he had stolen it."

"Stolen it?"

"Yes, but he says that I gave it to him—that I gave it to him as a love token, and he won't give it back."

"And there was nothing to justify . . ."

"Absolutely nothing, Dick. You believe me, don't you?"

"Yes, I believe you, Millicent. And in that case it won't be hard to get it back. Have you done anything about it?"

A deep color mounted slowly to her face. "Well, Donald is doing something about it at this very moment."

"Donald Eaves?"

"Yes, he appeared here this morning out of the blue. He's been shooting in Wyoming, or somewhere, and he stopped to see me and, of course, I told him about it. And he was eager to deal with Pelson."

"How does he propose to deal with him?"

"Donald said it would be easy . . . to get my ring back."

"But how, Millicent, how?"

"Well, I'm afraid that if the worst comes to the worst he means to beat him up." She smiled and Dick saw that—a little reluctantly perhaps, she admired the idea of Donald's physical prowess.

"I see," he said coldly. He found himself in the ridiculous position of a man who has flown madly across the continent to rescue a lady who has already been rescued by those primitive methods that always seem to appeal strongly to the feminine heart.

He stood up. "Well," he said as pleasantly as he could, "since you have some one looking out for your interests I think I'll be getting back. I understand Mr. Lay is sending a young man from his office. . . ."

She interrupted: "Dick, you don't mean that you came out here just for that? . . . You couldn't have—you couldn't have received my letter in time."

"Yes, just in time. Lay brought it round to my house last evening and I caught the night plane."

She put her hands up to her throat with a gesture of despair that he remembered well. "O, I have such bad luck!" she wailed.

Her tone would have melted any heart not steeled as her husband's was. "On the contrary," he said, "I think you have very good luck. I think Donald is probably just the right person to manage this situation. If I had been doing it I should have assumed that this man had a criminal record and called in the police and it would all have been very slow and unromantic and perhaps unsuccessful. No, I congratulate you." He held out his hand. "And bid you good-by."

She took his hand in both of hers. "Don't go, Dick."

"I don't want to linger about and meet the returning hero—that should be his hour. I should feel ridiculous."

"No one could make you feel ridiculous."

"O, my dear—I am told that you have accomplished it on more than one occasion."

"Who dared to say such a thing?"

As both of them knew quite well who had said it, he didn't answer. They stood staring at each other and then footsteps sounded on the cement walk. Dick's heart sank—he was too late—Donald was already there—he turned to see a stranger standing in the doorway.

He was a well built man of middle height, nicely dressed, with a perfectly round head on which dark hair grew crisply—a good looking man, except that Dick, with his special knowledge, could see that his glittering eyes were set too close to his short pugnacious nose to inspire perfect confidence.

The door was open and he stepped in: "Look, little lady," he said in a deep friendly voice, "that big feller you sent to see me—he ought to watch his step. He might get into real trouble some day. Is this your lawyer?"

"Just a friend," said Dick.

As such he seemed to have little interest for Mr. Pelson. He went on speaking to Millicent. "He came down to my office—this man Eaves—and tried to start something. He didn't know, I guess, that I was in the money for the championship—lightweight—in 1930."

A light broke on Dick. He knew he had heard the name: "Are you Cully Pelson—of course. You are. I saw you fight in the Garden."

"Yes, that's me."

"And there was a little unpleasantness, wasn't there, about a fixed fight in Chicago?"

Mr. Pelson's brow darkened: "I had a rough deal on that—it was the bunk. But I didn't fight it—I was out of the ring."

But Dick still remembered, and he went on in the same conversational tone: "And then I remember you ran a night club in Mount Vernon, where poor Mickey Owens got his . . ."

Pelson interrupted: "No, you're wrong there. That was another feller of the same name."

"Hard luck—because I have an impression that the federal officers . . ."

"Publicity hounds—they get everything wrong."

"I'm told they're still interested."

"It's nothing in my life."

"Except that this lady would like her ring back."

Pelson shook his head: "I wouldn't part with a ring she gave me . . ."

"I didn't give it to you," said Millicent."

Pelson smiled at her: "What does that make me—a thief?"

"Well, yes, I think it does," said Millicent.

Dick interposed: "If ladies change their minds, Mr. Pelson, isn't it wiser to humor them?"

Pelson turned to Dick with perfect civility. "Look," he said, "you say you're a friend of this little lady's. Well, a friend won't mess into this situation at all. The fact is that if anything should come out about her little trip to the ranch—the judge won't like it. The judges are getting kinder stiff nowadays—she wouldn't get her divorce."

"That would be all right with her."

"What do you mean—all right?"

"She doesn't want it any more—it's all off."

"Don't kid yourself—her husband is putting up two millions to get rid of her. I have it on good authority."

"It's not true. I'm her husband."

San Francisco Opens Golden Gate Fair for Second Season

San Francisco, May 24 (AP).—More color and more girl shows will bid for more cash customers at the revamped Golden Gate International exposition as it opens tomorrow at 9 a. m. with the approval of a referee in bankruptcy.

Its buildings trimmed with all the colors of the rainbow, the 400 acre Treasure Island has taken on the appearance of a painting from a book of dreams. The drab-tan motif of a year ago is gone.

Reopening of the exposition, which closed five weeks early last season with only half its anticipated attendance, was approved by a referee in bankruptcy after leading creditors had advanced a plan of settling claims.

The first day a year ago drew 126,000 persons. Around 10,500,000 persons paid admission during the 254 day run. Officials this year indicated they would be well satisfied if attendance even approached that figure.

The Housewife

An attractive gift for the June bride and for your own home is a set of small wooden trays, shaped like leaves. They are individual trays to hold appetizers at the cocktail hour, or little sandwiches for bridge refreshments. They are light weight, well made, and have a little color in their pretty, light, natural finish. Heap three or four of them with fruit and use as a unit for a centerpiece, too.

Apathy Called Greatest Foe of Americans

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 24 (Special).—The fifth column and Trojan horse treachery are less dangerous to America than its citizens' apathy on questions affecting their fundamental liberties, the General Federation of Women's Clubs was told repeatedly today at final sessions of its 49th annual convention here.

"We wouldn't need to fear the fifth column if we women made up our minds to go out and fight for the principles we stand for," Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, Md., assured fellow delegates.

Apathy, Mrs. Whitehurst said, is the greatest weakness in the federation, which she described as having more potential power than any other organization in this country. Mrs. Whitehurst, who now is the general federation's first vice president, was nominated as president today for election at the triennial convention next year at Atlantic City, N. J.

Apathy also was the word used by J. Williams Hughes, Welsh born former foreign correspondent, to describe Americans' attitude toward public affairs.

"The only war that America should be waging now," Hughes asserted, "is a ceaseless war against this apathy. Hundreds of Americans boasted to me of their privileges under the constitution, but I am afraid I have not met a corresponding number who boasted about their responsibilities under the constitution."

Hughes spoke preceding an impressive Citizenship day ceremony at which Associate Justice Joseph Martin of the Supreme court of Wisconsin inducted a number of new voters into citizenship. Justice Martin and Phillip A. Grau, Milwaukee lawyer and business man, both reminded the young voters that their new responsibilities as citizens are as great as their privileges.

Four of the new voters gave brief appraisals of these new responsibilities, and citizenship "diplomas" were presented to all of them. Wisconsin, it was said, was the first state to enact legislation providing for the annual observance of Citizenship day.

Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, in the final address of the convention said that human relations must be developed to the same extent that civilization has progressed in material things.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Bread that is really good bread has a rich, golden brown crust and a crumb that is substantial, but not heavy. It has a texture one can really bite into and chew; not an airy, spongy, angel food porousness.

Sometimes bread which fits this description costs a penny or two more than bread which hasn't that homemade texture or flavor, but in most cases it is worth while to spend that extra cent. Good bread is enjoyed because it tastes good; inferior bread is eaten as a matter of course, without any conscious pleasure in the process.

Whole wheat bread is more nutritious than white bread unless that white bread has been reinforced with vitamins. Vitamin reinforcement is becoming a fairly common practice among bakers these days, but isn't practical for home use. But homemade whole wheat bread, and white bread made with milk and other good quality ingredients, are healthful foods which don't really need vitamin reinforcement.

This whole wheat bread recipe is a favorite of mine. Half white flour is used for the sake of the bread's texture. An all whole wheat bread is much heavier, altho it may be very good to eat.

Whole Wheat Bread.
[2 loaves.]
1 cup scalded milk
1 or 2 cakes compressed yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
1½ tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon melted shortening
3 cups white flour
3 cups whole wheat flour

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. Soften the yeast in a small amount of water and add with the remainder of water to the milk. [Or use all milk and no water.] Add sugar, salt, and shortening. Add flour, working it in thoroly. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead for about 10 minutes, or until the dough is smooth and elastic. Shape into a ball, place in a greased bowl, and brush with melted fat. Cover and let rise until the dough will retain the impression of a finger. Punch gas from dough by plunging the fist into the center. Fold over the edges and turn upside down. Cover and let rise until half again its original size. Flatten on a floured board and cut in half. Mold each half into a ball, cover, and let stand for 15 minutes. Shape into loaves and place in greased bread pans. Cover and let stand until well risen. Bake at 400 degrees for about 45 minutes.

If you like this recipe as well as I think you're going to like it, you'll want other recipes for good homemade breads. They are to be found in a booklet, "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls," which sells for 23 cents by mail. White breads and rolls, rye bread, pumpernickel, salt rising bread, fruit breads, coffee cakes, and buns are included among the recipes. There also are recipes for all kinds of easy, quick breads, too, including muffins, biscuits, nut breads, waffles, pancakes, and dumplings. Mail orders should be addressed to Mary Meade, in care of The Tribune.

Numerology
By Evelyn Holmes

May 25, 1940.

When people find out that eight is the "money" number, they try to add eights to their names or select numbers that add to eight. It often proves a boomerang because the material vibrations of eight are not always easy to handle—just as few people can really handle wealth without it making some difference in their character and way of life. If this is your birthday, your year should have proved highly expansive so far, and June brings added impetus. Take a trip, contact people, and be ready for changes.

Spring Salon of All-Illinois Society Opens

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts has opened its annual spring salon in the Third Floor Corridor gallery, Stevens hotel. The exhibition will run thru the summer, not closing until Aug. 31. It is a stunning show and one that should give a great deal of enjoyment to many a visitor. There are pleasant pictures in plenty and few that do not measure up to fairly rigid standards of craftsmanship.

The American Legion auxiliary department of Illinois offered two prizes. The award for the best oil painting by an ex-service man went to "Taxco" by Jerome J. Klapka; the award for the best water color, also by an ex-service man, was given to Donald Millis for "Lingering Snow."

The exhibition is diversified and colorful. Several new painters are proving themselves in brilliant still life. Of these the most effective are "Study in Yellow" by Claire Gomersall, "The Iridescent Jar" by Percy H. Sloan, and "Heirlooms" by Grace Davis.

There are a number of attractive portraits, among them "Patsy" by Douglas Ewen, the little girl in "The Blue Pinafore" by Alice Mason, and the dreaming boy in "Visualizing" by Edward John Klimek.

Flower paintings succeed in turning their part of the walls into summer gardens. One can fairly smell the fragrance of the "Lilacs" by Minnie Warner and it is easy to enjoy "Delphiniums" by Harriet W. Cory, "Japanese Lilies" by Minnie A. Carlson, "Callas" by Nina K. Griffin, "Hybiscus and Brass" by Jessie Field, "Tulips" by Sister N. Paul, R. S. M., and "Gladioli" by Katheryn Yager Lewis.

Dale Nichols has a characteristic an stunning farm scene, "Repairs"; Lane K. Newberry touches a different note in "I Was Born Feb. 12, 1809," a painting of Lincoln's birthplace; Ted Vognild has a fascinating study of two cocker spaniel puppies, and Sidne H. Langford presents a novel technique in "The Christening," which looks like a page from "Alice in Wonderland" done on cement. It is one of the most attractive things in the show.

The exhibit of sculpture by Boris Lovet-Lorski at the Tretyakov galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue, will continue to June 1. It is proving one of the most popular exhibits of the season. No one should miss it.

Saturday, May 25.

Better early today than too late. Afternoon and evening vibrations require expert choosing to get the best. Calling for expert handling if money items arise—better to postpone big ones.

Your Year Ahead.

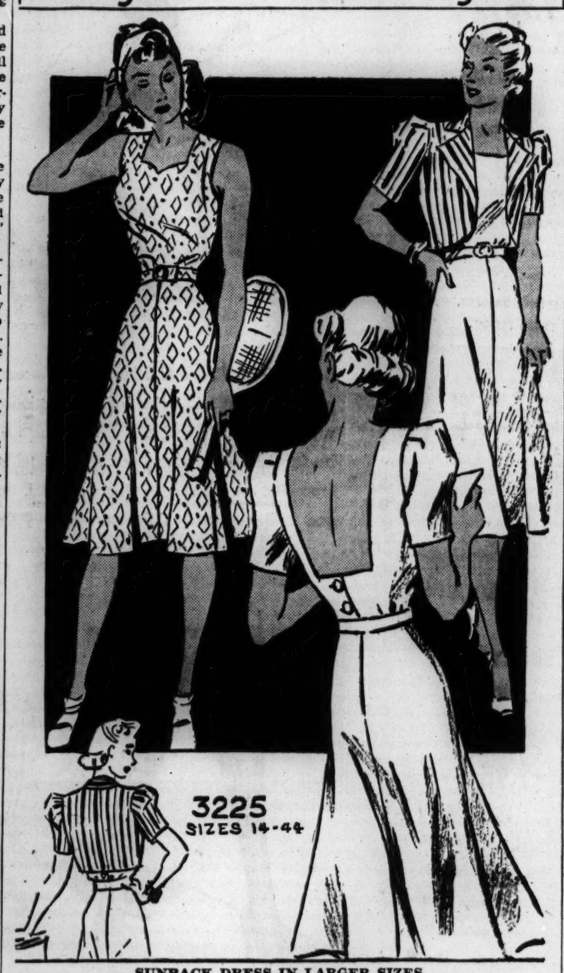
Your year ahead is very important—new conditions are due, if born on this date, and your this year's decisions will result in improvement or reverse—think, plan, act wisely. Danger Aug. 20-Sept. 1, Dec. 30-Jan. 13, May 17-25, 1941.

Tomorrow.

Mixed morning; lean toward the new rather than the too old.

Do you want an individual interpretation for your own personal date? Every important period is indicated for you, according to the laws of astrology. Send 10 cents to Wynn, Tribune Astrologer, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Write plainly your name, date of birth, and address.

Designed for Mature Figures



SUNBACK DRESS IN LARGER SIZES.

Designers of sports clothes too often overlook the problems of the larger figure. Most of the styles are for sylphs, but those of us who have unwanted pounds like to play tennis and golf, too, and we simply can't do so in street dresses! However, we've hit upon a tennis dress that you plump persons can wear, and here it is in a pattern you can use without trouble. If your arms are especially large, you may put sleeves in this dress, while leaving the back décolleté, as shown lower right. If your arms aren't a figure problem, dispense with the sleeves, as sketched upper left.

It will please you to know that this dress, which should be made of washable materials, of course, has a bolero accompaniment, converting it into a street costume. We advise plain colors, very small prints, or vertical stripes for the dress, with a striped or plain color for the bolero. Avoid splashy prints.

Style No. 3225 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch material for sleeveless dress; 3¼ yards for frock with short sleeves; 1⅛ yards for bolero.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Expert Advises Teen Age in Shoe Selection

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Sunday's talk for parents is to be about children's feet, based on an interview with an eminent orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Dudley J. Morton, associate professor of anatomy at Columbia university's college of physicians and surgeons. In it I shall not touch upon the care of the feet of teen age girls.

I don't add "and teen age boys" because they are not tempted in the same way that girls are by displays of fetching shoes. They are blessed, in that fashion ordains for the active masculine foot a low heeled, rather heavy soled shoe. For that reason, it was not the teen age boys but the girls I was concerned with, girls going out on dates, on glamor intent; girls who perch on charming stilts, flattering to the feet because of enticing color and design, and because they make the feet look small.

"What," I asked Dr. Morton, "have you got to say about high heels for teen age girls?"

Dr. Morton's answer was that the exclusive wearing of high heels shortens the muscles of the calf and the heel cords. This later creates strain on the foot.

Dr. Morton, who is liberal and doesn't in the least think that women need wear ugly shoes to show intelligence about footwear, has this to say:

"It will be a great forward movement in foot health among girls and women when low heels are accepted as approved daytime style, with the high heels reserved for dress occasions. The alternative use of high and low heels does not have an injurious effect when the feet are young and the shortening of the heel cords has not been acquired. But it is with the woman who has for years continuously worn high heels, and whose heel cords have shortened, that the occasional use of low heels may produce injurious effects, that is, strain on the arches."

"Tips for Tired Mothers" is a leaflet of interest to parents and nurses. Send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

First Four Artists 'Are Announced for 1940 Chicago Opera

The first four artists to be definitely engaged for the 1940 Chicago Opera company season were announced yesterday by Henry Weber, artistic director of the company. Giovanni Martinelli will sing the rôle of Rhadames in Verdi's "Aida" in the opening performance Nov. 2, a gala performance celebrating the 30th anniversary of resident opera in Chicago. Mr. Martinelli will also sing other rôles in the course of the season.

Marjorie Lawrence, Australian soprano, will be heard in the title rôle of Bizet's "Carmen" for the first time here. John Charles Thomas, noted American baritone, will sing the name part in an English performance of Verdi's "Falstaff," a revival postponed from last season. Dusolina Giannini, American soprano, will also sing in "Falstaff," and will appear for the first time anywhere in a revival of Wolf-Ferrari's "The Jewels of the Madonna."

The Montgomery Ward chorus gave its second annual spring concert in Thorne hall last night under the direction of Harry S. Walsh. While the music presented was not of an exacting standard, the chorus sang with attractive, well balanced tone and responsiveness to the conductor's indications. C. S.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

Beauty hints for the bride:

If it can possibly be arranged, spend a good part of the day before the wedding in a beauty salon. Have every luxurious treatment you can afford; they relax and beautify at the same time. Have your hair done that day so that it won't have that fresh-from-under-the-dryer look when you march down the aisle.

Several days before the wedding, take your veil and headdress, or at least the latter, to your hairdresser so your coiffure will be completely harmonious with its lines. And remember that the simpler the hairdress the better. Nothing should detract from your face.

It's a good thing to experiment with makeup too, keying it to the color of the costume, but keeping it completely natural and in character. You're not supposed to look sophisticated as you sweep down the aisle; you're supposed to look sweet and simple. Which means that your lip rouge should be in a natural rosy tone, that you go easy on the mascara and use makeup base and powder that give your complexion a soft radiance.

And, for that one day of your life, forsake the blood red nail enamel. It will probably be a struggle, but do it, and see that your bridesmaids, if they're all decked out in soft colors, do the same.

For a small fee, you can have an expert from your beauty salon come to your house the day of the wedding to give the whole wedding party expert assistance in makeup.

Affection Is Essential to Happy Union

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"A certain man has pursued me for three years, but I never gave him a tumble until recently. Suddenly I realized that I was getting on in years and maybe would not have another chance. I am in my early thirties now. He's 10 years older than I, and has been living apart from his wife for years, long before I met him. He has to support his three sons and give his wife alimony, and he doesn't earn any too much anyway. Sometimes I feel that I like him and then again I can't stand his presence. I wish I knew what to do. I hate to see myself getting older every year and no one to care a thing about what becomes of me. What is your opinion?"

"UNHAPPY."

Some of our bitterest marriages are contracted by a woman who feels it is her last chance, where a deep affection does not exist. Imagine consigning ones self to a future with a man whose presence at times one can't stand. That's marital suicide, we'd say. The lack of true, genuine feeling for the man, in itself, is sufficient reason not to marry him. Add to it a family he is committed to support out of an income that is none too hearty and you simply add one more barrier to congenial living.

Desperation has no place today in the life of a woman in her early thirties. The end of marriage opportunities hasn't arrived, altho opportunities, of course, do grow less with each successive year. But no marriage is infinitely better than marriage on the terms that "Unhappy" outlines. Loneliness is bad enough, but the loneliness experienced in domestic confines for which you have no taste is bitterness itself.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Many players are so pleased when they find that an ace-queen dealt to them lies over a king-jack that they lose sight of the true potentialities of their position. East, in the following hand, had the opportunity to be a hero, but muffed it.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the heart queen. Declarer won with the king and correctly went out to establish dummy's club suit, leading low to the nine. East smirked happily as he pounced on this with his queen, but his satisfaction was short lived. On the return lead of the spade ten declarer was forced to the finesse of the queen and, of course, it held. Now another club to dummy knocked out the ace, and the defenders were as helpless as babies. A spade return was gobbled up with the ace and a heart to dummy's ace permitted the running of three established clubs. The ace and king of diamonds accounted for the eighth and ninth North-South tricks.

It was nothing less than criminal for East-West to have conceded a game with their holding. Declarer had no chance whatsoever to take nine tricks as the cards lay, except with the coöperation of East. The latter, whose only heart had been extracted on the opening lead, should have had no great difficulty in visualizing that his acceptance of the first club trick probably would result in the establishment of dummy's suit, with the heart ace as a card of entry. Considering West's lead of the heart queen, indicating a sequence in the suit, it would have been all right for East to have taken his club queen on the first club lead if he had had a heart to return which would knock out dummy's only outside entry. Without that heart, however, East decidedly should have held up the club queen so that if declarer had only two clubs the suit never could be established and reached for cashing.

Note the vast difference made by a hold-up of the club queen. Declarer returns to his hand with a diamond and hopefully takes another club finesse. But now, when East wins with the queen and returns a spade, declarer has no more clubs, hence cannot even hope to establish the suit. The defenders have diamonds, hearts, and spades well under control, and declarer is confined to two heart tricks, two spades, one club, and two diamonds, a total of seven. Even if he succeeds in getting one of the defenders into an end play, in that way snaring an additional trick, the contract still goes down to defeat.

LINCOLN FIELDS TO OPEN 25 DAY MEETING TODAY

CRETE HANDICAP DAY'S FEATURE; 15 ARE ENTERED

Ivanhoe Purse Also on 1st Program.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Horse racing will return to Chicago this afternoon when Lincoln Fields opens its 25 day meeting.

Matt Winn.

Shortly after 2 o'clock a dozen 2 year olds will leave the paddock and go jogging around the track to the 5 furlong post, where Starter Bill Hamilton will be waiting for them. They will enter the remodeled Bahr gate with its electrically operated doors and, if all behave well, they will get the signal to go at 2:15.

From that moment until the last horse gets home in the last race at Hawthorne on Oct. 5, Chicago's turf followers will have continuous action.

Fifteen Named for Field.

Fifteen horses were named in the overnight entries for the Crete handicap, which will head today's program. This is the first of six $5,000 stakes which will be run during the meeting. The Calumet farm's good 4 year old, Easy Mon, will carry top weight of 122 pounds and will get considerable betting support. He is coupled as an entry with Beau James.

The Woolford farm stable dropped four names into the overnight box—Technician, Unerring, Joe Schenck, and Rifted Clouds. Trainer Ross Higdon is waiting for weather conditions to help him make up his mind which he will send to the post.

The Lexbrook stable's Potranco, John Marsch's Kings Blue, Shandon farm's Annie Alone, and A. L. Ferguson's Black Brummel are among the challengers in this six furlong dash.

Ivanhoe Attracts Speed.

The secondary event, the Ivanhoe purse, is exclusively for 3 year olds. It has attracted the entries of many speedy horses, including Woolford farm's Inscolad, Calumet's Star Chance and Bay Carse, and Lexbrook's Designer. Potranco also is eligible for the Ivanhoe, but Trainer L. J. Wilson probably will send him into the Crete handicap.

Executive Director Matt J. Winn has arranged a meeting which should get the Chicago season away to an excellent start. He has doubled the value of all six stakes and has sprinkled the daily programs with numerous good purses. Horsemen have responded by packing the stables with their thorobreds. Track Superintendent Tom Young has been forced to use all available space.

1939 Stewards Return.

Charles F. Price, C. Bruce Head, and Christopher J. FitzGerald will be back again as stewards, the last named being the representative of the Illinois racing commission. William H. Shelley, Larry Boganschutz, and Harry Lindenberger will call the order of finish from their positions as placing judges.

Lincoln fields may be reached by automobile over Route No. 1, which connects with Halsted street. The track is located just south of Crete. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad will operate trains directly to the track. These will leave the Dearborn street station at 12:30, 12:50, and 1:10 p. m. today, stopping at 47th and 63d streets. The Illinois Central will run race trains from Randolph street at 12:27 and 1:10 p. m. These will connect with buses at Homewood.

The Lincoln Fields meeting will be followed by 30 days at Arlington Park, 31 at Washington Park, and 28 at Hawthorne.

And I'll hold you always deep in my heart;

To take his first step with me at his side!

But none so much as his first by my side!

Advice and admonitions, abuse and all the rest
Are called out to the players, trying to do their best.

People in the ringside seats always seem to know
How a battle should be fought, just how each punch should go;
They understand exactly when an uppercut should come
And when to apoplectically yell: "Kill the great big bum."

In politics, you've noticed, it's very much the same,
It's the lookers-on who know what moves would bolster up the game;
Isn't it a pity, in fact, it's most dismaying,
All these experts on the sidelines instead of in there playing!

RIGNEY LIMITS TIGERS TO 3 HITS AS SOX WIN, 2-1

Larry Rosenthal's Single Beats Bridges.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The pennant-mad White Sox yesterday won their fifth straight game in Comiskey park when Johnny Rigney turned in a three-hitter to lead his team to another heartbreaking defeat for Tommy Bridges. Tommy yielded three hits, all singles, in the seven innings he pitched before giving way to a pinch batter. On May 11, the last time they faced Bridges, the Sox won, 1 to 0, tho held to two singles. The score yesterday was: Sox, 2; Tigers, 1.

Co-star with Rigney was Larry Rosenthal, the aroused outfielder, who singled with two out, two strikes called and the bases full in the fourth to score Bob Kennedy, who had made the first hit off Bridges, and Mike Kreevich, who had drawn the first of Tommy's two passes.

No. 3 for Johnny.

It was the third victory of the season for Rigney, his second straight and one of the best games he ever pitched. It was especially notable considering the vaunted long range power of the Tigers. His only let-down was in the fourth. After two were out in that session, Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg knocked successive doubles for the first run of the game.

The only other hit was a single by Bruce Campbell at the start of the eighth. Pinch Batter Earl Averill got John's only pass in the same inning. The Tigers were retired in order in all but the fourth and eighth innings.

In addition to being the fifth straight victory after nine straight losses at home, it was the third straight Sox conquest of the Tigers, the Chicagoans having conquered the Detroiters in the two last games of their last road trip.

Tough on Mr. Bridges.

It was the Sox's third meeting with Bridges, the slim man with the great curve ball. On April 23 Tommy held the Sox to five singles to win, 2 to 1. Then he went all the way to lose that two hitter.

The Sox fortified their fourth place position and rose to within a game and a half of third place, now held by the Tigers.

Starting last Monday, in last place and seven games under the .500 mark, the Sox have risen to within two games of being "as good as the league." By whipping Dizzy Trout and the Tigers today behind Jack Knott and Schoolboy Rowe tomorrow behind Ted Lyons, the Sox can take over third place. Knott and Lyons were the winners in those aforesaid last two games of the last road trip.

CRAIG WOOD'S 64 IN METROPOLITAN OPEN SETS MARK

Bloomfield, N. J., May 24 (AP).—Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., today broke every record in sight to lead the field thru the first round of the Metropolitan open golf tournament.

Wood, runner-up in the national open last summer, slashed six strokes off the revised par for the Forest Hill Field club course with a 33—31—64. This clipped a stroke from the competitive course record from the back tees, and was the best round ever made in a Metropolitan tournament. Leaders follow:

Schedule for 1943 Worries Big 9½ Chiefs

The directors of athletics and the football coaches of the Western conference meeting yesterday morning in the North Shore hotel, were unable to complete the football schedule for 1943. This schedule tentatively had been discussed last December, but yesterday the football men fumbled on the familiar play of games for Iowa, Indiana, and Purdue.

Unable to break the deadlock it was agreed to defer discussion until this morning, since the directors were busy last evening in the joint meeting with the faculty committee of the Big 9½.

The directors, however, skipped the trials of the track and field meet yesterday afternoon to huddle over the familiar problem. The universities with larger stadiums and with larger crowds generally have stuck to familiar schedules and invariably this leaves Indiana, Purdue, and Iowa in a round robin and also perpetually at the conference backdoor looking for handouts.

Iowa Has Trouble.

At one stage yesterday morning it was reported that Iowa had only one game, but later soared to three contests. Indiana and Purdue also have long resented the refusal of other teams, Iowa excepted, from playing on a home and home basis, except for infrequent contests.

While no announcement was made of the problems to be presented to the faculty committee, which concludes its sessions today, it was said that the Big 9½ might soon go on record favoring a postseason football game for the conference championship and that this regulation, if adopted, might specify that the conference champion meet the Pacific Coast conference champion in the annual Rose bowl game.

It's Been Discussed Before.

This was suggested several years ago but was howled down as evidence of overemphasis.

Elmer Layden, director of athletics at Notre Dame; Red Herd, Louisiana State; Charley Bachman, Michigan State football coach; George Veenker, director at Iowa State; Con Jennings, Marquette director and track coach; Jimmy Hagen of Pittsburgh, and Charley Bowser, Pitt football coach, were among those around the Big 9½ headquarters yesterday morning.

The directors voted yesterday afternoon to prohibit conference basketball teams playing under outside auspices.

20 HIGH SCHOOLS COMPETE TODAY IN WILSON GAMES

The second annual Wilson Junior college relays for high schools will attract 350 athletes representing 20 schools to Stagg field today. The entries include Amundsen, Austin, Calumet, Crane, Du Sable, Englewood, Harrison, Lake View, Lane, Morgan Park, Parker, Schurz, Senn, Sullivan, Taft, Tilden, Von Steuben, Hirsch, Hyde Park, and Lindblom.

Six relays and three individual events comprise the program which will get under way at 1 p. m. The 120 yard high hurdles, sprint medley for juniors, and high jump are new to the event.

Crane Tech won first honors last year with 45 points. Schurz was second with 26 and Englewood third with 23.

HARRIS BREAKS BIG 9½ MARK IN DISCUS THROW

Wisconsin, Illinois Get 10 in Finals.

Qualifiers

Michigan	19	Minnesota	7
Indiana	13	Purdue	6
Wisconsin	10	Northwestern	5
Illinois	10	Chicago	5
Ohio State	8	Iowa	2

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Archie Harris of Indiana saved an afternoon of routine qualifying performances in the Western conference track meet yesterday afternoon in Dyche stadium, when he smashed the year old Big 9½ record in the discus. Harris' record breaking toss of 166 feet 5¾ inches came in the next to the last event and long after the meager crowd of opening day fans had left the stadium.

Harris already had qualified in the shot put trials, where he was second in performance to Forrest Weber of Purdue. The big Negro weight man, who doubles in football, was third in the discus in last year's conference meet when Bill Watson of Michigan established the mark of 160 feet 10⅝ inches, which wiped out the 25 year old record of Arlie Mucks of Wisconsin.

Michigan Heads Qualifiers.

Strangely enough, Watson, who won championships for Michigan for three consecutive years, needed his entire span of competition to erase Mucks' discus record. Now, one year later, Harris has eclipsed that achievement.

Michigan led in number of qualifiers with 19 and Indiana was second with 13. Illinois and Wisconsin were tied with 10 each for third.

Preliminaries were not held in five events, the mile, two mile, high jump, pole vault, and the mile relay.

Michigan's numerical superiority was discounted, but in making every effort to break the Wolverines' supremacy, which now stretches to seven consecutive indoor and three outdoor championships, Indiana made the only startling maneuver yesterday when Coach Billy Hayes scratched his star, Roy Cochran, in the 440 yards.

How Coach Figures It.

Cochran established an American indoor quarter mile record last winter in the Big 9½ meet and defeated Warren Breidenbach of Michigan, who is listed as probable winner in this event this afternoon by virtue of his 47 2-10 seconds mark against Pittsburgh last Saturday. According to Coach Hayes' reasoning, Cochran could pick up more points by running in the 100 and 220 yard sprints, the low hurdles, in which he is defending champion, and competing in the broad jump, than he could by substituting the quarter mile for the 100 yard dash.

Cochran completed his assignments yesterday, but he will have to move up in the broad jump listings or be shut out of a scoring position. He seems assured of the low hurdle title, and probably will be at least third in each of the sprints.

Michigan Not Shut Out.

In addition to Harris and Cochran, Marc Jenkins qualified in the broad jump and the quarter mile. Campbell Kane qualified in the half mile and is the favorite in today's mile. Ed Hedges, Bob Hoke, Roger Poorman, and Charles Baillie completed Indiana's list. Poorman is defending champion in the javelin throw, but his best yesterday was 175 feet which listed him only ninth in the field of 10 qualifiers.

Michigan qualified three men in each of four events, two in another, and was not shut out in any of the ten contests. Wisconsin, with three in the discus, and Illinois, with three in the javelin were the only teams

The First Radish.

Swelled with pride, Pop's near to bustin'
And he's stepping plenty high;
He's been out into the garden
And there's triumph in his eye.
Now encased in sweet contentment,
He exudes a rare conceit,
For it seems he found a radish
That was big enough to eat.

Dad was worried over business,
And upset with vague alarm,
Till he visited the garden
Which he proudly calls the farm;
And among the stuff that grows there,
All in rows so trim and neat,
He dug up a plumpish radish
That was big enough to eat,

We've had onions on the table,
And there'll soon be lettuce, too;
Now the beets are due for thinning
And the beans are coming thru.
O, there may be things more thrilling,
But I'm sure there's none more sweet,
Then when Pop first finds a radish
That is big enough to eat.

OLYMPIA FIELDS TO OBSERVE ITS 25TH BIRTHDAY

Midlothian, Idlewild Also Face Busy Week-End.

The south section of the Chicago golf district dominates the week-end competitive calendar, with three neighboring clubs holding important tournaments. Olympia Fields, founded in May, 1916, will open a two day silver anniversary celebration.

Another huge field will go to the post today in the first 18 holes of Midlothian's 36th annual Derby, one of the oldest and best known invitational events in the country. Idlewild will mark the rebuilding of its clubhouse today, and will carry on with an exhibition match tomorrow.

Joe Creevy and Jack Carroll have arranged another unique event in connection with Midlothian's Derby today. For the last three years, they have concluded the first day's activities with a boneyard Derby, in which members dressed as jockeys mounted antique nags in a special race. This year they plan to vary the turf motif and run a Roman chariot race. A member dressed as the Emperor Nero will head the prerace parade. A total of nearly $700 worth of prizes will be given to 27 winning players in the two day tournament, which ends with another 18 holes tomorrow.

Idlewild will celebrate the rebuilding of its clubhouse and improved locker facilities today with a day of golf and an evening of entertainment. Harry I. Hoffman is president of the club and largely responsible for the revived activity at the club.

The club is planning a series of exhibition matches during the season. Tomorrow afternoon, the first of these will send Pat Sharkey, Idlewild professional, and Tommy Armour of Medinah against Jimmy Foulis of Ruth Lake and Harry Adams of Medinah.

The Lincoln Park Golf club will begin its season today with the opening of the Waveland avenue course. Charles Maudsley, 4546 North Malden street, is president of the club, which has a 1940 program of seven tournaments. A total of 67 trophies has been donated as prizes.

Elizabeth Randolph, secretary of the Women's Jackson Park Golf club, announces that the twenty-sixth annual women's Cook county championship will be decided at Jackson park from July 8 thru July 12. The entry fee is $1. Entries may be forwarded to Miss Randolph, 8022 Ingleside.

TIRED CUBS GET A REST; BATTLE PIRATES TODAY

Larry French Seeks Sixth Triumph in Pittsburgh.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 24.—The Cubs had no trouble today shaking off the effects of their 13 inning electric light frolic with the Phillies last night in Philadelphia and the hurried train ride which followed. The fact that they made away with a 4 to 3 decision served as a stimulant, but they weren't at all displeased when informed rain had washed away this afternoon's scheduled opener with the punchdrunk Pirates. Almost to the last man, they turned in for siestas.

It also is probable that the Pirates welcomed an extra 24 hours before having to appear before their constituents, who must be pretty mad about what has been happening. The Pirates won only one game while in the east and Frankie Frisch, their manager, is threatening to do another fainting act any minute, but this one will be legitimate. He put on the faint on the field in Philadelphia the other day, and it cost him a $75 fine because it failed to impress the umpires. They knew Frisch was merely employing a unique way of showing his opinion of a decision.

No Pennant Talk Yet.

The Cubs have had a highly successful journey up to here, but they haven't started to toot the pennant horns just yet. However, from what they've seen of the remainder of the league, they are beginning to suspect they have a chance, even if their several weaknesses aren't corrected.

The only team they really respect is the Reds, and they are not wrong about that. Since leaving home they have won six against two defeats, one of these in New York and the other in Brooklyn. But they still must play a pair here with the Pirates, who, while a league doormat, haven't been a soft touch for the Chicagoans. The latter have lost three out of six to Frisch's nightmares.

Larry Remembers April 23.

Larry French will pitch tomorrow and it will be more than just an effort to record his sixth victory. Lefty Larry has not forgotten what happened the last time he was on the local lot on April 23. He had the Pirates whipped, 2 to 1, going into the ninth when three hits filled the bases with one out. Another hit off Rescuer Vance Page gave the Pirates a 3 to 2 decision, one of two French has lost. The other was the work of the Dodgers in Chicago. French held them to one run and three hits in nine innings, but in the 10th they blotted him out with three runs.

Giants Take First Home Night Game

New York, May 24 (AP).—The New York Giants hammered out an 8 to 1 victory over the Boston Bees tonight in Manhattan's first night game. A crowd of 22,260 attended.

QUAKES KILL 249 IN PERU; 3,000 HURT; LIMA HIT

14 Shocks Shatter 90% of Buildings at Resort.

LIMA, Peru, May 24 (AP).—A series of violent earthquakes rocked Peru today, causing a heavy death toll and leaving thousands homeless. Crippled communications obscured the full extent of the disaster, but reports tonight placed the dead at 249 and the injured at more than 3,000. Many more victims were feared entombed in debris in the seacoast and resort cities shaken.

Map locates region shaken by quakes.

Seventy dead were counted at Lima alone. Callao, Lima's seaport, 6 miles away, was the hardest hit. The death toll there was put at 150, with 1,100 injured.

Almost every building in Callao was reported collapsed or cracked and the whole population was camping in streets and plazas.

14 Shocks Before Nightfall.

The shocks started with a one minute tremor. The population rushed panic stricken into the streets. There were 13 more shocks before nightfall.

At the seaside resort of Chorillos 90 per cent of the buildings collapsed, killing 15 persons.

Two children were killed when a schoolhouse collapsed at Hauraz, capital of Ancash department.

Historic Cathedral Damaged.

There was no communication with southern cities and the extent of the disaster there remained in doubt.

Among the many historic structures damaged in Lima—one of the oldest cities of the new world—was the 16th century Lima cathedral.

The streets were patrolled by marines and sailors landed hurriedly from warships.

LIMA SCENE OF MANY QUAKES.

Lima, capital of Peru, with a population of more than 176,000, founded by Pizarro, the Spanish conquistador, in 1535, has been stricken several times by earthquakes.

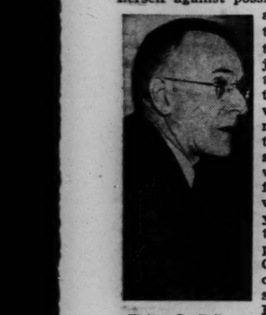
The most disastrous was in 1746, when 5,000 of the 60,000 inhabitants were killed.

Temblor Felt in Ecuador.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, May 24 (AP). —A strong temblor was felt here today, but no damage resulted.

BLAMES DEFENSE PLIGHT OF NATION ON BIG SPENDING

America would not need to defend herself against possible fifth column and Trojan horse tactics in any future war, and the job of building up the nation's military defenses would be immensely easier if the New Deal had spent its billions wisely instead of foolishly. This was the assertion yesterday of Walter D. Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing company, who spoke before the Executives' club of Chicago in Hotel Sherman.



Walter D. Fuller. [Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

"Had we rescued our fellow Americans from the relief rolls and from unemployment," Fuller declared, "we could take a preparedness program costing billions in our stride from a standpoint of both production and cost. Much of the danger of fifth columns would be unthinkable under different employment circumstances."

As a constructive program he urged the following measures:

1. Hand relief problems back to local government.
2. Train the unemployed to fill jobs.
3. Remove the hand of politics from business.

STRATOLINER DUE TOMORROW; IT'S FIRST ON AIR RUN

A new Transcontinental and Western Air Stratoliner—the first four engined transport plane to go into regular service on domestic airlines —will arrive at Chicago airport at 9:55 a. m. tomorrow. The ship will remain at the field for only 25 minutes and then will take off for a nonstop high altitude flight to Washington, D. C. with a group of newspaper writers aboard.

TWA already has taken delivery on three of these airplanes and regular service over the transcontinental and the Chicago-New York airways is scheduled to begin next month. The airplanes are commercial versions of the army's B-17 flying fortress bombers and are the first commercial ships designed with "altitude conditioning." This is the aviation industry's coined phrase to describe cabin supercharging that keeps passengers and crew comfortable while the airplane soars into thin air above 16,000 feet.

The airliner weighs 45,000 pounds and has a 107 foot wing spread. Each of its four engines develops 1,100 horse power. The plane accommodates 33 passengers by day and 25 by night and cruises at 240 miles an hour at 20,000 feet. Capt. D. W. [Tommy] Tomlinson, TWA's high altitude expert, will be in command.

H. D. WHITEHOUSE AND MRS. JAEGER MARRIED IN OHIO

Howard D. Whitehouse, investment banker of 424 Diversey parkway, and Mrs. Minnie Birk Jaeger, wealthy widow of George Jaeger Sr., were married Tuesday in Cleveland, O., friends here learned yesterday.

The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Myron J. Penty, and the couple left immediately for Mrs. Whitehouse's summer home at Wianno, Mass.

Mrs. Jaeger gave her age as 55, and Whitehouse said he was 57 in applying for the marriage license. The bride is the daughter of Jacob Birk, one of the original members of the Birk Brothers Brewing company. She went to live with her sister, Miss Amelia Birk, at 457 Wellington street, following the death of her husband in 1936.

The marriage was the third for Whitehouse. His first wife died in 1931. In 1933 he married Mrs. Lucille Douglas, ex-wife of W. A. S. Douglas, former Chicago newspaper man. This marriage ended in 1934 when Mrs. Whitehouse was granted a divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

OUT OF ONE JAIL INTO ANOTHER; DIVORCEE FAINTS

On Thursday Mrs. Rose Pauline Rudy, 26 years old, divorced wife of an ex-convict, completed a 20 day sentence in the Bridewell for running a traffic light and thumbing her nose at a policeman.

Yesterday Mrs. Rudy, who lives at 4026 North Kedvale avenue, was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail by Municipal Judge J. M. Braude for defrauding her fiancé, Nicholas Dattomo, 28, of 747 North Central Park avenue. She admitted she had no intention of marrying Dattomo, altho he gave her $239 under that impression.

When Judge Braude pronounced sentence, Mrs. Rudy fainted. Dattomo just looked at her recumbent figure, then stalked out of the room. A motion for a new trial will be heard Wednesday.

EX-HIGHWAY COP SENTENCED FOR ROBBERY IN 1930

John Howe Jr., suspended state highway policeman, was sentenced yesterday to one year to life in the penitentiary on a 10 year old armed robbery charge by Judge John F. Bolton. Howe was convicted by a Criminal court jury May 2.

Howe's robbery record was discovered last December when he was seized as an alleged go-between in a jury fixing scandal. It was revealed that Howe was arrested in October, 1930, as a bandit, but never brought to trial. He avoided prosecution by pleading insanity, being committed to the Kankakee State asylum from which he escaped. Later he was appointed a state highway policeman.

Judge Bolton permitted Howe to remain at liberty on a $20,000 bond pending his appeal.

RUBBER FIRMS FACE THREAT TO SUPPLY SOURCE

British, Dutch Lands Main Producers.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

The $900,000,000 American rubber industry for the first time in its 101 year history faces a threat to its main sources of crude rubber. Almost all of the crude rubber used in this country comes from British and Dutch colonies.

With the Netherlands already under German domination and the British empire menaced by a conflict which has reached its doorstep, these colonies are in a precarious position, according to those observers who assert that Germany covets the valuable raw materials found in those lands.

About 97 per cent of the world output of crude rubber is produced in British Malaya, Netherlands Indies, Ceylon, and other areas in what is known to the rubber trade as the middle east, according to the tariff commission. Only a small amount of rubber is produced in South America.

Some Have Own Sources.

Three American companies, Goodyear Tire and Rubber, Firestone Tire and Rubber, and United States Rubber have plantations in the middle east, Liberia, Brazil, Panama, Costa Rica, and Mexico, but these supply only about 6 per cent of this country's rubber needs.

The map shows the countries that produce most of the world's supply of crude rubber.

Exports of crude rubber from leading producing countries in the last three years were:

Others	107,589	127,316	135,370

The British colonies produce about 50 per cent of the world's total output of crude rubber, and the Dutch about 37 per cent. Most of the crude rubber was brought to the United States in English and Dutch ships.

Production Is Controled.

Rubber production is controled under an international agreement signed in 1934 by producers of about 95 per cent of the world's output. The agreement is administered by the international rubber regulating committee which limits replanting, sets production quotas, and licenses shipments in an effort to balance supply and demand and hold world stocks to a "reasonable" level.

As a result of this crop control and improved consumption, rubber stocks at the end of 1939 dropped to a new low of 391,100 tons. The committee, therefore, increased allowable shipments for the first half of 1940 to 80 per cent of theoretical capacity, which was rated as 1,541,550 long tons in 1940. In the latter half of 1939 the export quota was 67½ per cent.

The American rubber industry in the first quarter of 1940 consumed 155,000 long tons. The total used in the United States and in the world in recent years follows [long tons]:

	U. S.	World.
1935	491,600	937,500
1936	575,000	1,016,600
1937	543,700	1,092,200
1938	437,200	933,500
1939	577,800	1,076,000

Of the approximately 500 establishments in the domestic rubber industry, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company is the largest. Goodyear has a plantation in Sumatra which provides a small percentage of its needs.

One Has African Plantations.

Firestone Tire & Rubber company, second largest producer, has plantations in Liberia, West Africa, but also obtains only a minor part of its rubber from its own sources. United States Rubber company, third in rank, derives about one-fifth of its requirements from its plantations in Sumatra and Malaya. The fourth ranking company, the B. F. Goodrich company, has not established its own source of raw rubber.

Altho no shortage of rubber has occurred as a result of the war, the federal government already has directed attention to such an eventuality. The tariff commission, in its report on the effects of war on rubber imports, said that should a shortage of rubber occur, the industry would use larger amounts of reclaimed rubber. Normally the consumption of reclaimed rubber is about 140,000 long tons a year, but reclaiming plants operating at full capacity could turn out about 250,000 tons, which is equivalent to about 125,000 tons of crude rubber.

Substitutes Can Be Used.

The tariff commission suggested that synthetic rubber, already made by some companies, and rubber obtained from the guayule, a desert shrub growing wild in Mexico and in southwestern United States, might be used as substitutes for imported rubber. Domestic production of synthetic rubber was estimated by the commission at less than 6,000 long tons a year.

Railroad Uses Bus and Truck with Success

How one large railroad—the Southern Pacific system—is using varied forms of transportation to meet its competition was disclosed yesterday in its annual report for 1939 operations. The statement signed by A. D. McDonald, president, told the progress the road has made with new streamlined trains, motor truck operation, bus service, and speeding up of both its passenger and freight operations.

A. D. McDonald.

The road found its streamlined daylight operation between San Francisco and Los Angeles so profitable that it placed two new de luxe trains of this type in service early this year. It refurbished the original two trains and now has four streamlined trains on this run. In conjunction with other roads it will offer streamlined service between Chicago and San Francisco for summer vacation travelers.

Offers Pickup Service.

In the truck activities the road thru subsidiaries and affiliated companies participated in more than 7,745 miles of over the road truck operation. It has established store-door pickup and delivery service for less than carload freight shipments at all points where volume warranted it.

Substantial incomes were produced by the Pacific Greyhound lines, in which the road has more than a third interest, and by the Southwestern Greyhound Lines, Inc., in which it also has a substantial holding. The former operated over 9,336 route miles and the latter 6,950. The road itself operated trains over 13,068 miles of track.

Running time of passenger trains between Los Angeles and San Francisco and Chicago was reduced. Freight trains were speeded up to give overnight service out of Pacific coast cities to an extensive area similar to the service now being given by leading Chicago railroads thruout the middle west.

Operating Profit Doubled.

As previously reported, the road's 1939 net operating income increased $14,131,406 over 1938 to a total of $28,428,410. The net income [after fixed charges] was $6,134,574.

The class 1 railroads had aggregate net deficit of $12,603,606 for the first three months of this year compared with a deficit of $42,819,986 in the corresponding 1939 period, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. The deficit is after fixed charges. March net deficit was $4,954,703, against a $10,240,752 deficit in March, 1939.

SOUTH AMERICA SEEKS CAPITAL, BACHE REPORTS

New York, May 24 [Special].—Substantial demand for American capital in South America was reported today by Jules S. Bache, head of the New York Stock exchange firm of J. S. Bache & Co. He returned from a seven week trip to that continent.

"The returns," he said, "seem to be ample, taxes are low, and practically guaranteed to remain so, at least for the immediate future. It is to be hoped that every effort will be made on our part to increase our imports from these countries, especially in view of the present central European situation, as any success by the Germans will be used to its full advantage in again exporting their wares to South America."

Bache declared he was impressed with the commercial activities there, principally in Argentina where "they have not felt the loss of foreign trade as much as in Chile and in Brazil."

PUBLIC SECURITY OFFERINGS LEAST FOR SIX MONTHS

New York, May 24 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities during the week ended May 23 totaled only $6,415,000, the smallest weekly volume in six months, Poor's Publishing company reported today.

Several companies postponed sale of new issues because of the sharp break in stock and bond prices. The situation was similar to that at the start of the war, when weakness in the bond market kept new offerings at a very low level for 10 weeks.

Comparison of the week's financing follows:

Sand and Gravel Producer Group Is Fined $50,000

New York, May 24 [Special].—Fines totaling $50,000 were imposed on the Long Island Sand and Gravel Producers' association and eight of its corporate members today in federal court. Judge Henry W. Goddard assessed the fines after the corporations, which were accused of interfering with the interstate sand and gravel industry, had declined to defend themselves against the charges.

Court Orders Gas Refunds to Start by Sept. 1

Circuit Judge George Fred Rush entered a court order yesterday directing the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company to begin refunding $6,377,242 acquired from 850,000 Chicago domestic gas consumers thru a rate increase which has been invalidated by the courts.

Judge Rush directed the company to make the rebate by check and to have the first 100,000 checks in the mails not later than Sept. 1. The company is to continue sending out checks at the rate of 100,000 a month until all consumers have received their refunds May 1, 1941.

Must Itemize Excess Billing.

The company is required to itemize excessive billing by months since the increased rate was put into effect Feb. 4, 1938, under protection of a permanent injunction issued by Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski. The itemization is to be made on a slip attached to each check, and the customer is given 60 days after receipt of his check to protest to the Circuit court regarding discrepancies in the amount refunded.

The gas company is authorized to deduct from the checks any offset for overdue bills, but not to deduct the amounts of current bills. The customer, on the other hand, is required to pay his current bills and may not deduct them from the amount he computes is due in refund.

The company was directed to list on a separate schedule accompanying the refund check any offsets or deductions claimed for overdue bills. In cases where the company has a judgment against a customer for an overdue bill, it may deduct court costs as well as the amount of the judgment.

Average Refund to Be $6.

George A. Ranney, chairman of Peoples Gas, has estimated that the average refund will amount to approximately $6.

The refunds became obligatory last April 1 when the United States Supreme court in Washington, D. C., dismissed the company's appeal for a review of the Illinois Supreme court decision holding the rate increase illegal. The company put a downward revision in rates into effect at that time. The company went to the Illinois Supreme court three times on appeal.

The rate increase amounted to approximately $3,000,000 a year and amounted to about 30 cents a month to the average householder. Since the increase went into effect, however, all payments in excess of those authorized under the prior rate have been held in escrow.

Week's Auto Production Declines to 96,810 Units

Detroit, Mich., May 24 (AP).—Ward's Automotive Reports estimated today that output of motor cars and trucks for the current week would total 96,810 units, compared with 99,030 last week and 67,740 a year ago. The survey said that a few producers curtailed schedules this week and that the Memorial day holiday next week would bring a long week-end shutdown in most plants.

JONES DROPS FIGHT WITH MORGENTHAU TO KEEP UP 'TEAMWORK'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones today agreed to drop his fight for increased powers for the Reconstruction Finance corporation over banking functions.

Jones had opposed Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau in drafting and pushing a bill now before congress which would have permitted the RFC to purchase preferred stock of national banks without Morgenthau's permission, and would have allowed banks to make 15 year instead of 10 year real estate loans. These provisions were contained in a bill whose primary purpose was to recapture 300 million dollars in lending agency funds for the federal treasury.

In announcing that Jones had agreed to drop the controversial sections of the bill, Morgenthau said that he and Jones had worked together for seven years and that President Roosevelt wanted them to continue working as a team. "Any differences over any little bills should be dropped," Morgenthau said.

ALLIES' PURCHASES OF PLANES IN 10 DAYS TOTAL $100,000,000

New York, May 24 (AP).—The Anglo-French purchasing board said today that orders for $100,000,000 of additional aircraft and equipment had been placed with American manufacturers in the last 10 days, raising to $820,000,000 the value of aircraft and accessories ordered to date.

The board also announced that the Belgian government was coöperating in purchases here and that arrangements were being made for the board to buy planes for Norway and the Netherlands.

"The allies are all in this buying together," said the announcement.

Responsible sources had said last night that since August 6,100 planes and been purchased, 3,100 by Great Britain and 3,000 by France, and that negotiations were under way for 4,000 more. Of these, more than 2,300 combat and training planes had been delivered, it was said.

The board declared "delivery of airplanes is improving each month."

COUNCIL MOVES TO BRING PLANE MAKERS TO STATE

The industrial and aviation committees of the Illinois development council yesterday drew up a plan of action designed to attract aircraft and airplane parts makers to Illinois. Foremost in the program is coördination of their activities with the Civic Aeronautics authority, the Illinois Aeronautics commission, the war department, municipal officials, and chambers of commerce.

The council this week inserted a full page advertisment in leading trade publications on aviation and manufacturing, emphasizing the advantages Illinois offers aircraft plants in location, labor supply, sources of raw materials, transportation, and other facilities.

Robert E. Straus, vice president of the American National Bank and Trust company, is chairman of the Illinois development council; Milburn P. Akers is executive secretary, and Ben Regan is chairman of the aviation committee.

The industrial committee membership includes W. Homer Hartz, Chester G. Ferris, George Mitten, and Anderson Pace.

CHRYSLER UNIT IN CANADA BARS FOREIGN TONGUES

Windsor, Ont., May 24 [Special].—Recurring disturbances between its Canadian employés and those of German extraction prompted the Chrysler corporation of Canada to post notices in its three Windsor plants today prohibiting the use of any but the French and English languages on the company's property under penalty of dismissal. French and English are the official languages of Canada.

The company is requiring all employés to fill out detailed questionnaires giving information on residence and citizenship. Three German aliens, who were the center of a disturbance in one plant a few days ago, were given leaves of absence by the company and told not to return until they could produce naturalization papers.

Canadian Chrysler employés also demanded that all German workers, naturalized or alien, be discharged, but the management refused on the ground that dismissal of naturalized German employés would amount to racial discrimination, which it declared to be illegal in Canada.

2 GOVERNMENT AGENCY MEN PUT ON UTILITY BOARD

New York, May 24 [Special].—Trustees of the Associated Gas & Electric system, giant utility system which was placed in bankruptcy several months ago, today appointed two men from government agencies as directors and vice presidents of Utility Management corporation, an Associated Gas subsidiary.

Albert F. Tegen, a member of the staff of the Securities and Exchange commission since 1935, and Alex Speer, chief engineer for two years of the power division of the Public Works administration, were brought into the concern, which furnishes system operating companies with management, engineers, accountants and handles other personnel problems.

Ernest J. Howe, financial officer of Utility Management, who was named to the board of the corporation on May 8 also was made a vice president.

Utilities Would Buy Securities in Open Market

Washington, D. C., May 24 [Special].—Two utility holding companies started something new in the history of federal regulation today when they applied for authority from the Securities and Exchange commission to buy in the open market securities of certain of their own or subsidiary securities. The effect of this move, it was believed, would be to steady prices in a falling market.

The applicants were the Middle West corporation, which sought permission to buy up 69,000 shares of various stocks of its subsidiaries, and the Federal Water Service corporation, which asked permission to buy $500,000 principal amount of its own 5½ per cent debentures of 1954.

Believed Price Support Plan.

The unprecedented applications suggested a possible drive by utility companies to correct a sag in prices believed to have no relation to the present and future earning power of the companies. That many corporations not subject to SEC regulation in this regard may have already undertaken such steps on their own initiative is believed likely.

Altho applications did not mention "stabilization" as the object of the purchases—one of the companies indicating that opportunity for investment of idle funds was a motive—the language of the applications indicated that steadying of prices may be the purpose. The Middle West corporation application said:

"The war has already produced unsettlement in the market and selling of securities without reference to their intrinsic values on earning power.

Lists Shares Desired.

"The unsettlement of the market may increase. The company desires, particularly during such periods of unsettlement, to be authorized to make the purchases of shares hereinafter referred to; accordingly the company desires that the commission order or orders upon this application be entered at the earliest possible day—not later than June 1, 1940, if in any way possible."

The company asked authority to buy at the market on any national securities exchange up to the indicated number of shares as follows:

Seven thousand shares of $7 prior lien preferred stock of Central and Southwest Utilities.

Seven thousand shares of $7 preferred stock of Central and Southwest Utilities.

Five thousands shares of 7 per cent preferred stock of American Public Service.

Five thousand shares of 7 per cent prior lien preferred stock of North West Utilities company.

Fifteen thousand shares of $6 preferred stock of Central Illinois Public Service.

Thirty thousand shares of capital stock of United Public Service.

C. & N. W. GROUPS ASK $828,000 IN FEES AND COSTS

Various committees, bond trustees, and attorneys are seeking an aggregate of $828,000 in fees and expenses for efforts in bringing about a reorganization of the Chicago and North Western railroad, it was revealed yesterday.

These petitions, of which there are 19 filed before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, Chicago, are exclusive of those parties which merely asked a "reasonable fee," without stipulating an amount.

The interstate commerce commis- federal judge may allow each petision, following a hearing on the fees, will set a maximum for amounts the federal judge may allow each petitioner.

CHICAGO MADE PLANES TO BE TESTED BY ARMY

Howard Aircraft corporation, Chicago, announced yesterday it had accepted an invitation of the war department to demonstrate the company's DGA-15 series single engined transport planes at Bolling field, Washington, D. C., next week. For three days beginning Monday the department will study planes suitable for military liaison work and aerial photography.

The company also announced appointment of Gordon Israel, formerly with the Stinson division of Aviation Manufacturing corporation, as chief engineer.

BUSINESS RISES, PARTLY DIRECT RESULT OF WAR

Steel Reaches High Level of Activity.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The business situation appears more favorable, based on reports on current industrial and business activity, than is indicated by the clatter of the stock ticker and double streamer war headlines. Industrial activity is expanding, partly as a direct result of war orders. Reports on retail sales are not conclusive, but on the whole are favorable.

Steel mills are operating at the highest rate since last January. At the start of the week mills were running at 73 per cent of theoretical capacity and a further increase in operations has occurred since. Chicago area mills were estimated yesterday to have neared 80 per cent capacity operations compared with about 60 per cent in the middle of April.

80 Per Cent Is Near "Capacity."

Many individual mills reach virtual capacity when the rate of operations gets above 80 per cent because some equipment is reserved for specialized operations and repair and maintenance work keep a certain amount of other equipment out of operation most of the time.

The expansion in steel activity is being translated into increased employment. So far this has been confined mostly to giving more work to employés now on the pay rolls by increasing hours. First call on new jobs will be given to regular employés who have been laid off.

The federal reserve board reported yesterday that department store sales rose 5 per cent in the week ended May 18 over the corresponding period last year. The gain recorded in the 7th [Chicago] reserve district amounted to approximately 11 per cent. More favorable weather conditions helped bring out the retail buyers, it was said.

Auto Sales Above Year Ago.

Statistics obtained from the bureau of motor advice disclosed that sales of new passenger automobiles in Cook county in the first 20 days of May totaled 7,880, compared with 7,098 in the corresponding period of May, 1939. Sales of automobiles this month have not equaled the record level attained in April. Sales in the first 20 days of April totaled 9,555 cars. Total car sales in April were the largest for any corresponding month in history for Cook county and were only slightly below the all time monthly sales peak reached in July, 1929.

The business and industrial news appears to have helped stem the flood of selling in the stock market. Prices have shown comparative stability in the last three days in contrast to the violent swings which had occurred earlier in the week.

CONGRESS HOTEL (OWNED BY RFC) SELLS BUILDING

The Congress Hotel and Annex, Inc. [owned by the Reconstruction Finance corporation], has contracted to sell to Emmett A. Bibbons, operator of several men's hotels, the four story building at the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Harrison street. The property, 100 by 138, long used as a dormitory for Congress hotel employés, will be remodeled into a men's hotel, it is understood.

According to the purchase contract filed yesterday at the county recorder's office, the selling price will be $42,500. Gibbons will pay $8,500 cash and monthly instalments until he has paid $22,500. He will then receive a deed to the fee and a bill of sale of the personal property and will give a $20,000 mortgage to the RFC.

EFFORT TO CLEAR HOLLAND MONEY SNARL STARTED

The semiofficial foreign exchange committee took steps at New York yesterday to unsnarl problems created by the suspension of trade in Dutch currency. The committee, headed by Robert F. Loree, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company, asked banks and foreign exchange dealers to report on amounts of spot balances in Holland, and the amounts of Dutch guilder credits outstanding. Trading in Dutch and Belgian currencies was suspended May 10 when the Low Countries were invaded by Germany.

The British pound was unchanged after an early 3 cent climb. The closing price was $3.19. The Canadian dollar rose ⅛ cent to 78⅛ cents in American money. The French franc declined 0.01 cent to 1.80 cents.

Senate Group Approves Big Crop Loan Fund Boost

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—A $500,000,000 increase in funds for government loans on major crops—intended to cushion possible price declines due to the European war—was approved today by a senate banking subcommittee. Carl B. Robbins, president of the Commodity Credit corporation which underwrites these price supporting loans, had just testified that money available for loans had been reduced to about $19,000,000.

Nazi Push Cuts Off American Cotton Outlet

New York, May 24 (AP).—The German push to the English channel ports threatens to obstruct or choke off the chief remaining continental market for American cotton, trade sources said today.

Cotton men estimated about 50 per cent of France's textile manufacturing capacity was engulfed or directly threatened by the German invasion of Flanders and northern France.

France, it was said, has been importing most of her cotton thru Le Havre, not far from the extreme of the Nazi drive to the coast.

Points Up Export Problem.

The threat to the French market for cotton, exporters said, emphasized what may develop into the biggest export problem for American farm products since the civil war. Virtually the whole continental market would be closed if Germany throttled France's northern ports and Italian entry into the war should stop Mediterranean trade, they said.

In the last decade, the continent has taken from around 2,000,000 to more than 4,000,000 bales of American cotton every season. This is equal to about half or more of the total foreign consumption of the American staple.

Likewise hard hit, either by closing of markets or allied diversion of purchases to save dollar exchange for mechanical war equipment, have been tobacco, grains and fruits.

Seek Loan Power Boost.

A hint of the impact of this shrinkage in the foreign markets of the farmer upon Washington policies is the move in congress to expand the Commodity Credit corporation's loaning authority by about $500,000,000, approved by a senate committee today.

Germany, once the rival of England as the largest foreign market for American cotton, steadily has cut into America's continental outlets by conquests of her smaller neighbors. Czecho-Slovakia, Holland, Poland, Belgium, and Denmark were sizable markets.

Almost as large as these combined is the French outlet—ranging from 600,000 to more than 800,000 bales a season in recent years.

Invasion Cuts Shipments.

Following extraordinarily small exports the previous season, shipments abroad increased sharply last autumn and winter under stimulus of an export subsidy.

But European buying since the invasion of the Low Countries, exporters said, virtually has ceased, altho shipments have continued to England and by way of the Mediterranean. Some 450,000 bales are booked for June and July shipment, it was said, but whether all this would move depended upon the war.

England, shippers reported, still has to transport more than 300,000 of the 600,000 bales of cotton traded for rubber.

TEAMSTER UNION IS CONVICTED OF RACKETEERING

New York, May 24 (AP).—A federal court jury today covicted local 807 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, [A. F. L.] and 26 of its members of conspiracy to violate the antitrust laws and the antiracketeering act.

The government charged the union members had established a "vicious racket" thru which they exacted approximately $1,000,000 annually from trucking industries by threats and violence. The jury found the union guilty of four counts of the antiracketeering indictment, and the individuals of one or more counts of the same charge.

The union members face possible imprisonment up to a maximum of 41 years, according to the degree of guilt, and fines of $15,000 to $45,000. The local faces a possible maximum fine of $45,000. June 7 was set for sentencing.

ANTITRUST ACT UNFAIR, ASSERTS PLUMBING GROUP

Cleveland, O., May 24 (AP).—Defendants in the government's antitrust indictment against the plumbing industry declared today that the Sherman act has been so "modified and restricted" by congress as to deny the due process of law guaranteed by the constitution.

They argued the act discriminates between agricultural producers' associations and others "by legalizing certain monopolies and restraints of interstate trade and commerce by such producers which are forbidden if intended or accomplished by others."

Contesting the indictment are the New York State Association of Wholesalers of Plumbing and Heating Supplies, W. A. Case and Son Manufacturing company of Buffalo, N. Y., Crane company of Chicago, the Never-Split Seat company of Evansville, Ind., and four individual defendants.

Canadian Exchanges Close for Empire Day Holiday

TORONTO, May 24 (AP).—Security exchanges in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver today celebrated Empire day—the 121st anniversary of Queen Victoria's birthday—by suspending trade over the weekend. The Winnipeg Grain exchange closed today only.

EFFECT OF NAZI VICTORY CAUSES MUCH CONCERN

Problem Puzzles Federal Experts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—Administration officials are seriously concerned about the economic effects on the United States of a German victory over the British and French and their allies. Regardless of wishful thinking on their part that the allies may finally squeeze thru, the terrific onslaught of the Nazi blitzkrieg has forced high officials to study reluctantly the consequences of a complete German conquest.

E. A. Goldenweiser says future value of gold hoard is unpredictable.

They assert that their thoughts on the subject are no different than those of "other intelligent persons" and that they know little more about it than the laymen. They declare much conjecture must be involved in the formulation of any plans.

At War Economically.

The United States and Germany have been at loggerheads economically and fighting each other with economic weapons. The administration has pushed its reciprocal trade treaty program as a counteracting force against the Nazi barter principle. But at times it has not hesitated in adopting the same bartering method, under another name. An example was the exchange of American cotton and wheat for British tin and rubber.

The United States also has imposed countervailing, or penalty, duties against imports of German goods on the grounds that they were subsidized. The United States worked hard to counteract a growing Nazi hold on trade in South America. With this economic tension between the United States and Germany it is easily understood why officials fear for the future of American trade interests if Germany is the dominating influence in world trade rather than Great Britain and her allies.

Experts Are Puzzled.

What German economic and trade policy would be in this eventuality has the experts puzzled. One high administration official said privately that it was much easier to forecast Germany's military strategy than her economic policy.

A victorious Germany may try to push her past policy of self-sufficiency and build trade walls around the European continent. On the other hand, she might gain sufficient resources to enable her to return to the more orthodox trading principles of paying cash for the goods she buys.

It was her lack of gold and raw materials that forced Germany to adopt the barter principle. If she has gained gold in her conquests, as has been suspected, she may be in a position to adopt the American way of trading. But whatever gold she may gain will not compare with the United States hoard, which has passed 19 billion dollars, or about 70 per cent of the world's monetary gold.

Might Lose Its Value.

This precious metal may be repudiated finally as a currency base. The barter principle has obviated the need of gold in trading. The American gold hoard was described some time ago by E. A. Goldenweiser, head economist of the federal reserve system, as "of little value now and whose value in the future is unpredictable."

The allies have been the best customers of the United States, so a German victory might have tremendous influence on the future of world trade. The United Kingdom has been the leading importer of American goods, taking nearly 16 per cent of total American exports in 1939. Canada followed closely by taking 15½ per cent. France was fourth in importance and the Netherlands sixth. Of total United States exports of 3 billion 177 million dollars in 1939 Europe took 40.5 per cent.

Another important angle which has government officials worried is the possibility of a totalitarian bloc, involving Germany, Italy, Russia, Japan, and Spain, getting control of strategic materials such as rubber, tin, manganese, antimony, tung oil, etc., and shutting off the United States' sources of supply, which are now controled by the allies.

STOCKS RISE, DIP, THEN SEE-SAW IN LIGHTER VOLUME

War Developments Make Traders Cautious.

New York, May 24 (AP).—Stock market traders generally viewed the war more calmly today, but most of them showed little inclination to give leading issues a buying push. The result was a see-saw trend in the slowest session in two weeks. Closing prices were well mixed, with gains in the majority.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues eased 0.2 point at 37.8, or just 0.1 above the lowest level since June, 1938. Transfers were the smallest since May 9, aggregating 871,360 shares compared with 1,642,450 the day before. A total of 820 individual stocks was traded. Of these, 336 advanced, 264 declined, and 220 were unchanged.

Traders Are Cautious.

Conflicting claims of the Nazis and allies continued to keep many commission house customers on the sidelines. Sentiment was chilled by the admitted capture of the important channel port of Boulogne by the Germans and reports of the Hitler troops near Calais. At the same time, dispatches indicated a stronger show of resistance by British and French forces, and these helped restrict selling that broke out now and then.

The move of congress to speed up the huge domestic rearmament program remained a sustaining influence for stock prices, brokers said. Favorable news included the report of a less than seasonal decline in this week's automotive production and forecasts that steel mill operations would reach 80 per cent of capacity by fall.

Market Starts High.

Shares started with a selective advance of fractions to 2 points. They skidded later and from then on the market was uneven.

Losses running to around 2 points were recorded by Chrysler, Dow Chemical, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Boeing, Glenn Martin and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Modest advances were retained by Bethehem Steel, United States Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, American Telephone, Southern Railway, Loft, Caterpillar Tractor, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, and Kennecott.

CHICAGO STOCKS UNEVEN.

Chicago stock trading yesterday slackened to only 27,000 shares, the lowest volume of the week. Advances slightly outnumbered declines.

Of the 93 active issues, 38 gained, 32 declined, and 23 were unchanged. Commonwealth Edison, the volume leader, lost ¼ point to close at 26¾, and Merchants and Manufacturers, in second place, remained unchanged at 3½.

BANK STOCKS

First National bank stocks advanced four points and Continental Illinois gained half a point yesterday in Chicago bank stock trading. Northern Trust dipped five points and City National was off one point. Other leading issues were unchanged.

REPUBLICANS ACT TO SAVE BILL ON FOREIGN SILVER

Counter Democratic Move to Kill Measure.

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—Plans of house Democratic leaders to sidetrack legislation prohibiting future treasury purchases of foreign silver were countered immediately today by Republican strategy designed to keep the issue alive.

Rep. Wolcott to fight to save bill.

House leaders agreed to ask Monday that the house send the senate approved measure back to the senate with a message saying the upper chamber had trespassed the constitution by initiating a revenue measure.

Bill Includes Tax Repeal.

In addition to revoking the foreign silver purchase program, the pending legislation by Senator John G. Townsend Jr. [R., Del.], would repeal the present tax on silver transfers. This tax is 50 per cent of any profit derived from the transfer.

The constitution says "all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives." Democratic leaders of the house construed this to mean all legislation repealing tax laws must also be initiated in the house.

A group of Republicans headed by Representative Jesse P. Wolcott [R., Mich.], prepared to argue the point when the question comes up in the house Monday, but they had little hope of stopping the Democratic move. Instead, they said, senate friends of the bill would attempt to attach the foreign purchase ban to some other legislation, leaving out the tax repealer entirely.

Senators Deny Overstepping.

Senate opinion over the decision of house leadership was divided, but several senators denied emphatically that their chamber had overstepped its constitutional authority in approving the silver measure.

Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], a member of the finance committee, declared that "it is stretching the constitution beyond all reason to say that merely because an incidental tax feature is involved one chamber can't express itself on a broad question of policy."

Holland's Foreign Trade by Principal Countries in 1938

BOND MARKET PRICES UNEVEN IN SLOW TRADE

New York, May 24 (AP).—Bond prices moved irregularly today as traders sought to determine newly established price "foundations." With many Wall street authorities agreed that the downturn of recent sessions was out of line with corporation prospects, the dealings were largely of a tentative nature, resulting in price fluctuations in which gains barely outweighed declines.

Only $5,186,750, face value, of liens were traded. It was the smallest volume of any session since May 7, and compared with $8,516,000 yesterday.

United States government loans, in small transactions slipped as much as 29-32 point.

Latin-Americans, on the whole, were the best of a weak foreign list. Among the gainers in this department were loans of Argentina, Peru, and Uruguay. Both French and German bonds added fractions.

NEW CENTRALIA OIL WELL SETS OUTPUT RECORD

Centralia, Ill., May 24 (AP).—Completion of an oil well flowing 215 barrels an hour, largest that has been drilled in the Centralia field, was announced today by the Gulf Refining company. The well is the Community Buehler No. 1, producing from the Devonian lime at 2,882-98 feet, a half mile northwest of this city.

It was flowing at the rate of 5,160 barrels a day against a previous record yield of 3,400 barrels. The company predicted it would produce 350 barrels an hour, or 8,400 barrels a day, when opened up after additional storage and pipe line facilities were available.

WHEAT AND CORN MOVE UPWARD IN AIMLESS TRADING

War and Minimum Prices Dampen Interest.

Grain prices moved aimlessly higher yesterday with trading at the slowest pace in several months. Uncertainty over the future of the war and the disinclination of speculators to operate freely with minimum prices in effect on grain futures accounted for the small interest in the market, brokers said.

Wheat futures held within a range of about 1½ cents, advancing on scattered buying which disclosed a lack of pressure. Closing trades on the Chicago Board of Trade were 1 to 1¼ cents higher. Corn had a range of about 1 cent and finished ½ cent higher. Rye followed wheat higher. July oats and soy beans held mostly at minimum prices.

Open Contracts Small.

The Commodity Exchange administration reported a total of only 78,852,000 bushels of uncompleted wheat future contracts at the opening of trading yesterday. This compared with 129,259,000 bushels on May 9 and is the smallest since Dec. 15, 1939. The open interest in corn futures had decreased about 7,000,000 bushels since May 9, totaling 24,975,000 bushels, the smallest total of uncompleted contracts since July 21, 1936.

While the attention of the American grain trade has been centered on the war bulletins from Europe, there has been a gradual change for the better in the outlook for the domestic winter wheat crop, according to reports by crop experts. The Robinson Elevator company, Salina, Kas., estimates the Kansas wheat crop at 80,000,000 bushels, or 4,000,000 bushels above their previous estimate and compared with a 65,000,000 bushel forecast by the department of agriculture on May 1. Last year's harvest was 112,000,000 bushels.

Weather Favors Wheat.

R. O. Cromwell, who has just returned from an extensive trip thru the southwest, reported to Lamson Bros. & Co., that the continued cool weather has favored stooling of the winter wheat which did not germinate until this spring. He said future temperatures must remain subnormal for the filling period if improvement is to be maintained.

The most improvement has been in central Oklahoma, the eastern half of Kansas, and scattered other parts of Kansas and ebraska. Some deterioration has occurred in Texas and parts of Oklahoma and Nebraska due to lack of moisture. Heading has begun in the eastern half of Kansas where the wheat sprouted last fall, Cromwell said.

COMMITTEE TO SEEK SALES TAX CHANGE TO HALT ILLINOIS EXODUS

Members of a committee that will try to find a way to modify the Illinois retail occupational [sales] tax law to stop the threatened movement of many businesses out of Chicago were announced yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

G. T. Buckingham.

George T. Buckingham, Chicago attorney and tax authority, was named as chairman. The other members invited to serve include Amos Ball, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana; E. J. Koch, Felt & Tarrant Manufacturing company; Simeon E. Leland, University of Chicago, noted tax authority; Cornelius Lynde, attorney; C. J. Whipple, president, Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., and Percy Wilson, vice president, Marshall Field & Co.

EGGS ADVANCE ON RECORD U. S. AGENCY BUYING

Egg futures closed unchanged to 0.20 cent higher on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday as the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation bought over $150,000 worth of eggs in the Chicago and New York cash markets. Cash houses were the leading buyers of futures.

Up to noon yesterday the government had purchased 26½ million dozens in its price pegging program. Purchase of 523,140 dozens in Chicago and 366,840 dozens in New York yesterday set new volume records in the federal surplus removal program.

Butter futures eased 0.05 cent a pound under the influence of hedge selling and a listless cash market. Receipts of 1,248,000 pounds established a new high for the season but fell short of arrivals on the corresponding day last year.

WEEK OF JUNE 2 IS NAMED HOTEL WEEK IN NATION

Officially proclaiming the period of June 2 thru June 8 as National Hotel week in Chicago, Mayor Edward J. Kelly yesterday urged all citizens to coöperate in focusing attention on the valuable contributions of hotels in the various phases of community life.

The nation's hotel business, which is sponsoring the observance of the week, is the seventh largest industry in the United States, according to Leonard Hicks, president of the Greater Chicago Hotel association.

The 16,000 hotels in the United States represent an investment of more than three billion dollars, employ more than 300,000 persons, and pay about $300,000,000 yearly in salaries and wages, he said.

Lehman Corp. to Buy Own Stock During Low Market

New York, May 24 [Special].—Stockholders of Lehman corporation have been advised by Robert Lehman, president, that the directors intend to resume purchases of the company's stock for retirement, in view of existing market conditions. The corporation announced today there has been no attempt to establish any fixed plan, however, either as to the quantity of stock, price, or duration of the purchase period.

Texas Oil Production to Be Cut 91,000 Barrels Daily

Austin, Tex., May 24 (AP).—A majority of the railroad commission today ordered Texas oil production slashed 91,000 barrels to 1,335,530 barrels daily in a proration order covering June, July, and August. The figure compared with the United States bureau of mines estimate of 1,344,600 barrels daily market demand for the state. The commission granted an immediate 5,000 barrel daily production increase by the Conroe field to fill an order for the French government.

WRIGLEY, MODINE COMPANIES VOTE EXTRA DIVIDENDS

Payment of Gum Concern Is 50 Cents a Share.

Two midwestern enterprises, William Wrigley Jr. company, Chicago, and Modine Manufacturing company, Racine, Wis., yesterday declared extra dividends of 50 cents and 25 cents a share respectively.

The Wrigley company, world's largest manufacturer of chewing gum, announced its extra on capital stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20. A monthly dividend of 25 cents a share had previously been authorized with the same payment and record dates. The last extra dividend, amounting to 50 cents, was disbursed, Nov. 1, 1939.

The extra of the Modine company, manufacturer of radiators and heating and ventilating apparatus, was declared in addition to an interim dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock. Both are payable June 20 to stock of record June 10. With the 50 cents paid March 20, these disbursements will bring the total for the year to date to $1.25. For the whole year of 1938 dividends aggregated $1.50 a share.

Dividends announced yesterday, with record and payment dates, follow:

MAIL AND STORE.

The large merchandising organizations apparently are doing an unprecedented business. I would like to have financial data on Sears, Roebuck & Co.—T. J. O.

Answer: Sears, Roebuck & Co., world's largest mail order and retail store enterprise, had the heaviest turnover and largest profits of its 54 year history in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1940. Record breaking trade continued into the first quarter of the current fiscal year as sales rose 9 per cent to $148,106,749 from $135,903,898 in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

General merchandise sold thru 10 mail order houses and more than 524 retail stores in a nation-wide chain totaled $617,414,266 in the latest fiscal year, compared with $501,676,644 in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1939, and the previous peak of $537,242,403 in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1938.

Consolidated net sales, net income, and earnings per capital share in recent fiscal years ending Jan. 31 were as follows:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Earned per share.
1936	*$392,098,000	$21,519,000	$4.45
1937	494,968,000	30,660,000	5.60
1938	537,242,000	30,828,000	5.58
1939	501,677,000	23,584,000	4.18
1940	617,414,000	37,255,000	6.60

*Year ended Jan. 29.

Sears had outstanding 5,643,501 shares of no par capital stock last Jan. 31, and subsidiary long term debt of $384,400. Dividends on the stock were distributed in each year since 1909, except in 1922, 1923, 1933, and 1934. Dividends in recent years were:

1935	$1.75	1938	$5.50
1936	3.75	1939	4.25
1937	5.50

A quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share was paid last March 11 and another will be disbursed June 10 on stock of record May 10.

The growth of the Sears enterprise since 1925 has been predominantly in the retail store division. Sears broke from its traditional mail order merchandising in 1925 when it opened its first retail store in Chicago. The retail chain since that time has spread steadily thru nearly every state in the nation. The stores are estimated to produce about 60 per cent of the company's total sales and the mail order division the remaining 40 per cent.

The substantial increase in sales in 1939 was attributed largely to the broad time payment policy adopted by the company last year. Purchases of $10 or more may be made on the instalment payment plan.

PRICES OF HOGS SAG AS FARMERS LIFT SHIPMENTS

The market for hogs continued to fluctuate nervously yesterday, being highly sensitive to war news and reports from the grain and provision markets. Prices dipped mostly 10 to 15 cents at the opening, with some sales off 20 to 25 cents. Local buyers bid up the market late and prices recovered about 5 to 10 cents.

Both the top and average for the day were off 15 cents, at $5.70 and $5.45 a hundred pounds respectively. Final sales were highest of the session, with some late orders unfilled at the close of trading.

Farmers moved hogs to all packing centers in larger numbers during the day. Total arrivals at the 11 principal markets at 61,000 were 14,000 larger than a week earlier.

Steady prices were paid for most of the scant supply of other meat animals available at the yards yesterday. Only 1,000 cattle arrived, with quality poor. Most steers and yearlings sold at prices in line with Thursday, quality considered. The best offered brought $10.35. Calves were weak. Beef cows, heifers, canners, cutters, bulls and replacement cattle held steady.

The run of 6,500 sheep and lambs included 5,500 direct to packers, leaving only 1,000 for sale on the open market. These sold steady.

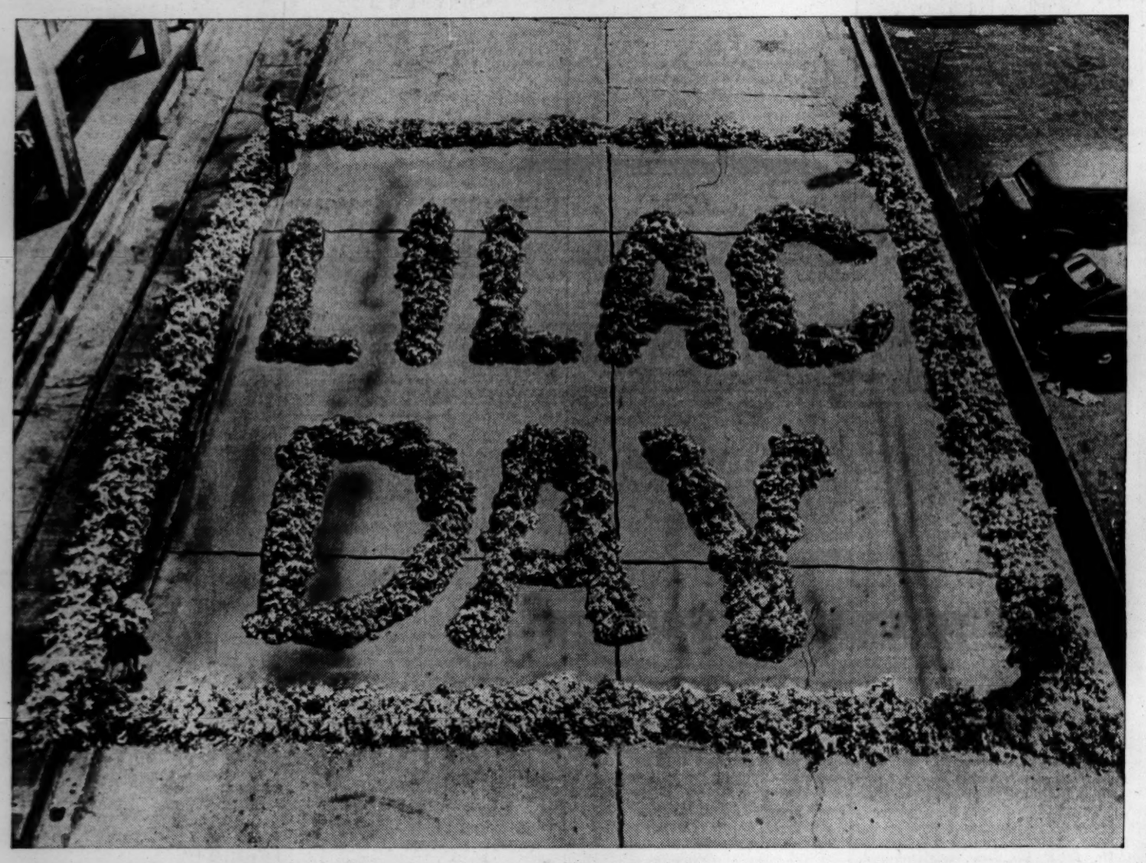
Lilacs Distributed to 16,000 Shutins—Germans at Gates of Calais—Allies Fight to Cut Salient



Part of the thousands of lilacs gathered in "Share Your Lilacs" campaign as they were arranged beside Tribune Tower. The blooms were distributed to Chicago shut-ins thru co-operation of Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and The Tribune.

Nurse Evelyn Schwandt giving lilacs to Sherry Kenwood at the County hospital. Blossoms were taken to 96 hospitals.

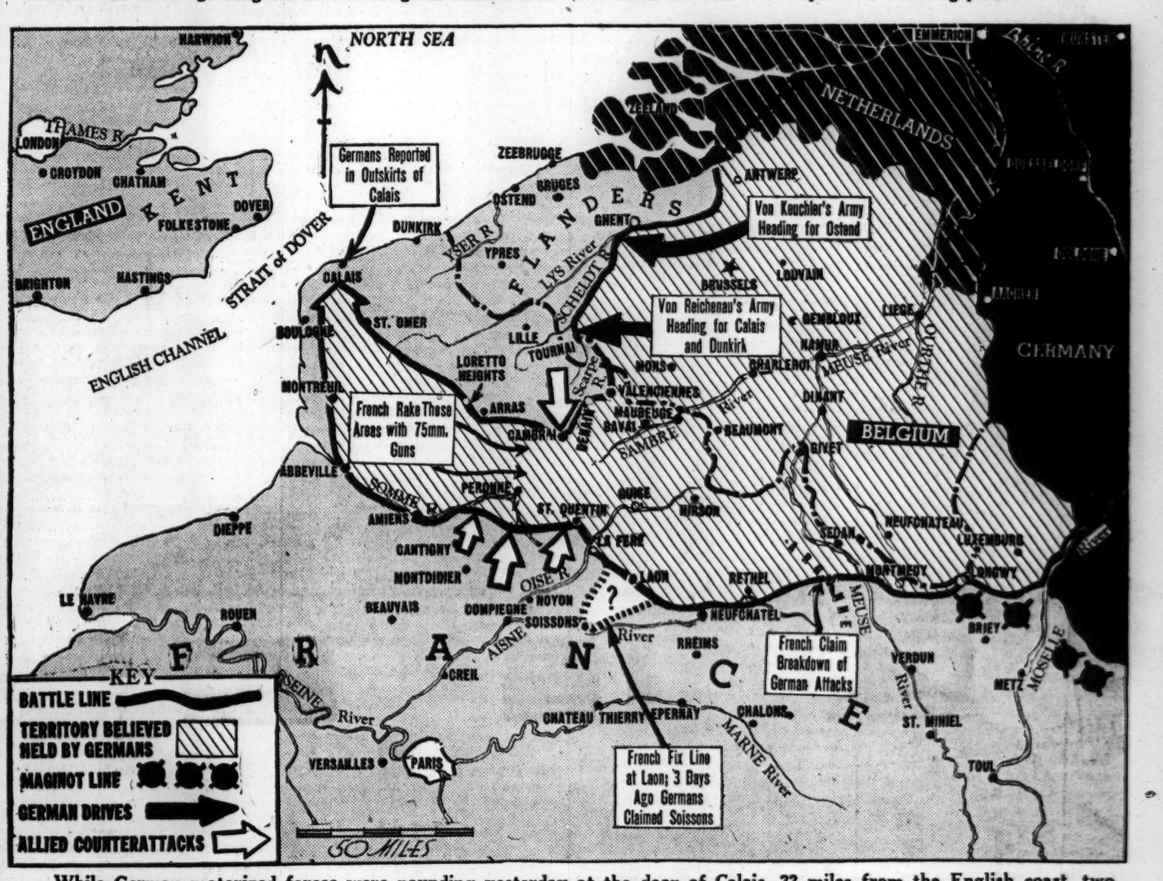
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Six truckloads of swastikas, photographic equipment, cards, maps, and banners were seized in police raids on headquarters of fifth column suspects in Montreal, Canada, early yesterday. The picture shows a portion of the material taken.

[Acme Photo.]

This picture of a flame throwing tank is interesting in view of the reported success the German army has had with the machines in their lightning advance in Belgium and France. The tanks are said to be capable of disabling pillbox crews.



While German motorized forces were pounding yesterday at the door of Calais, 22 miles from the English coast, two German armies on the north flank in Belgium were also driving toward the channel ports. Meanwhile the allies were still trying to cut the Nazi "corridor of advance" between Cambrai and St. Quentin. (Stories on page 1.)
